Blue Chip Panel to Probe AFA's Cadet Honor Code

A blue chip panel has been named to review the fundamental programs of the Air Force Academy with specific instructions to find out if the cadet honor code is "unreasonable and unrealistic."

Secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert named the five-man committee Thursday in the wake of a flood of protests from parents of cadets who have resigned in the cheating scandal. The protests concern the fact that these cadets were not involved in the actual cheating, but violated the honor code by not reporting it.

Named to head the panel was retired Air Force General Thomas D. White. Others named were Dean Hardy Dillard, professor of law at the University of Virginia; Dr. Robert I. Stearns, former president of the University of Colorado; Charles B. Thornton, president of Litton Industries, and Lt. Gen. Joseph J. Nazzaro, vice commander in chief, Strategic Air Command.

Zuckert asked that the committee meet at once and proceed to make the study with "all prudent speed."

"Although the vast majority of the cadets were not involved in breaches of the honor code, the fact that violations did occur makes it important for us to conduct a thorough review to the basic cause of the problem," Zuckert said in a letter to Gen. White.

"This must be done by an evaluation of the structure and workings of the Academy itself," Zuckert said. "As you know I am taking steps to deal with individual cases. The special committee, therefore, will fulfill a wider long-range purpose."

Zuckert said his overriding aim in appointing the special committee is to make certain "the Academy instills in our cadets the finest moral character, the highest ethical beliefs and the outstanding qualities of leadership which make the Air Force Officer of whom we are proud."

Zuckert told White he was interested in the following areas in the study:

"— Are the Academy's high standards of moral and ethical conduct being emphasized in sufficient depth in the cadets

Failing Grades Questioned By Former Cadet's Dad

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The father of a cadet who was dismissed from the Air Force Academy because of two failing grades today questioned whether his son would have failed if there had not been cheating by other cadets.

A. C. Diehl of Tampa, said: "If they grade on the curve, and in those classes that he failed other boys had not had information on the tests, he might have passed."

Sixty - five cadets have resigned in recent days in the wake of a classroom cheating scandal at the academy, and more resignations are expected.

Diehl said his son, Allan, was in his second year at the academy after three years at the University of Florida.

"Allan told me, 'Dad, I knew I wasn't setting the place afire,' but I was surprised when I was told I had failed two courses," Diehl said.

He said his son came home after Christmas.

Allan says there were a lot released after Christmas because of failing grades," Diehl said. "I feel they might have all been victimized by the cheating."

He said he would like to see these boys given new examinations.

"Allan says you don't quibble about these things, but I told him I'm going to quibble," Diehl said.

Settlement of Longshoremen's Strike Forecast

By MALCOLM STEPHENSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz says he expects the Maine-to-Texas dock strike to be settled in time for the 60,000 longshoremen to be back on the job by the first of next week.

He declines to reveal — "at this time" — the basis of his optimism about ending the 19-day-old tieup.

Wirtz, who made the statement at a news conference Thursday night, was asked about presidential intervention. He said that he could not speak for President Johnson, but added that he expected no compulsory arbitration move or federal dock seizure.

Some sources report Johnson is seeking to end the strike.

Wirtz said an appeal to the President by the maritime industry employers in the Port of New York "merits consideration."

Shortly before Wirtz spoke, the New York Shipping Association, which represents 145 shipping and stevedoring companies, had sent a long telegram to Johnson pleading for action.

It cited a maritime administration estimate that the strike has cost the national economy $1 billion. An estimated 500 ships are strikebound on the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts.

Oregon Rivers Boiling Over Again in Flood

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Oregon's rivers boiled over their banks again today, less than a month after the most destructive flood in the state's history.

The waters washed out bridges, overran roads and homes, caused evacuation of about 150 families and caused many landslides, including one of great size at Mapleton, about 150 miles southwest of Portland.

Tons of earth peeled off Neely Mountain overlooking Mapleton Thursday. It crashed through the heart of the community of 800. But no one was seriously injured.

The post office was destroyed. The acting postmistress, Ida Mae Love, was swept out a side door into a deep ditch 25 yards away. Leslie Benscoter, a bystander, rescued her and she was taken to the hospital 15 miles away in Florence. Her injuries were believed not to be serious.

A postal clerk, Mrs. Vernon VanCurler, escaped by breaking the front window of the post office with a piece of wood that swirled in with the other debris.

About 25 cars were hurled across the street and into the show windows and store fronts of seven shops and restaurants. There was no official estimate of damage.

The Willamette River in Portland was expected to reach 19.5 feet today, 23.5 feet Saturday and 23.5 feet Sunday. The flood stage is 16 feet. The river reached 27.6 feet during the Christmas flood.

The Weather Bureau said the warm, moist air blowing in from the Pacific was expected to continue through tonight, and more rain seemed on the way.

The flooding came when temperatures in the 40s melted the snowpack in the Cascade Mountains, helped by the rain. The earth, still saturated from the December floods, could not absorb more moisture.

Massive Cold Wave Envelops Much of U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A massive cold wave enveloped much of the nation today, sending the temperature to zero or below in at least 27 states. Snow, rain and flooding plagued some sections.

Bitter cold arctic air swept out of the North into the nation's midsection. Cold wave warnings stretched from the mid-Mississippi Valley to the northern Appalachians.

A 2-inch snow fell in the St. Louis area, causing at least two deaths. The temperature in Missouri ranged from —5 to 28.

In Iowa the mercury failed to get above zero Thursday in some sections. Central Kentucky registered an 8-degree temperature after a 2-inch snowfall. An inch of snow fell in Cleveland.

Snow squalls struck western New York State.

A fast-moving storm dumped up to 4 inches of snow in West Virginia.

The cold moved into the Southland, where temperatures fell into the teens in Arkansas.

The Northwest was hit by more rain, aggravating the flooding situation in Washington and Oregon. Snow fell again in the Rocky Mountains.

Rivers surged over their banks in northwestern Oregon, waterlogged from December floods which killed 18 persons. An earth slide thundered onto Mapleton, a community of 800 west of Eugene. No injuries

Academy Clamps Lid on Scandal Information

By RAY HERST
Gazette Telegraph City Editor

Information on the cheating scandal was as difficult to come by Thursday at the Air Force Academy as an Alf Landon vote.

Officials screwed down the lid on all news and the Air Force sent in a Pentagon information officer to tighten the screws.

Newsmen were greeted with huge "No Admittance" signs when they tried to get into the public information offices. They were given a room to themselves and practically no information at all.

Resigned Cadets Tied to Theft Of Exams

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Post said today it learned that all 65 cadets who have resigned so far from the U.S. Air Force Academy had direct connections with stolen examination papers.

The Post said in a copyrighted story these cadets were "directly involved" in the theft, sale or use of papers taken from a locked file in December.

It had been reported that most of those resigning had violated the school's honor code merely by not telling superiors of cases of cheating.

The Post said a highly placed source denied the accuracy of this report.

"The boys who have been before the (investigative) board and who have resigned have been directly involved," the source said.

"They represent a cross-section of students, academically speaking — the better scholars as well as those who were having trouble with their work."

It was reported nearly half of the 65 resigning were juniors, about a fourth seniors and the rest sophomores.

240 Strikers Go Back to Work At NORAD Site

After stopping all work at the Cheyenne Mountain Hardsite 240 construction workers were back on the job this morning.

The strike at the North American Air Defense Command's underground nerve center began about 3 a.m. Wednesday and ended when the 8 a.m. shift returned to work today, reported Col. J. P. Beeson, area engineer for the Army Corps of Engineers.

Involved were operating engineers of Local 9, who are primarily equipment operators, and other workers. Local 9 was not the only group on strike, according to Beeson.

The dispute was over who should use a crane. Construction workers said they should use it because they were employes of the primary contractor, Grafe - Wallace - Foster. However, electrical workers of a sub-contractor, Sturgeon Electric, said the crane was theirs.

By request of the electrical workers the dispute was dropped in the lap of the National Labor Relations Board

Cape Kennedy Is Struck by Labor Dispute

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A labor union jurisdictional dispute concerning 49 to 50 workers has tied up 44 other projects and $192 million in top-priority space work.

More than 3,700 building and trades workers stayed off their jobs Thursday and planned to do the same today.

New mediation talks were scheduled in an attempt to resume construction on the Merritt Island Moonport, an 88,000-acre tract where the United States is investing $750 million to be first to the moon.

More Devastating Atom Weapons Built by U. S.

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission today reported "significant progress" in development of nuclear warheads capable of penetrating enemy missile defenses.

Although the AEC did not directly say so, this appeared to be the U.S. anwser to Soviet boasts of recent years that the Russians had perfected anti-missile missiles.

The commission also disclosed, in its annual report to Congress, that it has delivered to the Defense Department "new warheads for the Polaris, Subroc, and Minuteman missile systems and new nuclear artillery projectiles and atomic demolition munitions."

The United States relies on the retaliatory power of its Polaris and Minuteman missiles to keep Russia from starting a nuclear war. According to unofficial estimates, the new warheads have a destructive potential equal to about 1.6 million tons of TNT, twice that of earlier versions of these missiles.

Subroc is a water-to-air-to-water antisubmarine missile with which new U.S. submarines are being equipped. Atomic "demolition munitions" include such things as land mines, which might be buried in mountain passes and elsewhere to block invading armies, and nuclear devices for blowing up strategic bridges and installations.

As a result of an AEC-Defense Department study, this country has cut back production of atomic explosives and weapons. But better weapons than ever are going into the stockpile, the report said, and old weapons are constantly being modernized.

Among other things the AEC report said that:

—"Great steps" were taken in 1964 to make the atomic energy program "less a government monopoly and more a cooperative partnership in which private enterprise performs an increasingly important role." It is now no longer mandatory for the government to own nuclear reactor fuels.

—As a result of seven experimental blasts "truly significant progress" was made in the Plowshare program to develop peaceful uses for nuclear explosives. Such uses would include the digging of a sea-level canal across the isthmus of Panama, mining operations, the blasting of highways through mountains, and many other engineering and scientific projects.

—This country is now ready, if the limited test ban treaty of August, 1963, should be abrogated, to resume atmospheric weapons tests on "short notice."

—The scope of underground testing, permitted by the treaty has been greatly increased by new drilling and experimental techniques. Underground tests of a size and nature undreamed of a few years ago are now possible. In the past year the United States has staged 29 underground shots of one kind or another.

Nuclear Weapons Security Said To Be Lagging

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — (Special) — The Joint Congressional Atomic Committee is gravely disturbed by what it considers glaring weaknesses in Defense Department regulations and procedures safeguarding nuclear weapons secrets.

Persistent and vigorous committee prodding has produced some improvements. But the military's security system is still deemed dangerously inadequate.

In the opinion of these lawmakers, the security policies and controls of the civilian Atomic Energy Commission are far more realistic and effective than those of the military services.

Two particular practices by the latter are singled out by committee leaders as requiring immediate and drastic tightening:

— The almost casual attitude of the military toward protecting the security of design information of existing and contemplated nuclear weapons. Such vital data is not considered "critical." In direct con-

Volcano Near Anchorage Is Fuming

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Sulphur fumes are reported rising from a fissure high on the east side of 10,197-foot Mt. Redoubt, a long-dormant volcano about 100 miles southwest of Anchorage.

Oscar Underhill, a pilot for Northern Consolidated Airlines, said he spotted the fumes as he flew over the mountain Thursday.

The U.S. Geological Survey office here said Mt. Redoubt was last reported smoking in 1933.

Demonstrations Being Planned In Selma, Ala.

By REX THOMAS

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Negro leaders discussed possible massive street demonstrations today in their plans to intensify their right-to-vote campaign in Selma next week while extending it into neighboring Perry County.

The Rev. James Bevel, an aide of Negro integration leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., said the demonstrations may accompany the renewal of the voter registration drive here Monday in an effort to dramatize Negro demands.

Simultaneously, said Bevel, Negroes in Perry County will be urged to march on the courthouse at Marion, 30 miles west of Selma, to emphasize their complaints that the pace of registration is too slow even though a federal voter referee has already been appointed.

The board at Marion, like all others in Alabama, will meet Monday for the first of two registration days in February fixed by state law — the first and third Mondays in each month.

At Selma, the Dallas County board —which at its own request was granted 10 additional days this month, recessing only

Then, as a warning against further Communist terrorism in the capital, a firing squad executed a 20-year-old Vietnamese in Saigon's main public market an hour before sunrise. He had been caught Tuesday night carrying a grenade and a 15-pound bomb.

The youth, Le van Khuyen, shivering and silent, was blindfolded, then backed up against a sandbag parapet in front of the National Railroad Building. After the volley of rifle fire and a pistol coup de grace, the body was loaded into a coffin and whisked off in a truck.

'Little Green Men' Hunted In Virginia

STAUNTON, Va. (AP) — Sheriff John E. Kent of Augusta County says he will crack down on flying saucer-believers who go out with guns to hunt saucer-riding "little green men."

Reports of unidentified flying objects have been frequent in this area. Tuesday night three boys said they saw a small, green man east of here.

Kent said some residents armed themselves and went out to hunt the creature.

"This thing has gotten completely out of hand," he said. "Anyone carrying firearms in the county without good reason will be dealt with according to the law."

Besides, Kent added, suppose there really were creatures around from outer space — "Who's got a right to mow them down?"

Reduced Phone Long Distance Rates Disclosed

NEW YORK (AP) — Long distance telephone calls on evenings and weekends will be cheaper starting Monday.

Under a Federal Communications Commission order issued Nov. 25, the $1 maximum station-to-station long distance rate inaugurated in 1963 will be extended.

The charge applies to the first three minutes.

The reduced rates will be effective for six week days at 8 p.m. at the originating point, rather than the present 9 p.m. They will apply all day Sunday.

Reduced rates higher than the after-8 tariffs will apply to Saturday calls and from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. weekdays.

The maximum for Saturday and evening, station-to-station interstate calls will be $1.50 for the first three minutes.

The FCC said the new schedules would lower Bell Telephone System interstate revenues by $75 million a year, and amounted to the largest interstate telephone rate reduction effected.

They were justified by technological advances, it said.

Under the FCC ruling, additional rate reductions amounting to $25 million annually are scheduled by April 1. American Telephone and Telegraph Co. said details were being worked out.

Cyanide Death of Woman Is Still Mystery

By DIAL TORGERSON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ilene Sanford Costew, 41, was seen drinking a glass of water.

Suddenly she screamed: "Oh my God, I feel terrible!"

She stumbled into a rear storeroom of the supermarket where she worked and the door swung shut and locked.

By the time employes got the door open she was unconscious. In 15 minutes she was dead.

Her death last Nov. 21 was at first thought to be due to natural causes. But an autopsy proved otherwise: cyanide poison killed her.

Police have worked on the case for two months. They have questioned 70 friends, relatives and co-workers, and given 10 lie detector tests. Detectives say they are convinced it was an accident or murder not suicide.

Mrs. Costew was the mother of three children, including a married daughter. Her husband, John, 28, is a grocery checker. They made their home in an apartment in nearby Glendale.

Detectives said Mrs. Costew also worked part time as a drugstore clerk, but detectives said they were convinced she could not have gotten the drug there.

"She was an inveterate medicine taker," an officer said, but no poison was found in pills in her possession.

"She was apparently well liked by everyone," said Detective Sgt. Ken Beck, "and we found no one who had any animosity toward her. She left no great insurance."

Beck said Mrs. Costew may have swallowed the fatal dose with the water she was seen drinking.

"It's sure conjecture," said Beck, "but we feel that probably it was taken in a gelatin capsule. When cyanide is ingested without a protective coating, frequently the victim won't even get the glass back on the table before collapsing.

"We thought somebody might have altered some medication she was taking. All you need is what you could hold on the tip of a penknife."

But no evidence of such an alteration has been found. Said Beck: "We will continue this investigation."

Oregon Rivers Boiling Over Again in Flood

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Oregon's rivers boiled over their banks again today, less than a month after the most destructive flood in the state's history.

The waters washed out bridges, overran roads and homes, caused evacuation of about 150 families and caused many landslides, including one of great size at Mapleton, about 150 miles southwest of Portland.

Tons of earth peeled off Neely Mountain overlooking Mapleton Thursday. It crashed through the heart of the community of 800. But no one was seriously injured.

The post office was destroyed. The acting postmistress, Ida Mae Love, was swept out a side door into a deep ditch 25 yards away. Leslie Benscoter, a bystander, rescued her and she was taken to the hospital 15 miles away in Florence. Her injuries were believed not to be serious.

A postal clerk, Mrs. Vernon VanCurler, escaped by breaking the front window of the post office with a piece of wood that swirled in with the other debris.

About 25 cars were hurled across the street and into the show windows and store fronts of seven shops and restaurants. There was no official estimate of damage.

The Willamette River in Portland was expected to reach 19.5 feet today, 23.5 feet Saturday and 23.5 feet Sunday. The flood stage is 16 feet. The river reached 27.6 feet during the Christmas flood.

The Weather Bureau said the warm, moist air blowing in from the Pacific was expected to continue through tonight, and more rain seemed on the way.

The flooding came when temperatures in the 40s melted the snowpack in the Cascade Mountains, helped by the rain. The earth, still saturated from the December floods, could not absorb more moisture.

Massive Cold Wave Envelops Much of U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A massive cold wave enveloped much of the nation today, sending the temperature to zero or below in at least 27 states. Snow, rain and flooding plagued some sections.

Bitter cold arctic air swept out of the North into the nation's midsection. Cold wave warnings stretched from the mid-Mississippi Valley to the northern Appalachians.

A 2-inch snow fell in the St. Louis area, causing at least two deaths. The temperature in Missouri ranged from —5 to 28.

In Iowa the mercury failed to get above zero Thursday in some sections. Central Kentucky registered an 8-degree temperature after a 2-inch snowfall. An inch of snow fell in Cleveland.

Snow squalls struck western New York State.

The cold moved into the Southland, where temperatures fell into the teens in Arkansas.

The Northwest was hit by more rain, aggravating the flooding situation in Washington and Oregon. Snow fell again in the Rocky Mountains.

Rivers surged over their banks in northwestern Oregon, waterlogged from December floods which killed 18 persons. An earth slide thundered onto Mapleton, a community of 800 west of Eugene. No injuries

Academy Clamps Lid on Scandal Information

By RAY HERST
Gazette Telegraph City Editor

Information on the cheating scandal was as difficult to come by Thursday at the Air Force Academy as an Alf Landon vote.

Officials screwed down the lid on all news and the Air Force sent in a Pentagon information officer to tighten the screws.

Newsmen were greeted with huge "No Admittance" signs when they tried to get into the public information offices. They were given a room to themselves and practically no information at all.

Resigned Cadets Tied to Theft Of Exams

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Post said today it learned that all 65 cadets who have resigned so far from the U.S. Air Force Academy had direct connections with stolen examination papers.

The Post said in a copyrighted story these cadets were "directly involved" in the theft, sale or use of papers taken from a locked file in December.

It had been reported that most of those resigning had violated the school's honor code merely by not telling superiors of cases of cheating.

The Post said a highly placed source denied the accuracy of this report.

"The boys who have been before the (investigative) board and who have resigned have been directly involved," the source said.

"They represent a cross-section of students, academically speaking — the better scholars as well as those who were having trouble with their work."

It was reported nearly half of the 65 resigning were juniors, about a fourth seniors and the rest sophomores.

240 Strikers Go Back to Work At NORAD Site

After stopping all work at the Cheyenne Mountain Hardsite 240 construction workers were back on the job this morning.

The strike at the North American Air Defense Command's underground nerve center began about 3 a.m. Wednesday and ended when the 8 a.m. shift returned to work today, reported Col. J. P. Beeson, area engineer for the Army Corps of Engineers.

Involved were operating engineers of Local 9, who are primarily equipment operators, and other workers. Local 9 was not the only group on strike, according to Beeson.

The dispute was over who should use a crane. Construction workers said they should use it because they were employes of the primary contractor, Grafe - Wallace - Foster. However, electrical workers of a sub-contractor, Sturgeon Electric, said the crane was theirs.

By request of the electrical workers the dispute was dropped in the lap of the National Labor Relations Board

Cape Kennedy Is Struck by Labor Dispute

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A labor union jurisdictional dispute concerning 40 to 50 workers has tied up 44 other projects and $192 million in top-priority space work.

More than 3,700 building and trades workers stayed off their jobs Thursday and planned to do the same today.

New mediation talks were scheduled in an attempt to resume construction on the Merritt Island Moonport, an 88,000-acre tract where the United States is investing $750 million to be first to the moon.

More Devastating Atom Weapons Built by U. S.

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission today reported "significant progress" in development of nuclear warheads capable of penetrating enemy missile defenses.

Although the AEC did not directly say so, this appeared to be the U.S. anwser to Soviet boasts of recent years that the Russians had perfected anti-missile missiles.

The commission also disclosed, in its annual report to Congress, that it has delivered to the Defense Department "new warheads for the Polaris, Subroc, and Minuteman missile systems and new nuclear artillery projectiles and atomic demolition munitions."

The United States relies on the retaliatory power of its Polaris and Minuteman missiles to keep Russia from starting a nuclear war. According to unofficial estimates, the new warheads have a destructive potential equal to about 1.6 million tons of TNT, twice that of earlier versions of these missiles.

Subroc is a water-to-air-to-water antisubmarine missile with which new U.S. submarines are being equipped. Atomic "demolition munitions" include such things as land mines, which might be buried in mountain passes and elsewhere to block invading armies, and nuclear devices for blowing up strategic bridges and installations.

As a result of an AEC-Defense Department study, this country has cut back production of atomic explosives and weapons. But better weapons than ever are going into the stockpile, the report said, and old weapons are constantly being modernized.

Among other things the AEC report said that:

—"Great steps" were taken in 1964 to make the atomic energy program "less a government monopoly and more a cooperative partnership in which private enterprise performs an increasingly important role." It is now no longer mandatory for the government to own nuclear reactor fuels.

—As a result of seven experimental blasts "truly significant progress" was made in the Plowshare program to develop peaceful uses for nuclear explosives. Such uses would include the digging of a sea-level canal across the isthmus of Panama, mining operations, the blasting of highways through mountains, and many other engineering and scientific projects.

—This country is now ready, if the limited test ban treaty of August, 1963, should be abrogated, to resume atmospheric weapons tests on "short notice."

—The scope of underground testing, permitted by the treaty has been greatly increased by new drilling and experimental techniques. Underground tests of a size and nature undreamed of a few years ago are now possible. In the past year the United States has staged 29 underground shots of one kind or another.

Nuclear Weapons Security Said To Be Lagging

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — (Special) — The Joint Congressional Atomic Committee is gravely disturbed by what it considers glaring weaknesses in Defense Department regulations and procedures safeguarding nuclear weapons secrets.

Persistent and vigorous committee prodding has produced some improvements. But the military's security system is still deemed dangerously inadequate.

In the opinion of these lawmakers, the security policies and controls of the civilian Atomic Energy Commission are far more realistic and effective than those of the military services.

Two particular practices by the latter are singled out by committee leaders as requiring immediate and drastic tightening:

— The almost casual attitude of the military toward protecting the security of design information of existing and contemplated nuclear weapons. Such vital data is not considered "critical." In direct con-

Exalted Cyclops Of Klan Arrested For Bombings

NEW BERN, N. C. (UPI)—FBI agents arrested an "exalted cyclops" of the Ku Klux Klan and two other men today and accused them of three bombings that occurred during a civil rights meeting Sunday night.

Seized with the men were Ku Klux Klan robes, minutes of Ku Klux Klan meetings and Klan application blanks.

The FBI identified the men as Edward E. Fillingame, 23, a construction laborer; his cousin Laurie L. Fillingame, 21, a carpenter and grocery store operator; and Raymond Mills, 35, a salesman. All were arrested at their homes in nearby

Volcano Near Anchorage Is Fuming

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Sulphur fumes are reported rising from a fissure high on the east side of 10,197-foot Mt. Redoubt, a long-dormant volcano about 100 miles southwest of Anchorage.

Oscar Underhill, a pilot for Northern Consolidated Airlines, said he spotted the fumes as he flew over the mountain Thursday.

The U.S. Geological Survey office here said Mt. Redoubt was last reported smoking in 1933.

In 1902 the mountain erupted, dropping two inches of ash from Lake Clark to the Skwentna Valley, a distance of more than 100 miles.

Demonstrations Being Planned In Selma, Ala.

By REX THOMAS

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Negro leaders discussed possible massive street demonstrations today in their plans to intensify their right-to-vote campaign in Selma next week while extending it into neighboring Perry County.

The Rev. James Bevel, an aide of Negro integration leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., said the demonstrations may accompany the renewal of the voter registration drive here Monday in an effort to dramatize Negro demands.

Simultaneously, said Bevel, Negroes in Perry County will be urged to march on the courthouse at Marion, 30 miles west of Selma, to emphasize their complaints that the pace of registration is too slow even though a federal voter referee has already been appointed.

The board at Marion, like all others in Alabama, will meet Monday for the first of two registration days in February fixed by state law — the first and third Mondays in each month.

At Selma, the Dallas County board —which at its own request was granted 10 additional days this month, recessing only

Taylor Must Stay in Viet Nam, U.S. Says

By SPENCER DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is ready to support the new government of South Viet Nam but not at the price of removing Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor.

Both the White House and the State Department have emphasized President Johnson's continued confidence in his envoy.

Backing of the new civilian-based Saigon government fashioned by South Viet Nam's military leaders is expected to continue as long as it combats Communist subversion and aggression.

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh's new Vietnamese government released today all Buddhists arrested during the past week of demonstrations and riots except those suspected of being Viet Cong agents.

Then, as a warning against further Communist terrorism in the capital, a firing squad executed a 20-year-old Vietnamese in Saigon's main public market an hour before sunrise. He had been caught Tuesday night carrying a grenade and a 15-pound bomb.

The youth, Le van Khuyen, shivering and silent, was blindfolded, then backed up against a sandbag parapet in front of the National Railroad Building. After the volley of rifle fire and a pistol coup de grace, the body was loaded into a coffin and whisked off in a truck.

A battalion of paratroopers guarded the route from Chi Hoa Prison to the market place. Newsmen and photographers recorded the execution and a few hundred people gathered

'Little Green Men' Hunted In Virginia

STAUNTON, Va. (AP) — Sheriff John E. Kent of Augusta County says he will crack down on flying saucer-believers who go out with guns to hunt saucer-riding "little green men."

Reports of unidentified flying objects have been frequent in this area. Tuesday night three boys said they saw a small, green man east of here.

Kent said some residents armed themselves and went out to hunt the creature.

"This thing has gotten completely out of hand," he said. "Anyone carrying firearms in the county without good reason will be dealt with according to the law."

Besides, Kent added, suppose there really were creatures around from outer space — "Who's got a right to mow them down?"

Reduced Phone Long Distance Rates Disclosed

NEW YORK (AP) — Long distance telephone calls on evenings and weekends will be cheaper starting Monday.

Under a Federal Communications Commission order issued Nov. 25, the $1 maximum station-to-station long distance rate inaugurated in 1963 will be extended.

The charge applies to the first three minutes.

The reduced rates will be effective for six week days at 8 p.m. at the originating point, rather than the present 9 p.m. They will apply all day Sunday.

Reduced rates higher than the after-8 tariffs will apply to Saturday calls and from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. weekdays.

The maximum for Saturday and evening, station-to-station interstate calls will be $1.50 for the first three minutes.

The FCC said the new schedules would lower Bell Telephone System interstate revenues by $75 million a year, and amounted to the largest interstate telephone rate reduction effected.

They were justified by technological advances, it said.

Under the FCC ruling, additional rate reductions amounting to $25 million annually are scheduled by April 1. American Telephone and Telegraph Co. said details were being worked out.

Cyanide Death of Woman Is Still Mystery

By DIAL TORGERSON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ilene Sanford Costew, 41, was seen drinking a glass of water.

Suddenly she screamed: "Oh my God, I feel terrible!"

She stumbled into a rear storeroom of the supermarket where she worked and the door swung shut and locked.

By the time employes got the door open she was unconscious. In 15 minutes she was dead.

Her death last Nov. 21 was at first thought to be due to natural causes. But an autopsy proved otherwise: cyanide poison killed her.

Police have worked on the case for two months. They have questioned 70 friends, relatives and co-workers, and given 10 lie detector tests. Detectives say they are convinced it was an accident or murder not suicide.

Mrs. Costew was the mother of three children, including a married daughter. Her husband, John, 28, is a grocery checker. They made their home in an apartment in nearby Glendale.

Detectives said Mrs. Costew also worked part time as a drugstore clerk, but detectives said they were convinced she could not have gotten the drug there.

"She was an inveterate medicine taker," an officer said, but no poison was found in pills in her possession.

"She was apparently well liked by everyone," said Detective Sgt. Ken Beck, "and we found no one who had any animosity toward her. She left no great insurance."

Beck said Mrs. Costew may have swallowed the fatal dose with the water she was seen drinking.

"It's sure conjecture," said Beck, "but we feel that probably it was taken in a gelatin capsule. When cyanide is ingested without a protective coating, frequently the victim won't even get the glass back on the table before collapsing.

"We thought somebody might have altered some medication she was taking. All you need is what you could hold on the tip of a penknife."

But no evidence of such an alteration has been found. Said Beck: "We will continue this investigation."

Makarios Accused of Not Wanting Unity

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The progovernment paper Eleftheria accused President Makarios of Cyprus today of no longer wanting union of the island with Greece.

A number of foreign commentators have said the same thing in the past, but this was the first time a leading Greek paper had said it.

In an open letter to Makarios, who also is the Greek Orthodox Archbishop of Cyprus, Eleftheria said:

"The Greek people believe that you do not want union with Greece because it would of necessity mean the end of your political career and your return, after the taste of world power, to your melancholy ecclesiastical duties.

"And something else:

"You are afraid that union would mean the extension to Cyprus of the Greek law concerning appropriation and distribution to landless peasants of the large property of the Church of Cyprus, of which you are the leader in addition to being chief of state."

Solon Opposed To Splitting of Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Thomas E. Morgan of the House foreign Affairs Committee said today he is "unalterably opposed" to splitting the foreign aid bill into two parts.

His counterpart, Chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, announced Thursday he would not act as Senate floor manager for the bill this year.

It was understood Fulbright's decision was based on the administration's rejection of his call for separating the bill into separate measures for economic aid and military aid to foreign countries.

The administration bill asked for a total authorization of $3.38 billion for the coming fiscal year, with $2.21 billion for economic aid and $1.17 billion for military assistance.

Morgan said in an interview "I have a very strong feeling that it should be in one package." If it was split into two parts, the Pennsylvania Democrat said, "economic aid would suffer. Everybody is for military assistance, but the economic program has few friends in Congress."

Morgan said Fulbright's main argument against the present form of the bill is that it becomes a "garbage can bill, with a lot of junky amendments. Well, what nobody has pointed out is that the only reason for that is because the laxity of the Senate rules that allow non-germane amendments."

Program to Combat Crime Is Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — An administration program to combat crime is expected to go before congress within a few weeks.

George Reedy, White House press secretary, says details aren't available yet, but President Johnson already has said he will recommend training programs for local officers, ways to improve their use of new scientific techniques and studies to discover the causes of crime.

The President touched on some of these points during the campaign after Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater spoke about violence on the streets.

Embezzlement Charged by Communists

By JOHN O. KOEHLER

BERLIN (AP) — A top East German Communist charged today that West German President Heinrich Luebke was arrested before World War II on suspicion of embezzlement.

Albert Norden, East Germany's top propagandist, told a news conference that the case against Luebke was dropped "on the basis of the amnesty law of Nov. 19, 1935."

Luebke's press officer termed the Communist charges "malicious lies."

"One cannot deny fairy tales," said the press officer, Erich Raederscheidt. He said he could say nothing more until he had studied Norden's full statement.

Norden said Luebke's statement that he had been imprisoned because of his anti-Nazi attitude was a "fairy tale." The news conference was reported by ADN, the official East German news agency.

Norden said it was true that Luebke spent time in Berlin's penitentiary, "but Luebke conceals why he was there for investigation.

"We are in possession of documents of the entire court case against Luebke," Norden continued.

"The highest representative of West Germany was not there because of his anti-Fascist attitude but because of embezzlement of money and for removing documents."

According to the court records, Norden continued, Luebke's brother Fritz was accused of embezzlements when the books were checked at the branch office in Schwerin of the Bauernland Housing Construction. Norden said Fritz Luebke was head of the branch office.

"At the beginning of February 1934, a check was made of the Berlin head office of the company, of which Heinrich Luebke today's federal president — was director," Norden said.

The check showed that Heinrich Luebke "had knowledge of the embezzlements of his brother and had himself committed such offenses," Norden went on.

"Heinrich Luebke was suspended from his job, was apprehended for investigation and was discharged on March 19 from the housing company."

There were 227,000 primary and secondary schools in Russia last year.

Makarios Accused of Not Wanting Unity

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The progovernment paper Eleftheria accused President Makarios of Cyprus today of no longer wanting union of the island with Greece.

A number of foreign commentators have said the same thing in the past, but this was the first time a leading Greek paper had said it.

In an open letter to Makarios, who also is the Greek Orthodox Archbishop of Cyprus, Eleftheria said:

"The Greek people believe that you do not want union with Greece because it would of necessity mean the end of your political career and your return, after the taste of world power, to your melancholy ecclesiastical duties.

"And something else:

"You are afraid that union would mean the extension to Cyprus of the Greek law concerning appropriation and distribution to landless peasants of the large property of the Church of Cyprus, of which you are the leader in addition to being chief of state."

Solon Opposed To Splitting of Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Thomas E. Morgan of the House foreign Affairs Committee said today he is "unalterably opposed" to splitting the foreign aid bill into two parts.

His counterpart, Chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, announced Thursday he would not act as Senate floor manager for the bill this year.

It was understood Fulbright's decision was based on the administration's rejection of his call for separating the bill into separate measures for economic aid and military aid to foreign countries.

The administration bill asked for a total authorization of $3.38 billion for the coming fiscal year, with $2.21 billion for economic aid and $1.17 billion for military assistance.

Morgan said in an interview "I have a very strong feeling that it should be in one package." If it was split into two parts, the Pennsylvania Democrat said, "economic aid would suffer. Everybody is for military assistance, but the economic program has few friends in Congress."

Morgan said Fulbright's main argument against the present form of the bill is that it becomes a "garbage can bill, with a lot of junky amendments. Well, what nobody has pointed out is that the only reason for that is because the laxity of the Senate rules that allow non-germane amendments."

Program to Combat Crime Is Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — An administration program to combat crime is expected to go before congress within a few weeks.

George Reedy, White House press secretary, says details aren't available yet, but President Johnson already has said he will recommend training programs for local officers, ways to improve their use of new scientific techniques and studies to discover the causes of crime.

The President touched on some of these points during the campaign after Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater spoke about violence on the streets.

Embezzlement Charged by Communists

By JOHN O. KOEHLER

BERLIN (AP) — A top East German Communist charged today that West German President Heinrich Luebke was arrested before World War II on suspicion of embezzlement.

Albert Norden, East Germany's top propagandist, told a news conference that the case against Luebke was dropped "on the basis of the amnesty law of Nov. 19, 1935."

Luebke's press officer termed the Communist charges "malicious lies."

"One cannot deny fairy tales," said the press officer, Erich Raederscheidt. He said he could say nothing more until he had studied Norden's full statement.

Norden said Luebke's statement that he had been imprisoned because of his anti-Nazi attitude was a "fairy tale." The news conference was reported by ADN, the official East German news agency.

Norden said it was true that Luebke spent time in Berlin's penitentiary, "but Luebke conceals why he was there for investigation.

"We are in possession of documents of the entire court case against Luebke," Norden continued.

"The highest representative of West Germany was not there because of his anti-Fascist attitude but because of embezzlement of money and for removing documents."

According to the court records, Norden continued, Luebke's brother Fritz was accused of embezzlements when the books were checked at the branch office in Schwerin of the Bauernland Housing Construction. Norden said Fritz Luebke was head of the branch office.

"At the beginning of February 1934, a check was made of the Berlin head office of the company, of which Heinrich Luebke today's federal president — was director," Norden said.

The check showed that Heinrich Luebke "had knowledge of the embezzlements of his brother and had himself committed such offenses," Norden went on.

"Heinrich Luebke was suspended from his job, was apprehended for investigation and was discharged on March 19 from the housing company."

There were 227,800 primary and secondary schools in Russia last year.

H. L. Hunt Writes

A wave of fear flows about the vindictive action President Johnson may take for which there is no factual basis.

Being a part-time Republican I talked to Republican senators before supporting Lyndon Johnson for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1960.

The great Styles Bridges (R-N. H.) whose contact with Johnson was close in opposing him in the Senate, told me he was a fair and dependable opponent, as did other top Republicans.

The campaign between John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson for the Democratic nomination was spirited, to put it mildly. But when Kennedy won, Johnson promptly accepted Kennedy's request to take the second spot on the ticket although his supporters almost without exception vigorously opposed Johnson abandoning control of Congress to accept the second spot.

The ticket would have had little chance of winning had he not made this personal sacrifice of position in public life.

This is only one of innumerable situations during Johnson's 23 years in Congress when he showed to be most cooperative, not vindictive. If vindictive, Johnson is in poor position to exact revenge. Faced with serious trouble spots throughout the world, he has an unwieldy majority in Congress including members of minorities which bitterly fought his selection even for veep.

Today President Johnson needs the help not the fear of nearly all contingents in public life and he is wise enough about getting things done to know it and to appreciate the help he can get.

Slump in Steel Seen Despite Current Boom

By ROGER LANE

NEW YORK (AP) — Glowing financial and production statistics of the steel industry, thundering along at nearly full speed, have ominous between the lines meaning.

Read expertly, the message is there unmistakably — slump ahead.

It also says: A climb in steel imports and, in a little hazier lettering, either squeezed prof- in 1965 or higher prices that could trigger a skirmish with the government.

Fear of a springtime steel strike is at the root of the trouble.

The slump, depending on how severe, conceivably could throw the nation's economic expansion off stride. And if price action occurs, inflationary implications also are possible.

What the glowing figures say between the lines is that big steel users —auto, appliance, machinery makers and the like — are inflating orders, and have been for months, to stockpile steel as a hedge against a possible strike by United Steel workers after May 1.

When, and if, the strike threat is past, they naturally will start using up swollen reserves and cut back orders at the mill. Steel production, employment and profits then can be expected to fall abruptly.

Steel executives are keenly aware of the situation. They say they are powerless to deal with it.

"(Stockpiling) creates an artificial stimulus to the steel industry during the accumulation phase and an artificial depression during the working off phase," Edmund F. Martin,, board chairman of Bethlehem Steel Corp., said Wednesday.

Greatly complicating the situation is a moratorium in USW-steel company wage contract negotiations caused by election campaign quarreling within the union. USW balloting in a contest for top offices is scheduled Feb. 8, with the outcome expected to be close — possibly indecisive.

Roger M. Blough, board chairman of U.S. Steel Corp., estimated that inventories gradually had been increased by 5 million tons or so by Dec. 31, and that another 5 or 6 million tons would be added to stockpiles by April 30, boosting the total to about 26 million tons (equal to four months' consumption in 1963).

Ministers Battle Sweepstakes Plan

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — A delegation of 36 ministers and church officials have vowed to fight a measure pending before the State Legislature for a sweepstakes in West Virginia.

The delegation urged all churches around the state to write their representatives to oppose the measure, calling for voters to decide next year on the proposed constitutional amendment.

A sweepstakes, the ministers said, would "exploit the weaknesses" of the people. Proponents say profits from a sweepstakes would help pay increased education costs.

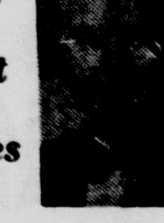
H. L. Hunt Writes



A wave of fear flows about the vindictive action President Johnson may take for which there is no factual basis.

Being a part-time Republican I talked to Republican senators before supporting Lyndon Johnson for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1960.

The great Styles Bridges (R-N. H.) whose contact with Johnson was close in opposing him in the Senate, told me he was a fair and dependable opponent, as did other top Republicans.

The campaign between John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson for the Democratic nomination was spirited, to put it mildly. But when Kennedy won, Johnson promptly accepted Kennedy's request to take the second spot on the ticket although his supporters almost without exception vigorously opposed Johnson abandoning control of Congress to accept the second spot.

The ticket would have had little chance of winning had he not made this personal sacrifice of position in public life.

This is only one of innumerable situations during Johnson's 23 years in Congress when he showed to be most cooperative, not vindictive. If vindictive, Johnson is in poor position to exact revenge. Faced with serious trouble spots throughout the world, he has an unwieldy majority in Congress including members of minorities which bitterly fought his selection even for veep.

Today · President Johnson needs the help not the fear of nearly all contingents in public life and he is wise enough about getting things done to know it and to appreciate the help he can get.

She was assisted by Mrs. Jack Davis, Irma Tesker, Maxine VanArsdale, Eunice Blessing and Florence Salisbury. Lion Paul Blessing showed slides on a Caribbean Sea Cruise, which was very interesting. The meeting was attended by about 25 members. Guests were Laurette Madsen and Dorothy Houchin.

Den 4, Cub Scouts, held their meeting at the Fellowship Hall in the Church in the Wildwood Thursday, with Mollie Lutz, their leader. The boys played games and put Christmas card puzzles together. Ricky Mallett brought the refreshments.

Slump in Steel Seen Despite Current Boom

By ROGER LANE

NEW YORK (AP) — Glowing financial and production statistics of the steel industry, thundering along at nearly full speed, have ominous between the lines meaning.

Read expertly, the message is there unmistakably — slump ahead.

It also says: A climb in steel imports and, in a little hazier lettering, either squeezed profits in 1965 or higher prices that could trigger a skirmish with the government.

The slump, depending on how severe, conceivably could throw the nation's economic expansion off stride. And if price action occurs, inflationary implications also are possible.

What the glowing figures say between the lines is that big steel users —auto, appliance, machinery makers and the like — are inflating orders, and have been for months, to stockpile steel as a hedge against a possible strike by United Steel workers after May 1.

When, and if, the strike threat is past, they naturally will start using up swollen reserves and cut back orders at the mill. Steel production, employment and profits then can be expected to fall abruptly.

Steel executives are keenly aware of the situation. They say they are powerless to deal with it.

"(Stockpiling) creates an artificial stimulus to the steel industry during the accumulation phase and an artificial depression during the working off phase," Edmund F. Martin,, board chairman of Bethlehem Steel Corp., said Wednesday.

Greatly complicating the situation is a moratorium in USW-steel company wage contract negotiations caused by election campaign quarreling within the union. USW balloting in a contest for top offices is scheduled Feb. 8, with the outcome expected to be close — possibly indecisive.

Roger M. Blough, board chairman of U.S. Steel Corp., estimated that inventories gradually had been increased by 5 million tons or so by Dec. 31, and that another 5 or 6 million tons would be added to stockpiles by April 30, boosting the total to about 26 million tons (equal to four months' consumption in 1963).

Ministers Battle Sweepstakes Plan

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — A delegation of 36 ministers and church officials have vowed to fight a measure pending before the State Legislature for a sweepstakes in West Virginia.

The delegation urged all churches around the state to write their representatives to oppose the measure, calling for voters to decide next year on the proposed constitutional amendment.

A sweepstakes, the ministers said, would "exploit the weaknesses" of the people. Proponents say profits from a sweepstakes would help pay increased education costs.

BOMBAY — Because of factual errors 300,000 copies of a school text have been scrapped.

Billie Sol Reads Bible to Prisoners

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Life in jail for Billie Sol Estes is reading the Bible to fellow prisoners, mopping the small concrete floor around his bed and occasionally calling his wife collect.

Sheriff Mike Sullivan drew this picture of the former West Texas farm tycoon as Estes ended more than a week in the El Paso County Jail Wednesday.

The one-time Pecos promoter was jailed Jan. 19 after the Supreme Court refused to hear his appeal of a 15-year prison sentence for mail fraud and his $10,000 bond was revoked.

Estes has been permitted only estes has ben permited only two visitors — Paul W. Slone and Slone's wife, Ercel. Slone uses Estes' name in an import-export business here.

Taylor Must Stay in Viet Nam, U.S. Says

Premier Nguyen Xuan Oanh a clean sweep of the preceding government.

It is noted that the change has made the political situation in Saigon more uncertain and has delayed decisions on the battle against the Viet Cong guerrillas.

Washington recognizes that an anti-American trend was developing in some parts of the country and that some Buddhist leaders feel they are at the mercy of the big nations that have a stake in the outcome of the war.

The U.S. attitude, officials here say, is that if South Viet Nam is sufficiently determined, its government will get effective U.S. help.

If this determination is not forthcoming from the leadership, it will be difficult for anyone to help them, the officials said.

The administration's attitude also was reflected by Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on the Far East.

After a 2½-hour briefing Thursday by William P. Bundy, assistant secretary of state in charge of Far Eastern affairs, Zablocki said: "When Gen. Nguyen Khanh was the head of the Viet Nam government, he stated he would try to develop a civilian government that could obtain broad popular support.

"I am hopeful that on his second try he will do better and will go forward with his announced plans to have a workable civilian-type government.

"Whoever is the leader now or in the future will have inherent problems with factions of politicians, religious differences and the jealousies and prejudices of one group contending against another."

Zablocki said the United States "Must exercise patience and determination to help so long as South viet Nam is seeking our assistance."

He said that there seems to be no substance to rumors that Khanh or other military leaders have made a deal with British leaders that would lead to the neutralization of South Viet Nam.

The Wisconsin legislator added it would be "Unthinkable" to remove Taylor.

"He is doing a good job, as he was told to do," Zablocki said. "There is no reason for our government to recall him or for him to be asked to leave by South Viet Nam."

Zablocki said the differences between Khanh and Taylor are not of a scope or importance that would make it impossible for them to work together.

Exalted Cyclops Of Klan Arrested For Bombings

Vanceboro.

A Klan charter, issued June 4, 1964 by Imperial Wizard Robert M. Shelton of Tuscaloosa, Ala., was found in Mills' home. It identified Mills as "exalted cyclops" of the New Bern unit.

The arrests climaxed an all-out effort by the FBI, the state bureau of Investigation and local law enforcement officers to solve the state's first reported incident of racial violence in more than a year.

FBI help in the case was requested by local authorities and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

Gov. Dan K. Moore issued a statement deploring the incident and offering the full services of state police agencies.

Three explosions rocked this quiet eastern Carolina town Sunday evening while more than 300 Negroes met at the St. Peter's A.M.E. Zion church Sunday. The first, about 8:30 p.m., damaged the car of Negro attorney Julius Chambers. The car was parked near the church.

About a half-hour later, a similar explosion damaged another parked car, belonging to C. B. Chadwick Sr. of Pollocksville, chairman of the Jones County NAACP chapter. Both were attending the meeting to discuss the 1964 civil rights law.

Then, at about 9:25 p.m., a third explosion blew in the door of [illegible] Dove's mortuary, [illegible] distance from the church. Dove has been a member of the [illegible] for 18 years.

WHO'S IN CHARGE—Col. Jesse E. Stay, a Pentagon Information Officer, turned up at the Air Force Academy Thursday to give Col. Richard Haney "another pair of hands," he said. However, the Pentagon officer did most of the talking at a news conference and with his arrival, came no admittance signs to public information offices, a requirement that all questions be submitted in writing and a ruling that no statements would be made in the mornings, plus other typical Pentagon red tape. but showed little interest.

A military tribunal convicted Khuyen Thursday of terrorism. He wa a student of the Catholic Hung Dao school, but police said he told them he had no religion.

Leaflets were scattered through Saigon streets today demanding the return of Tran Van Huong as premier and urging support of U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor.

The leaflets, titled "South Viet Nam to the South Vietnamese," objected to Huong's overthrow Wednesday in a military coup staged by Khanh and his generals. Huong is a South Vietnamese, while most of the pressure against him was from North Vietnamese Buddhist monks and political factions. Taylor came under fire for his support of Huong.

Acting Premier Nguyen Xuan Oanh, put in office Thursday by Khanh, issued the order releasing persons arrested in disorders since Jan. 20.

During the morning in Saigon, authorities freed 85 Buddhist nuns, 79 monks, 132 students and 153 other persons.

Thich Tri Quang, a major Buddhist leader and one of five monks who fasted eight days until Huong was ousted, spoke today to the Vietnamese editors of Saigon's two English-language newspapers about the demonstrations and the anti-American tone which they developed.

"There is no such thing as anti-Americanism," the monk said. "One can only be anti-American if one is Communist or chauvinistic. Buddhism being neither Communist nor chauvinistic, there is no anti-Americanism.

"But there is some resentment, for America misunderstands the whole problem. The recent troubles are internal political developments of Viet Nam. When people hated Mr. Huong, anyone who supported him inevitably received a share of that hate."

But a Buddhist student spokesman, 400 miles north of Saigon, said his group still was not satisfied. He said they demanded expulsion of Ambassador Taylor and punishment of Huong and national police chief Tran Thanh Ben.

Academy Clamps Lid on Scandal Information

in the Pentagon officer at what would be considered the day's only news conference and Col. Jesse E. Stay did most of the talking.

All questions were met with "Put it in writing" — a new rule.

"We are bound by two restrictions," Col. Stay said. "We must protect the integrity of this investigation and we must protect the rights of the individual cadets."

The only problem was that 99 per cent of the questions seemed to fall into these categories as they were answered with "no comment" or "we can't answer that question."

Reporters handed in a wide variety of questions which ranged from how many cadets are actually involved to the asking price for the stolen exams.

Nearly all the questions, which were submitted in writing, in duplicate, were handed in before noon. Some were still waiting for answers at 4:15 p.m.

Col. Stay said that this process would be speeded up because a direct teletype to the Pentagon had been installed, but the answers still came slowly and usually marked "we can't answer that."

Reporters learned that the Academy planned to stick by its policy of not releasing names — nothing new. They couldn't find out if cadets would be retaliated against if their parents discussed the scandal.

Tempers were short during the brief conference as tight-lipped officials met questions and demands with "put it in writing." Reporters cooled their heels as they were told an announcement would be made at 10:30 a.m. Then they were informed it would come before noon. This was changed to 2 p.m. and finally to 3:30 p.m.

The actual announcement was handed to them at 4:10.

At times, the morning conference bordered on the ridiculous. Col. Haney said that there might not be any statement, but then again there might.

"Will there be a statement saying that you intend to issue no statement," one reporter asked.

It was answered with a serious "no comment."

Nuclear Weapons Security Said To Be Lagging

trast, the Atomic Commission, responsible for designing and developing these all-important weapons, rates this information of highest sensitivity.

— The Navy's allowing foreign military officers to make inspection visits of nuclear submarines. The Joint Committee has disapproved of this for some time, on the ground the Navy may be too lax and the foreign visitors may be seeing too much.

The Defense Department's laxness in safeguarding nuclear weapons design information is singularly inexplicable as it's in direct violation of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954.

This law requires the military services to have security regulations comparable to those of the Atomic Commission where arms information is involved.

The commission regards weapons design information as of utmost importance and imposes stringent secrecy to guard it. Individuals having access to such data not only must undergo a full-scale background investigation, but are carefully hand-selected and have to be certified as "needing to know" this "critical" information.

The Defense Department, on the other hand, pursues an entirely different policy — in direct contradiction of the 1954 Act. The military do not require personnel to undergo a thorough background check, and access to this data is available to anyone with a relatively low security clearance.

These serious Defense Department security shortcomings have come under sharp fire by Senator Clinton Anderson, D-N. M., twice chairman of the Joint Atomic Committee and now head of its key Security Subcommittee.

The veteran congressional leader bluntly charged that while the military are directly disregarding the law in protecting the security of vital nuclear to prevent the airing of blunders and other embarrassing disclosures.

"Too often," declared Anderson, "I have seen evidence that security classification is used as a cover to prevent embarrassing information coming to light."

Anderson made his revealing indictment in an unnoticed address before the New Mexico Press Association. Noting that he is a one-time "working newspaperman" and has long been a "strong advocate of protecting real secrets," he stressed that the public has the right to know the truth.

"I have found it necessary from time to time," said Anderson, "to be critical of our government's secrecy practices. While I have repeatedly pointed out that the condition of the world unquestionably justifies certain secrecy practices, I have found it necessary on occasions during the past five or six years to criticize abuses of the secrecy system in atomic energy and other areas."

240 Strikers Go Back to Work At NORAD Site

(NLRB) for determination. Until this board makes a decision, which could take 10 days, the electricisns will use the crane.

After this agreement there was still a strike. It seems the electricians were moving the crane into the tunnel forthe day's work when the job steward told them to get off.

He was fired for violating the three-way agreement between the construction workers, electricians and NLRB. The firing was done by Kenneth Rennar, the project manager for Grafe-Wallace-Foster. This was on Jan 20.

There were meetings and the job steward was allowed to return to work.

However, the steward demanded full back pay, saying he was fully reinstated, he was sent away and the strike was on.

"It was simply a jurisdictional matter that more or less precipitated this," explained Beeson.

"A prolonged strike of this type could set back the completion time of the project," he commented, "but not a strike this short." he said the lost time could probably be made up.

General Motors Notes Highest Profits in Year

DETROIT (AP) — The highest profits of any company in history were earned by General Motors Corp. in 1964 for the third straight year and despite strikes that idled United States auto production lines for nearly six weeks.

GM, the world's largest manufacturing firm, said Thursday it earned $1.735 billion, equal to $6.05 a share, compared with $1.592 billion, or $5.56 a share, in 1963.

The GM profits were some $34 million higher than the $1,700,967,000 earned in the 12 months ended last Nov. 30 by American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

GM, which said the figures were preliminary with final figures to be announced next month, reported it paid out $1.266 billion in dividends last year to its common shareholders. This represented $4.45 a share with $1.60 retained for reinvestment, compared to $4 a share with $1.56 retained in 1963.

Chairman Frederick G. Donner and President John F. Gordon also reported 1964 sales at $17 billion, a gain of 3 per cent over the previous record of $16.5 billion set in 1963.

They said GM worldwide payrolls totaled $4.6 billion in 1964, compared with $4.3 billion in 1963, with employment averaging 661,000, 21,000 more than the previous high of 640,000 in 1963.

A total of 6,114,000 cars and trucks were sold, compared to the previous high of 5,974,000 in 1963.

GM said it paid U.S. and foreign incomes taxes totaling $1.549 billion, compared with $1.7762 billion in 1963, the drop reflected a cut in the U.S. corporation tax rate from 52 to 50 per cent.

Firecrackers Can Cause Hearing Loss

TANGIER, Va. (AP) — A team of speech and hearing experts arrived on isolated Tangier Island this week on a field trip expecting to find the islanders' hearing was better than average.

Studies in other remote areas, said Dr. John S. Horner, had shown the residents have better hearing than urban dwellers who are subjected daily to loud noise.

Two days later, the six-member team said it was stunned by the tests — the hearing of the men and boys on the small island in Chesapeake Bay was worse than average.

But the women and girls showed no ear damage.

"When we started turning up signs of acoustic trauma in boys under 16, and even a few 8-year-olds, we started asking a lot of questions," Dr. Horner said.

"But we discovered that the favorite sports of the boys on Tangier is playing with firecrackers," said Dr. Ralph Bralley. "That alone can cause hearing loss."

In testing adult males, all but a few of whom earn a living on the water, "We found so much ear damage we began to suspect the crab boat engines," said Bralley.

The engines were found to put forth 102 decibels of sound. The doctors said that 95 decibels will cause ear fatigue almost immediately, and prolonged exposure will cause permanent damage.

The team also discovered that boys start firing guns —another cause of ear damage — when they are about eight years old.

The two doctors, assistant professor of speech and pathology and audiology at the University of Virginia, gave this prescription to prevent ear damage on the island: Ear plugs for the hunters, mufflers for the boat engines (or more ear plugs for the boat operators) and a fast end to the firecrackers.

Chicago Police Worried About Sales of Guns

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH

CHICAGO (AP) — Continuing illegal gun sales are haunting authorities in Chicago.

Police say they confiscate 700 guns a month from citizens accused of unlawful use or possession of weapons.

"We almost never find that any of these guns were registered with us," says Capt. Patrik Needham, director of records and communication, who added that he has more than 500,000 gun registrations on file.

An agent of the Alcohol, Tobacco and Tax Dvision of the U.S. Treasury Department had this comment: "There are so many sources, it's impossible to pinpoint the number of weapons. In Illinois the number would be tremendous — but it's a national problem too."

Interest in the traffic was revived recently when Willie E. Engram, 23, of Chicago, was convicted of illegally selling 800 revolvers within a 10-month period. He was sentenced Dec. 18 to five years' probation.

But the problem continues to exist, and police are almost powerless to deal with it, says the assistant U.S. attorney who prosecuted the case.

"There's always a reason why someone will buy a gun and doesn't want anybody to know about it," said the attorney, Richard T. Sikes, in an interview Thursday.

"Engram was willing to sell to anybody and everybody who had $16," Sikes said, adding that many of the guns he sold turned up in police cases.

Engram bought the weapons from a Texas mail-order company and sold them in Chicago without a federal license, Sikes said.

The illegal traffic in weapons flourishes, Needham said, because "the Chicago Police Department almost never approves the purchase of a gun. We've never been convinced of the need to furnish a person with a gun."

Along with the mail-order sales of guns, Needham said, "there are no laws on this matter in the state or outside of Chicago."

"My kid could send in $10 and get a 22-caliber revolver," he said.

Two Children Recover After Aspirin Coma

By BURT WITTRUP

CLOVIS, N.M. (AP) — Little David talked and Ramona opened her eyes.

The five-day vigil for Mr. and Mrs. Arturo Maestas was broken with smiles and sleep as their 3-year-old son and 21-month-old daughter each came out of a coma Thursday at Clovis Memorial Hospital.

The youngsters still were on the critical list but were improved after an ordeal that began Saturday night after the youngsters and their 4-year-old sister, Irene, found a bottle of aspirin in a dresser drawer. The parents said that the three may have eaten as many as 80 aspirin.

The mother, Julia, 23, stayed near the hospital room door as doctors twice made complete changes of Ramona's blood. David didn't need a blood change but remained in a coma. Irene was released after two days in the hospital.

"It's much better now," said the father, 26, "Little David talked and Ramona looked at us like she wanted to talk."

Maestas, a $72-a-week laborer, kept watch at the hospital Thursday night when his wife went home for her first full night's rest since the ordeal began.

Maestas smiled but his face still showed the strain of the long wait in hospital corridors.

"Now it'll get better," he said.

Hospital administrator Monroe Owens said Ramona and David would remain on the critical list until doctors were certain the danger was past.

A Klan charter, issued June 4, 1964 by Imperial Wizard Robert M. Shelton of Tuscaloosa, Ala., was found in Mills' home. It identified Mills as "exalted cyclops" of the New Bern unit.

The arrests climaxed an all-out effort by the FBI, the state bureau of Investigation and local law enforcement officers to solve the state's first reported incident of racial violence in more than a year.

FBI help in the case was requested by local authorities and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

Gov. Dan K. Moore issued a statement deploring the incident and offering the full services of state police agencies.

Three explosions rocked this quiet eastern Carolina town Sunday evening while more than 300 Negroes met at the St. Peter's A.M.E. Zion church Sunday. The first, about 8:30 p.m., damaged the car of Negro attorney Julius Chambers. The car was parked near the church.

About a half-hour later, a similar explosion damaged another parked car, belonging to C. B. Chadwick Sr. of Pollocksville, chairman of the Jones County NAACP chapter. Both were attending the meeting to discuss the 1964 civil rights law.

WHO'S IN CHARGE—Col. Jesse E. Stay, a Pentagon Information Officer, turned up at the Air Force Academy Thursday to give Col. Richard Haney "another pair of hands," he said. However, the Pentagon officer did most of the talking at a news conference and with his arrival, came no admittance signs to public information offices, a requirement that all questions be submitted in writing and a ruling that no statements would be made in the mornings, plus other typical Pentagon red tape. but showed little interest.

A military tribunal convicted Khuyen Thursday of terrorism. He wa a student of the Catholic Hung Dao school, but police said he told them he had no religion.

Leaflets were scattered through Saigon streets today demanding the return of Tran Van Huong as premier and urging support of U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor.

The leaflets, titled "South Viet Nam to the South Vietnamese," objected to Huong's overthrow Wednesday in a military coup staged by Khanh and his generals. Huong is a South Vietnamese, while most of the pressure against him was from North Vietnamese Buddhist monks and political factions. Taylor came under fire for his support of Huong.

Acting Premier Nguyen Xuan Oanh, put in office Thursday by Khanh, issued the order releasing persons arrested in disorders since Jan. 20.

During the morning in Saigon, authorities freed 85 Buddhist nuns, 79 monks, 132 students and 153 other persons.

Thich Tri Quang, a major Buddhist leader and one of five monks who fasted eight days until Huong was ousted, spoke today to the Vietnamese editors of Saigon's two English-language newspapers about the demonstrations and the anti-American tone which they developed.

"There is no such thing as anti-Americanism," the monk said. "One can only be anti-American if one is Communist or chauvinistic. Buddhism being neither Communist nor chauvinistic, there is no anti-Americanism.

"But there is some resentment, for America misunderstands the whole problem. The recent troubles are internal political developments of Viet Nam. When people hated Mr. Huong, anyone who supported him inevitably received a share of that hate."

But a Buddhist student spokesman, 400 miles north of Saigon, said his group still was not satisfied. He said they demanded expulsion of Ambassador Taylor and punishment of Huong and national police chief Tran Thanh Ben.

Academy Clamps Lid on Scandal Information

in the Pentagon officer at what would be considered the day's only news conference and Col. Jesse E. Stay did most of the talking.

All questions were met with "Put it in writing" — a new rule.

"We are bound by two restrictions," Col. Stay said. "We must protect the integrity of this investigation and we must protect the rights of the individual cadets."

The only problem was that 99 per cent of the questions seemed to fall into these categories as they were answered with "no comment" or "we can't answer that question."

Reporters handed in a wide variety of questions which ranged from how many cadets are actually involved to the asking price for the stolen exams.

Nearly all the questions, which were submitted in writing, in duplicate, were handed in before noon. Some were still waiting for answers at 4:15 p.m.

Col. Stay said that this process would be speeded up because a direct teletype to the Pentagon had been installed, but the answers still came slowly and usually marked "we can't answer that."

Reporters learned that the Academy planned to stick by its policy of not releasing names — nothing new. They couldn't find out if cadets would be retaliated against if their parents discussed the scandal.

Tempers were short during the brief conference as tight-lipped officials met questions and demands with "put it in writing." Reporters cooled their heels as they were told an announcement would be made at 10:30 a.m. Then they were informed it would come before noon. This was changed to 2 p.m. and finally to 3:30 p.m.

The actual announcement was handed to them at 4:10.

At times, the morning conference bordered on the ridiculous. Col. Haney said that there might not be any statement, but then again there might.

"Will there be a statement saying that you intend to issue no statement," one reporter asked.

It was answered with a serious "no comment."

Nuclear Weapons Security Said To Be Lagging

trast, the Atomic Commission, responsible for designing and developing these all-important weapons, rates this information of highest sensitivity.

— The Navy's allowing foreign military officers to make inspection visits of nuclear submarines. The Joint Committee has disapproved of this for some time, on the ground the Navy may be too lax and the foreign visitors may be seeing too much.

The Defense Department's laxness in safeguarding nuclear weapons design information is singularly inexplicable as it's in direct violation of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954.

This law requires the military services to have security regulations comparable to those of the Atomic Commission where arms information is involved.

The commission regards weapons design information as of utmost importance and imposes stringent secrecy to guard it. Individuals having access to such data not only must undergo a full-scale background investigation, but are carefully hand-selected and have to be certified as "needing to know" this "critical" information.

The Defense Department, on the other hand, pursues an entirely different policy — in direct contradiction of the 1954 Act. The military do not require personnel to undergo a thorough background check, and access to this data is available to anyone with a relatively low security clearance.

These serious Defense Department security shortcomings have come under sharp fire by Senator Clinton Anderson, D-N. M., twice chairman of the Joint Atomic Committee and now head of its key Security Subcommittee.

The veteran congressional leader bluntly charged that while the military are directly disregarding the law in protecting the security of vital nuclear to prevent the airing of blunders and other embarrassing disclosures.

"Too often," declared Anderson, "I have seen evidence that security classification is used as a cover to prevent embarrassing information coming to light."

Anderson made his revealing indictment in an unnoticed address before the New Mexico Press Association. Noting that he is a one-time "working newspaperman" and has long been a "strong advocate of protecting real secrets," he stressed that the public has the right to know the truth.

"I have found it necessary from time to time," said Anderson, "to be critical of our government's secrecy practices. While I have repeatedly pointed out that the condition of the world unquestionably justifies certain secrecy practices, I have found it necessary on occasions during the past five or six years to criticize abuses of the secrecy system in atomic energy and other areas."

After this agreement there was still a strike. It seems the electricians were moving the crane into the tunnel forthe day's work when the job steward told them to get off.

He was fired for violating the three-way agreement between the construction workers, electricians and NLRB. The firing was done by Kenneth Rennar, the project manager for Grafe-Wallace-Foster. This was on Jan 20.

There were meetings and the job steward was allowed to return to work.

However, the steward demanded full back pay, saying he was fully reinstated, he was sent away and the strike was on.

"It was simply a jurisdictional matter that more or less precipitated this," explained Beeson.

"A prolonged strike of this type could set back the completion time of the project," he commented "but not a strike this short." he said the lost time could probably be made up.

General Motors Notes Highest Profits in Year

DETROIT (AP) — The highest profits of any company in history were earned by General Motors Corp. in 1964 for the third straight year and despite strikes that idled United States auto production lines for nearly six weeks.

GM, the world's largest manufacturing firm, said Thursday it earned $1.735 billion, equal to $6.05 a share, compared with $1.592 billion, or $5.56 a share, in 1963.

The GM profits were some $34 million higher than the $1,700,967,000 earned in the 12 months ended last Nov. 30 by American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

GM, which said the figures were preliminary with final figures to be announced next month, reported it paid out $1.266 billion in dividends last year to its common shareholders. This represented $4.45 a share with $1.60 retained for reinvestment, compared to $4 a share with $1.56 retained in 1963.

Chairman Frederick G. Donner and President John F. Gordon also reported 1964 sales at $17 billion, a gain of 3 per cent over the previous record of $16.5 billion set in 1963.

They said GM worldwide payrolls totaled $4.6 billion in 1964, compared with $4.3 billion in 1963, with employment averaging 661,000, 21,000 more than the previous high of 640,000 in 1963.

A total of 6,114,000 cars and trucks were sold, compared to the previous high of 5,974,000 in 1963.

GM said it paid U.S. and foreign incomes taxes totaling $1.549 billion, compared with $1.7762 billion in 1963, the drop reflected a cut in the U.S. corporation tax rate from 52 to 50 per cent.

Firecrackers Can Cause Hearing Loss

TANGIER, Va. (AP) — A team of speech and hearing experts arrived on isolated Tangier Island this week on a field trip expecting to find the islanders' hearing was better than average.

Studies in other remote areas, said Dr. John S. Horner, had shown the residents have better hearing than urban dwellers who are subjected daily to loud noise.

Two days later, the six-member team said it was stunned by the tests — the hearing of the men and boys on the small island in Chesapeake Bay was worse than average.

But the women and girls showed no ear damage.

"When we started turning up signs of acoustic trauma in boys under 16, and even a few 8-year-olds, we started asking a lot of questions," Dr. Horner said.

"But we discovered that the favorite sports of the boys on Tangier is playing with firecrackers," said Dr. Ralph Bralley. "That alone can cause hearing loss."

In testing adult males, all but a few of whom earn a living on the water, "We found so much ear damage we began to suspect the crab boat engines," said Bralley.

The engines were found to put forth 102 decibels of sound. The doctors said that 95 decibels will cause ear fatigue almost immediately, and prolonged exposure will cause permanent damage.

The team also discovered that boys start firing guns —another cause of ear damage — when they are about eight years old.

The two doctors, assistant professor of speech and pathology and audiology at the University of Virginia, gave this prescription to prevent ear damage on the island: Ear plugs for the hunters, mufflers for the boat engines (or more ear plugs for the boat operators) and a fast end to the firecrackers.

Chicago Police Worried About Sales of Guns

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH

CHICAGO (AP) — Continuing illegal gun sales are haunting authorities in Chicago.

Police say they confiscate 700 guns a month from citizens accused of unlawful use or possession of weapons.

"We almost never find that any of these guns were registered with us," says Capt. Patrik Needham, director of records and communication, who added that he has more than 500,000 gun registrations on file.

An agent of the Alcohol, Tobacco and Tax Dvision of the U.S. Treasury Department had this comment: "There are so many sources, it's impossible to pinpoint the number of weapons. In Illinois the number would be tremendous — but it's a national problem too."

Interest in the traffic was revived recently when Willie E. Engram, 23, of Chicago, was convicted of illegally selling 800 revolvers within a 10-month period. He was sentenced Dec. 18 to five years' probation.

But the problem continues to exist, and police are almost powerless to deal with it, says the assistant U.S. attorney who prosecuted the case.

"There's always a reason why someone will buy a gun and doesn't want anybody to know about it," said the attorney, Richard T. Sikes, in an interview Thursday.

"Engram was willing to sell to anybody and everybody who had $16," Sikes said, adding that many of the guns he sold turned up in police cases.

Engram bought the weapons from a Texas mail-order company and sold them in Chicago without a federal license, Sikes said.

The illegal traffic in weapons flourishes, Needham said, because "the Chicago Police Department almost never approves the purchase of a gun. We've never been convinced of the need to furnish a person with a gun."

Along with the mail-order sales of guns, Needham said, "there are no laws on this matter in the state or outside of Chicago."

"My kid could send in $10 and get a 22-caliber revolver," he said.

Two Children Recover After Aspirin Coma

By BURT WITTRUP

CLOVIS, N.M. (AP) — Little David talked and Ramona opened her eyes.

The five-day vigil for Mr. and Mrs. Arturo Maestas was broken with smiles and sleep as their 3-year-old son and 21-month-old daughter each came out of a coma Thursday at Clovis Memorial Hospital.

The youngsters still were on the critical list but were improved after an ordeal that began Saturday night after the youngsters and their 4-year-old sister, Irene, found a bottle of aspirin in a dresser drawer. The parents said that the three may have eaten as many as 80 aspirin.

The mother, Julia, 23, stayed near the hospital room door as doctors twice made complete changes of Ramona's blood. David didn't need a blood change but remained in a coma. Irene was released after two days in the hospital.

"It's much better now," said the father, 26, "Little David talked and Ramona looked at us like she wanted to talk."

Maestas, a $72-a-week laborer, kept watch at the hospital Thursday night when his wife went home for her first full night's rest since the ordeal began.

Maestas smiled but his face still showed the strain of the long wait in hospital corridors.

"Now it'll get better," he said.

Hospital administrator Monroe Owens said Ramona and David would remain on the critical list until doctors were certain the danger was past.

Hunting and Fishing

By DICK MOORE

The 13th annual meeting of the Colorado Wildlife Federation was held recently at the Sentry Denver Motel.

Richard Eckles, director of natural resources of the governor's office gave the welcome address. He called attention to the State's activity in reducing pollution from mines and mills; the Governor's request for an increase in the budget for the Game, Fish & Park Dept.; the outdoor recreation program; access to public lands; and the coal strip-mined land restoration program.

President Christiansen reported on his many activities during the year including, attendance at 93 meetings; 5,000 miles of travel; attendance at three Affiliate Club meetings, and at the Colorado Wildlife federal, board meetings.

Panel Discussion. First Vice-President Jack Wagar opened the panel discussion entitled: "Colorado and the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act."

W. W. Dresskell, regional director of the bureau of outdoor recreation was pleased that CWF is taking leadership in outdoor recreation, and backing the 'infant' program. The Land and Water Conservation Fund Act is the biggest step in developing outdoor recreation.

The Outdoor Recreation Resources Review Commission found that the States were not fulfilling their responsibilities, and on certain Federal areas, sale of surplus federal property, and the motor boat fuel tax (plus Federal Loans for the initial years. From the fund, 40 per cent goes to the federal agencies for acquisition only, and 60 per cent to the states on a matching basis. Allocations to the States are available for planning, acquisition, and development, but not for operation and maintenance. To participate the States must have a comprehensive plan satisfactory to the Secretary of the Interior.

Harry Woodward, director of Colorado Game, Fish & Parks Dept., stated that outdoor recreation will not be solved at any one level, or by any agency alone. Private industry must meet the needs for services. Planning is the No. 1, and stupendous job. Acquisition must be in the right place—usually within 2 hours travel of large municipalities. Present plans are that 50 per cent of the Federal Funds will be allocated to local governmental agencies.

Ronald Strahle, member at large of the Game, Fish and Parks Commission, emphasized that the game cash fund is not available for parks, that general fund finances are likely to be inadequate; that the Game Fish and Parks Consolidation Act authorized fees for State Park use, but the Senate passed a resolution opposing use fees; that a suggestion may be made for revenue bonds to get development under way.

He is convinced that the people of Colorado want significant outdoor recreation plan, and that the legislation will see that it is implemented.

George F. Jackson, State Representative pointed out that local governments may have to provide some of the matching funds. With a shift from rural to urban legislation he looks for stronger support for recreation. In connection with acquisition, we must be prepared to show that loss of property taxes will be offset by the economic returns from business.

In summarizing the panel discussions, Jack Wagar urged CWF members to contact their county and municipal officers to have them start on the local planning which is a requisite for financial participation; and said "Let's keep out of geographical jealousies."

There were eight affiliate members and four associate members elected to the board. Les Cornforth, from the Jimmy Camp Club, and Dean Pulliam of the Rampart Range Club (Air Force Academy) were both elected for a two year term.

All of the officers were reelected for one term. They are as follows.

President; A. J. Christiansen, Wheatridge, 1st Vice-President, J. V. K. Wagar, Fort Collins, 2nd Vice-President, Herb Hockstrasser, Fort Morgan, 3rd Vice-President, G. E. Kimble, Swink, 4th Vice-President, L. W. Hunnicut, Rangely, Secretary: Ralph R. Hill, Denver, Treasurer; Wayne Manaugh, Denver.

"This winter has developed into one of our heaviest snowfall years in the Colorado mountains," states Game, Fish and Parks Director Harry Woodward. "Deep snow has caused the obvious result of pushing big fame further down and into closer contact with the public. This will undoubtedly cause increased demands for winter feeding of these animals, but artificial feeding is against department policy."

"We know we're going to lose some animals," said Woodward. "That happens every year. But it's possible this winter"s losses will be higher than normal. We've had a lot of snow, and a lot more is on the way. One answer to solving such situations is to acquire and improve winter range for deer and elk."

As the 1964 pheasant season ended last month in eastern Colorado, claims that the birds were nearly wiped out by drouth and hail were proven false. Although balmy weather and scattered cover helped to make hunting harder and birds difficult to find, good hunters who knew the habits of the birds were able to fill limits consistently and birds Mississippi flyways will get a

Although hunting was at least as good as average this season, conditions do not look too good for the future: Farmers in the pheasant areas have engaged in considerable burning, particularly of roadside cover.

Coupled with this practice, farmers in the wheat areas are increasingly going into sideline cattle feeding practices. This can have a serious effect on pheasant numbers, particularly where cattle are grazed in brushy draws and waste areas. The cattle clean the cover out completely and leave nothing for the pheasants.

Due to this year's extreme drouth condition, two more factors promise difficulty for the birds in wheat areas. First, high winds have brought the return of the 'dirty thirties' in some areas. Plowed fields have blown out, filling road barrow pits and cover patches with choking dust and piles of dirt. At the same time, winter wheat has either blown out or failed to grow. If green wheat does not recover next spring—there will be no pheasant nesting cover available in many areas.

Hunters in the Central and of teals that ordinarily die from crack at early migrating teal ducks in 1965, according to John Gottschalk, director of the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

Gottschalk reported the setting of an experimental season for blue-winged, greenwinged and cinnamon teal in September of this year to give hunters a chance to harvest this bird rather than have normal mortality harvest the birds.

The teal migrates out of the hunting areas long before the waterfowl seasons each year with the result that the species is considered wasted. Gottschalk stated that the 1965 season will be used to determine if hunting pressure will take the number of teal tshat ordinarily die from natural causes.

According to the plan approved, each state in the two flyways will be allowed to select a nine day season between Sept. 1 and Sept. 30 this year. The bag limit will be four birds and the possession limit eight. The limits will include only the three species, the blue-wing, green-wing and cinnamon teal. Special permits for the experimental season will be required and will be available from the individual Game, Fish and Parks Departments involved.

Colorado bird hunters are reminded that only that part of Colorado situated east of the Continental Divide is in the Central Flyway so only that part of the state will have this special season. The area of the state west of the Continental Divide is in the Pacific Flyway.

Cabbie Fined for Refusing Fare

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A municipal judge fined a cab driver $100 Wednesday for refusing to drive a young war widow and her sick son to a hospital because her bathing suit was wet.

Police said they also would recommend that the license of Jack Lawrence, 64, be revoked.

Margaret Thomas, 26, whose army captain husband was killed in Viet Nam last July, testified that her 20-month-old son, Daniel, became ill after swallowing a half bottle of baby oil at the beach.

She said she rushed to a parked cab and the driver, Lawrence, refused to take her to the hospital.

"She was dripping like a fish," Lawrence testified. "The seat would get all wet."

Lawrence was found guilty by Judge Al Saperstein for violating a city law requiring cab drivers to pick up "any orderly person."

The youngster recovered.

Hunting and Fishing

By DICK MOORE

The 13th annual meeting of the Colorado Wildlife Federation was held recently at the Sentry Denver Motel.

Richard Eckles, director of natural resources of the governor's office gave the welcome address. He called attention to the State's activity in reducing pollution from mines and mills; the Governor's request for an increase in the budget for the Game, Fish & Park Dept.; the outdoor recreation program; access to public lands; and the coal strip-mined land restoration program.

President Christiansen reported on his many activities during the year including, attendance at 93 meetings; 5,000 miles of travel; attendance at three Affiliate Club meetings, and at the Colorado Wildlife federal, board meetings.

Panel Discussion. First Vice-President Jack Wagar opened the panel discussion entitled: "Colorado and the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act."

W. W. Dresskell, regional director of the bureau of outdoor recreation was pleased that CWF is taking leadership in outdoor recreation, and backing the 'infant' program. The Land and Water Conservation Fund Act is the biggest step in developing outdoor recreation.

The Outdoor Recreation Resources Review Commission found that the States were not fulfilling their responsibilities, and on certain Federal areas, sale of surplus federal property, and the motor boat fuel tax (plus Federal Loans for the initial years. From the fund, 40 per cent goes to the federal agencies for acquisition only, and 60 per cent to the states on a matching basis. Allocations to the States are available for planning, acquisition, and development, but not for operation and maintenance. To participate the States must have a comprehensive plan satisfactory to the Secretary of the Interior.

Harry Woodward, director of Colorado Game, Fish & Parks Dept., stated that outdoor recreation will not be solved at any one level, or by any agency alone. Private industry must meet the needs for services. Planning is the No. 1, and stupendous job. Acquisition must be in the right place—usually within 2 hours travel of large municipalities. Present plans are that 50 per cent of the Federal Funds will be allocated to local governmental agencies.

Ronald Strahle, member at large of the Game, Fish and Parks Commission, emphasized that the game cash fund is not available for parks, that general fund finances are likely to be inadequate; that the Game Fish and Parks Consolidation Act authorized fees for State Park use, but the Senate passed a resolution opposing use fees; that a suggestion may be made for revenue bonds to get development under way.

He is convinced that the people of Colorado want significant outdoor recreation plan, and that the legislation will see that it is implemented.

George F. Jackson, State Representative pointed out that local governments may have to provide some of the matching funds. With a shift from rural to urban legislation he looks for stronger support for recreation. In connection with acquisition, we must be prepared to show that loss of property taxes will be offset by the economic returns from business.

In summarizing the panel discussions, Jack Wagar urged CWF members to contact their county and municipal officers to have them start on the local planning which is a requisite for financial participation; and said "Let's keep out of geographical jealousies."

There were eight affiliate members and four associate members elected to the board.

Les Cornforth, from the Jimmy Camp Club, and Dean Pulliam of the Rampart Range Club (Air Force Academy) were both elected for a two year term.

President; A. J. Christiansen, Wheatridge, 1st Vice-President, J. V. K. Wagar, Fort Collins, 2nd Vice-President, Herb Hockstrasser, Fort Morgan, 3rd Vice-President, G. E. Kimble, Swink, 4th Vice-President, L. W. Hunnicut, Rangely, Secretary: Ralph R. Hill, Denver, Treasurer; Wayne Manaugh, Denver.

"This winter has developed into one of our heaviest snowfall years in the Colorado mountains," states Game, Fish and Parks Director Harry Woodward. "Deep snow has caused the obvious result of pushing big fame further down and into closer contact with the public. This will undoubtedly cause increased demands for winter feeding of these animals, but artificial feeding is against department policy."

"We know we're going to lose some animals," said Woodward. "That happens every year. But it's possible this winter"s losses will be higher than normal. We've had a lot of snow, and a lot more is on the way. One answer to solving such situations is to acquire and improve winter range for deer and elk."

As the 1964 pheasant season ended last month in eastern Colorado, claims that the birds were nearly wiped out by drouth and hail were proven false. Although balmy weather and scattered cover helped to make hunting harder and birds difficult to find, good hunters who knew the habits of the birds were able to fill limits consistently and birds Mississippi flyways will get a

Although hunting was at least as good as average this season, conditions do not look too good for the future: Farmers in the pheasant areas have engaged in considerable burning, particularly of roadside cover.

Coupled with this practice, farmers in the wheat areas are increasingly going into sideline cattle feeding practices. This can have a serious effect on pheasant numbers, particularly where cattle are grazed in brushy draws and waste areas. The cattle clean the cover out completely and leave nothing for the pheasants.

Due to this year's extreme drouth condition, two more factors promise difficulty for the birds in wheat areas. First, high winds have brought the return of the 'dirty thirties' in some areas. Plowed fields have blown out, filling road barrow pits and cover patches with choking dust and piles of dirt. At the same time, winter wheat has either blown out or failed to grow. If green wheat does not recover next spring—there will be no pheasant nesting cover available in many areas.

Hunters in the Central and of teals that ordinarily die from crack at early migrating teal ducks in 1965, according to John Gottschalk, director of the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

Gottschalk reported the setting of an experimental season for blue-winged, greenwinged and cinnamon teal in September of this year to give hunters a chance to harvest this bird rather than have normal mortality harvest the birds.

The teal migrates out of the hunting areas long before the waterfowl seasons each year with the result that the species is considered wasted. Gottschalk stated that the 1965 season will be used to determine if hunting pressure will take the number of teal tshat ordinarily die from natural causes.

According to the plan approved, each state in the two flyways will be allowed to select a nine day season between Sept. 1 and Sept. 30 this year. The bag limit will be four birds and the possession limit eight. The limits will include only the three species, the blue-wing, green-wing and cinnamon teal. Special permits for the experimental season will be required and will be available from the individual Game, Fish and Parks Departments involved.

Colorado bird hunters are reminded that only that part of Colorado situated east of the Continental Divide is in the Central Flyway so only that part of the state will have this special season. The area of the state west of the Continental Divide is in the Pacific Flyway.

Cabbie Fined for Refusing Fare

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A municipal judge fined a cab driver $100 Wednesday for refusing to drive a young war widow and her sick son to a hospital because her bathing suit was wet.

Police said they also would recommend that the license of Jack Lawrence, 64, be revoked.

Margaret Thomas, 26, whose army captain husband was killed in Viet Nam last July, testified that her 20-month-old son, Daniel, became ill after swallowing a half bottle of baby oil at the beach.

She said she rushed to a parked cab and the driver, Lawrence, refused to take her to the hospital.

Colorado College Reports Phi Beta Kappa Candidates

Twenty-one seniors and two juniors at Colorado College were elected to Phi Beta Kappa, the national scholastic honor society on Tuesday, Jan. 26.

The new Phi Beta Kappa candidates were announced by Dr. Richard M. Pearl, professor and acting chairman of the geology department at Colorado College and president of the local chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

They will be initiated into the honor society at a special dinner at Dublin House on Thursday, March 4.

In addition to the newly elected members, two seniors who were elected last year as juniors also are being honored. They are Paul Langford Carson of Englewood, and Catherine Jane Grant of Phoenix.

More than half of the group is from Colorado. The others represent ten states. Five members of the group are majoring in mathematics; English, music, history, French, political science and chemistry tie for second, with two representatives each. Other departments include geology, religion, zoology, psychology, philosophy and anthropology.

Since the society was founded in 1776, election to Phi Beta Kappa has been reconized as the hallmark of scholarship. Students selected this year by members of the Phi Beta Kappa chapter at Colorado College are the 59th group since the society first established a chapter at the college in 1904.

The two juniors selected this year are Philip Jeffry LeCuyer, an English major, and Terry Allen Winograd, a mathematics major. Lecuyer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack LeCuyer of Greeley, and Winograd is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Winograd of Greeley.

The following 21 are the newly elected seniors, together with their major fields of study:

Robert Alan Bauer, chemistry, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bauer of Ft. Morgan; Leslie Moir Beebe, French, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Beebe, Portland, Ore.; Peter Richard Bonavich, political science, son of Mrs. Melba Bonavich, 2306 Revere Lane, Colorado Springs; Susan Kent Caudill, philosophy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Caudill, Houston, Tex.; Linda Susan Dunkin, mathematics, daughter of Mrs. Harold L. Dunkin, Denver; John William Evans, zoology, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Evans, Arcadia, Calif.; Mrs. Calrton Gamer, geology, wife of Dr. Carlton Gamer, assistant professor of music at the college, of 1439 N. Tejon St., Colorado Springs; Robert Charles Grant, chemistry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melburn Grant, Fairmont, Minn.

James Joseph Heckman, mathematics, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Heckman Jr., Lakewood; Mary Jo Heller, political science, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Heller, Denver; Mrs. Patrcia Louise Hill, English, 511 N. Spruce St., Colorado Springs; Jane Elizabeth Humphrey, music, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Humphrey, Mullen, Neb.; Frieda Ann Koster, mathematics, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Koster, Albuquerque, N. M.;

Polly Elizabeth Miller, religion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Miller, Phoenix; Caroline Parker Paige, history, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Paige, Washington, D. C.; Norma Jean Parker, French, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman A. Parker, Urbana, Ill.; Susan Phillips, anthropology, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Phillips, Dallas; Merle Calvin Ricklefs, history, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Ricklefs, Manson, Iowa;

Sharon Lou Shackleford, mathematics, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Shackleford, Boulder; Mrs. Fred Sondermann, psychology, wife of Dr. Fred A. Sondermann, associate dean of the college and professor of political science, director of the summer school of 1809 N. Tejon St., Colorado Springs; and Genevieve Vaughn, music, daughter of Mrs. Mary Vaughn, Fort Morgan.

Missionary Group Holds Annual Banquet

The Woman's Missionary Society, auxiliary to the Southern Baptist Convention, held its annual enlistment banquet at the Old Colony cafeteria at 6:30 p.m. Monday. The Society is composed of women from the ten Southern Baptist churches in the Pikes Peak area.

The welcome was given by the president, Mrs. James R. Fish, followed by the invocation by Mrs. Richard Cagle. Mrs. Lewis Adkison, vice-president, acted as mistress of ceremonies.

After dinner, awards for the year were presented by Mrs. George Ray, and "Opera in Orbit" was given, in the theme of "Around the World in '65." Participating in the opera, "The Grasshopper" were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gibson, Mr. Larry Shotwell, and Mrs. Fish.

Music of the Spheres was presented by Mrs. Tom Baker, who sang "The Lord's Prayer," followed by Glen Braswell of Denver, who spoke on World missions. Approximately 170 persons attended.

New vacuum cleaners and floor polishers in one manufacturer's line come with two-speed controls. Fast speed is recommended for polishing floors to a mirror-like finish or shampooing rugs. The low speeds are suggested when scrubbing or applying wax to floors, to reduce splattering.

New towels and wash clothes trimmed with velvet and lace add luxury to the bathroom. They're designed to use, not just to look at. The velvet trim is hand-washable, the manufacturer reports.

Now, they're making cosmetics custom-designed for specific cities and regions. The "climate formulated" cosmetics are made with the weather in each locality in mind, especially the humidity. The logic: skin experts have confirmed what beauty experts have always known—weather, especially the degree of humidity, affects skins. The manufacturer said each local formula was arrived at after studying weather and water conditions in particular towns. Products, as a result, are balanced for the humidity and come packaged either for soft or hard water homes.

Kindergarten Club to Hear Dr. A. R. Olson

Members of the Kindergarten Club will meet Monday at 3:45 p.m., at Howbert School. Dr. Arthur R. Olson, Deputy Superintendent of Schools, will discuss "Trends in Early Childhood Education." Dr. Olson's background of experiences as teacher, administrator and administrative director of curriculum has given him an insight into the curriculum implications of education at the kindergarten level.

The Kindergarten Club is sponsored by the Pikes Peak Chapter of the Association of Childhood Education International. This is the first of the grade level meetings that will be held during February as a part of the program of the Association for teachers of School District 11.

Mrs. Glenna Scoby, hostess, and her committee will preside at the social hour. Kindergarten teachers are urged to attend.

The Woman's Missionary Society, auxiliary to the Southern Baptist Convention, held its annual enlistment banquet at the Old Colony cafeteria at 6:30 p.m. Monday. The Society is composed of women from the ten Southern Baptist churches in the Pikes Peak area.

The welcome was given by the president, Mrs. James R. Fish, followed by the invocation by Mrs. Richard Cagle. Mrs. Lewis Adkison, vice-president, acted as mistress of ceremonies.

After dinner, awards for the year were presented by Mrs. George Ray, and "Opera in Orbit" was given, in the theme of "'Around the World in '65." Participating in the opera, "The Grasshopper" were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gibson, Mr. Larry Shotwell, and Mrs. Fish.

Music of the Spheres was presented by Mrs. Tom Baker, who sang "The Lord's Prayer," followed by Glen Braswell of Denver, who spoke on World missions. Approximately 170 persons attended.

New vacuum cleaners and floor polishers in one manufacturer's line come with two-speed controls. Fast speed is recommended for polishing floors to a mirror-like finish or shampooing rugs. The low speeds are suggested when scrubbing or applying wax to floors, to reduce splattering.

New towels and wash clothes trimmed with velvet and lace add luxury to the bathroom. They're designed to use, not just to look at. The velvet trim is hand-washable, the manufacturer reports.

Now, they're making cosmetics custom-designed for specific cities and regions. The "climate formulated" cosmetics are made with the weather in each locality in mind, especially the humidity. The logic: skin experts have confirmed what beauty experts have always known—weather, especially the degree of humidity, affects skins. The manufacturer said each local formula was arrived at after studying weather and water conditions in particular towns. Products, as a result, are balanced for the humidity and come packaged either for soft or hard water homes.

Members of the Kindergarten Club will meet Monday at 3:45 p.m., at Howbert School. Dr. Arthur R. Olson, Deputy Superintendent of Schools, will discuss "Trends in Early Childhood Education." Dr. Olson's background of experiences as teacher, administrator and administrative director of curriculum has given him an insight into the curriculum implications of education at the kindergarten level.

The Kindergarten Club is sponsored by the Pikes Peak Chapter of the Association of Childhood Education International. This is the first of the grade level meetings that will be held during February as a part of the program of the Association for teachers of School District 11.

Mrs. Glenna Scoby, hostess, and her committee will preside at the social hour. Kindergarten teachers are urged to attend.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Rightfully Indignant!

DEAR ABBY: My husband works nights and sleeps days. At least he tries to, but with so many salesmen knocking on our door my husband hasn't been able to get much sleep. Well, about two months ago I put a sign on our front door which said, "DO NOT KNOCK FOR ANY REASON — DAY SLEEPER."

All kinds of salesmen came around and beat on our door anyway. This makes our dog bark, and then my husband wakes up. Last week I put a BIGGER sign on the front door which said, "HE WHO KNOCKS ON THIS DOOR GETS WATER IN HIS FACE." I want to know, Abby, if I have the right to throw water in the face of a person who knocks and wakes up my husband. —HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Anyone who would knock despite the warning you posted, deserves to get water in his face. But you'd better check with a lawyer about your "right" to soak a salesman, though duly warned.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have been happily married (until now) for eight years. She's a wonderful wife and mother and I love her very much. We've never had a misunderstanding we couldn't iron out in a few minutes.

For the past week my wife has been acting cool and distant. I asked if I had said something to hurt her feelings. She said no. I suggested calling a doctor, thinknng maybe she wasn't feeling well. She said she felt fine. Finally I got it out of her. It seems she went shopping last week and ran into an old chum she hadn't seen since high school. They got to talking about old times and whom they'd married, etc. Well, this chum told my wife that I had had an affair with a friend of hers, but she failed to mention that it happened ten years ago. (She also failed to mention that I had had an affair with HER, too.) I wasn't married at the time and wasn't even going with my wife then. Do you think my wife is justified in acting this way just because I didn't tell her about my social life before I was married? I never ask hers. —IN THE DOG HOUSE

DEAR IN: Your wife is being extremely childish. What a pity they've done away with ducking - stools, the 17th century method of punishing witches, gossips, and female troublemakers. It would have been an ideal way to teach your wife's chum a lesson.

DEAR ABBY: My niece is planning a wedding in the near future. She wants to be married in white with all the trimmings. Now it is no secret that she has already had her honeymoon. Last summer she and her fiance spent their vacation together. This is a small town, Abby, and I'm afraid if she insists on going through with a wedding like that, our whole family will get the horse laugh. What do you suggest -AFRAID

DEAR AFRAID: I suggest you leave your niece's wedding plans to her. And don't advertise your "fears" too broadly, or YOU might get the horse laugh.

Problems? Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Complexion Beauty

The secret of beautifying the complexion is said to lie in the saturation of the skin with a new type of tropical moist oil. The skin takes on an immediate healthy bloom as the tiny lines and blemishes are gently smoothed away. This saturation treatment with the moist oil of olay is recommended by beauty care consultants, who advise its daily use as a powder base to give the complexion day-long beauty. SPANISH TWIST

If there had been interior decorators in Virginia around 1680, you might have heard someone say, "Perhaps you'd like this wainscot type chair . . . notice the Spanish influence in the arcade or spindles across the back . . . we found the design while digging through a shipyard, filled with wrecks from the Spanish Armada."

Today, when everyone's talking about the new Spanish Influence, devotees to early American and rural English styles can feel a little smug, because undoubtedly they have a table or chair with some of that old Spanish twist.

In our galleries you'll find a wide array of collections in the fashionable Spanish mood . . . handsome, yet moderately priced Andorra . . . Drexel's boldly carved Esperanto . . . exquisite Simpatico by Heritage . . .all in room settings, for living, dining and bedroom. Come see them, they're exciting enough to change your mode of living . . . give it a new twist.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE
From Heloise's Kitchen

Dear Folks:

Often, we make spaghetti sauce, soup, stews, etc., and find grease floating on the top. I have received thousands of letters over the past five years and I have tested all the hints from "Put ice cubes in it" to "Skin off the floating grease on top."

Sometimes our hamburger meat has more grease than at other times, and the grease literally floats on top, especially when making spaghetti sauce.

One day my hamburger meat had too much fat. After making my spaghetti sauce, the fat floated on top of the sauce. First, I tried lettuce leaves. Then I put in five cubes of ice, but all the ice did was melt because the sauce was too hot.

I had some white paper napkins lying on the drainboard so I thought, "Why not put a paper napkin on top of the grease and see what happens?"

I picked up a napkin, laid it unfolded on top of my big pot of sauce; took my tongs, turned the napkin over, picked it up again and put it in a paper sack I had brought to the stove (so that I would not drip grease across the drainboard or the kitchen floor).

I used only three paper napkins and this is the best way I have ever found to remove excess grease floating on top of a cooking pot.

Dear Heloise:

Some other mothers might like to try this:

It does away with diaper pails . . .

I fill my washing machine with cold water and a disenfectant each day "after" I wash.

After each change of baby's diapers, I put the rinsed diaper in my washing machine.

The next morning I just spin dry the machine first then put the rest of the baby clothes in then set the machine for the hot wash and the regular routine. . .

I do not have any offensive diaper pail and I do not have to handle the diapers twice. We wash every day for our new baby. I find it much easier. —Mrs. Bennett

Dear Heloise:

This is a trick my wife thought up several years ago for concealing holes in bedspreads.

Since you cannot make a patch completely invisible, make it so conspicuous that no one will suspect that it is a patch . . . just applique butterflies or flowers over the holes!

If too many of them are concentrated in one section of the spread, scatter a few extra appliques in the blank areas to even up the distribution.

My wife also uses this for patching blouses and dresses. —Edward W. Caulkins

Letter of Laughter

Heloise dear:

Garlicky, oniony hands have found defeat with a simple rub down (or up) with a few celery leaves or a sprig of parsley!

Try it, cuties. —Loup The Scoop

Yes, gals, that is the way she signed the letter! Now if she'd just write and tell us what it means. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I buy little girls' fancy pants instead of plastic-lined ones for our babygirl, and use "plain" plastic pants underneath the fancy ones. Separate fancy pants wear longer because they don't go through the wash so often. And, as a bonus, when the baby outgrows diapers, she will still have the pants to wear. Another saving!

I reinforce the knees of my older children's blue jeans (as soon as they have been through the wash a few times) with iron-on knee patches applied to the inside of the blue jeans.

I wait until the blue jeans have been washed a few times because it is easier to find the knees (don't laugh). When I put the patches inside brand new jeans I always seemed to get them too high or too low and this defeated my purpose.

I also fix my husband's denim or cotton work pants this same way. It really saves on the number of knees worn through before the rest of the garment is worn out.

One can use this idea for other particular wear spots . . . maybe the inside of elbows in work shirts, or inside pockets worn by pencils . . . "before" the damage is done. —Denise S.

In most bidding situations, the direct approach is favored. As soon as the partnership has determined its best contract, a player should bid the limit of his hand.

An exception may sometimes be noted, however, in competitive situations where the opposition has put up a fierce struggle during the auction. In today's hand taken from a recent team-of-four contest, one North feared that, if he bid too strongly, his opponent might be induced to seek a profitable sacrifice. He, therefore, adopted a "soft sell" approach in an effort to buy the hand.

The bidding proceeded as depicted in the diagram. West opened with one club and North, who was well heeled in the other suits, made a take-out double. East chose the only opportunity he would ever have to show his six card spade suit. A bid in this situation does not denote any special high car strength.

South held a self - sufficient suit and, facing a partner who had announced a good hand, he was willing to undertake a game contract. He, therefore, bid four hearts. West persisted to five clubs.

North was convinced that his side could make a slam for, if South held the toppers in hearts, he should be able to restrict his losses to one diamond trick. Psychological considerations deterred North from bidding six hearts directly, however. If he sounded too confident, West, who obviously had a long club suit, might be reluctant to defend. Furthermore, there was no guarantee that a bid of seven clubs could be punished severely.

North accordingly bided his time by bidding five hearts. West realized that his defensive prospects were virtually nonexistent, and he carried on to six clubs. North now made a very disciplined forcing pass. Inasmuch as he and his partner had bid very strongly, South is obliged to take some action over six clubs. The pass by North at this point is actually a strength showing call, for it implies a willingness to carry on. If he thought the partnership coud not makea slam, he would have doubled six clubs himself.

South read his partner's message perfectly and he bid six hearts. Perhaps West should have taken out some insurance by bidding seven clubs, but he felt his opponents might be guessing and he decided to take his chances against the slam.

There was little to the play and South routinely chalked up 12 tricks for a score of 1430 on the deal (750 bonus for the slam and 500 on the game). At the other table, the bidding proceeded in the same manner until West reached five clubs. At this point, North went directly to six hearts. West now sacrificed at seven clubs and succeeded in taking nine tricks for a deficit of 700 points—which represented a substantial saving against the vulnerable slam.

Bonds Are Delivered To Puzzled Police

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — The Traffic Bureau of the Flint Police Department was $2,175 richer today, and officers would like to know the reason.

Linda Gould, a clerk at the bureau, said a man walked in and handed her a bundle of $25 U.S. Savings Bonds. He said he was sent by the State Police "and was supposed to leave these off," Miss Gould said.

State police said they had no knowledge of the bonds.

She Does Not Want Public Welfare

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Beulah Ward, 53, doesn't mind pushing her invalid husband 16 miles to her office cleaning jobs each day.

She says she much prefers it to accepting public welfare.

Every weekday morning at 3 a.m. Mrs. Ward helps husband Eli, 61, into his wheelchair and heads for work. The eight-mile push takes three hours.

After cleaning two offices, it's another eight miles and three hours back to their small home.

Ward, who formerly worked in a Quincy, Ill., shoe factory, has been partially paralyzed from a stroke he suffered nearly three years ago.

On the rare occasions when the Phoenix weather is bad he stays home and Mrs. Ward rides a bicycle to work.

Firearms are used to commit 5,000 homicides and 8,000 suicides each year in the nation.

Paulist Choir Is Given New Hope to Sing

By MARGARET SCHERF

CHICAGO (AP) — Pleas from devotees of the Paulist Choir from across the nation have given new life to the Chicago singing group and sparked an appeal for a new type of music in the Roman Catholic Church.

An Associated Press story last week reported that the choir might disband because the recent switch from Latin to English in the Roman Catholic Mass had, acording to the choir director, "made us unnecessary."

"Letters, telegrams, telephone calls and visitors began pouring in, asking that the choir not be broken up," the Rev. Eugene F. O'Malley, 63, said in an interview Wednesday night.

"It stirred up people all over the country. It was tremendous," said the delighted priest who has directed the choir for 37 years. He had announced his retirement along with the probable disolution of the choir.

"So the Paulist Choir will continue and I will continue," Father O'Malley said.

However, he said, the choir will not sing until "a new and suitable musical literature" is developed to complement the new English liturgy in the Mass.

Among the hundreds of letters sent to Old St. Mary's Church where the choir was founded 61 years ago were many from musicians. They were saddened that famous church choirs and ancient church music would disappear as the result of the liturgical changes.

"I am asking them and other musician friends to begin writing new Mass music to match the beauty of the old," said Father O'Malley.

Father O'Malley said he favors increased participation in the Mass by the laity, for which the changes are designed.

"As a priest I can see the wisdom," the priest said, "but as a musician I am saddened."

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Dora and Don show that our greatest "poverty" in America is in lack of practical judgment. It would reduce divorces if all applicants for a marriage license were required to cite a diploma from a Business College before they could wed! Don and Dora rate a "D" in Money Management!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE U-494: Dora and Don recently got married.

But within a few months they were worried, irritable and seeking advice.

For Don's weekly pay check came to $125 per week, which is pretty good for northern city wages.

But their monthly installments hit $444.00 before they ever

started to pay for food, gasoline and other supposedly necessary items.

"Dr. Crane," Dora wailed, "we can't make ends meet."

But they were largely at fault for they had rushed into an inflated living standard that they could not possibly justify.

For example, they had decided to take a swanky honeymoon trip on the "Go now-Pay later" plan.

So they owed $46 per month on that expensive honeymoon excursion.

Apartment	$125
Car payment	76
Refrigerator	12
Furniture	28
Washer-dryer	15
Loan Association	78
Oriental rugs	54
Rings	10
Honeymoon	46
Total	$444

The item for "Rings" consisted of Don's monthly payments on the engagement ring and wedding band he had purchased for his bride.

"Nothing down and pay later" had suckered them into similar unwarranted deals.

It would be wise if every married couple had earned a diploma from a good Business College! Then they'd understand the rudiments of bookkeeping.

For example, with only two people in the household, this couple couldn't afford to buy a washer-dryer unit.

Dora could have done most of the washing by hand till they got on their feet or at least have patronized a laundromat where for 25 cents a week she could have washed the heavy items, like sheets.

And that $46 per month honeymoon was stupid!

He should likewise have bought a cheap jalopy or used the bus.

For the sign of a smart young couple is its ability to live within its income!

The higher I. Q. you have the less you should be able to live on!

For then you will buy used furniture and a jalopy and not burden yourself with flashy non-essentials.

If you are near a bus line, even an auto is a luxury at the cents per mile to operate, counting depreciation, insurance, gas and oil, etc.

So send for my "Budget Booklet," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope plus 20c and learn how to live within your income.

Viet Buddhists Don't Know What They Want

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

In the bewilderment generated by the Buddhists and the generals in South Viet Nam, the most baffling question is: What do the Buddhists want? The Buddhists themselves do not seem to know.

The new military coup in Saigon hardly can be interpreted as a step toward the stability the United States has sought in its efforts to keep South Viet Nam out of Communist hands.

Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, the durable young string puller, simply reasserted military rule. In effect, it was there all the time in spite of a facade of civilian government under the now deposed premier, Tran Van Huong.

Buddhists cheered Khanh's new coup, but it is difficult to see what they hope to gain from it. They demonstrated just as violently last summer against Khanh as they did against Huong.

Some U.S. policy makers profess to see something encouraging in the latest development: that perhaps it will lead to some sort of viable civil rule. But Americans periodically expressed encouragement in the past, only to have their hopes smashed by new upheavals. There have been seven major ones since November, 1963, when President Ngo Dinh Diem was overthrown.

Indeed, there can be new frustration for Americans. The upshot may be that Washington will have to choose between Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor and Gen. Khanh, who evidently cannot abide the U.S. envoy. Since the Buddhists enthusiastically share Khanh's distaste for Taylor, his usefulness is in doubt.

There can be no solution to Saigon's violent instability until somebody finds out what the Buddhists want. They have been the key.

But do they know what they want? First, it was civilian rule. They got a form of it and turned against it. Then it was representative government. But they cheered when the military took over again this week.

Two years ago Buddhist unrest had religious overtones. They pictured themselves as oppressed by Diem, a Catholic. Since then, religion and politics have come together.

Evidently some influential Buddhist leaders have the idea that in some way they will be able to deal with the Communist threat because they are Asians and the Americans are not. The Communists have made the most of this notion.

The confusion has been a windfall to the Viet Cong. But now there probably are elements among the Buddhists hell-bent to keep the boat rocking. The Buddhist rank and file must by now be heavily infiltrated by Viet Cong agents.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Beulah Ward, 53, doesn't mind pushing her invalid husband 16 miles to her office cleaning jobs each day.

She says she much prefers it to accepting public welfare.

Every weekday morning at 3 a.m. Mrs. Ward helps husband Eli, 61, into his wheelchair and heads for work. The eight-mile push takes three hours.

After cleaning two offices, it's another eight miles and three hours back to their small home.

Ward, who formerly worked in a Quincy, Ill., shoe factory, has been partially paralyzed from a stroke he suffered nearly three years ago.

On the rare occasions when the Phoenix weather is bad he stays home and Mrs. Ward rides a bicycle to work.

Firearms are used to commit 5,000 homicides and 8,000 suicides each year in the nation.

Paulist Choir Is Given New Hope to Sing

By MARGARET SCHERF

CHICAGO (AP) — Pleas from devotees of the Paulist Choir from across the nation have given new life to the Chicago singing group and sparked an appeal for a new type of music in the Roman Catholic Church.

An Associated Press story last week reported that the choir might disband because the recent switch from Latin to English in the Roman Catholic Mass had, acording to the choir director, "made us unnecessary."

"Letters, telegrams, telephone calls and visitors began pouring in, asking that the choir not be broken up," the Rev. Eugene F. O'Malley, 63, said in an interview Wednesday night.

"It stirred up people all over the country. It was tremendous," said the delighted priest who has directed the choir for 37 years. He had announced his retirement along with the probable disolution of the choir.

"So the Paulist Choir will continue and I will continue," Father O'Malley said.

However, he said, the choir will not sing until "a new and suitable musical literature" is developed to complement the new English liturgy in the Mass.

Among the hundreds of letters sent to Old St. Mary's Church where the choir was founded 61 years ago were many from musicians. They were saddened that famous church choirs and ancient church music would disappear as the result of the liturgical changes.

"I am asking them and other musician friends to begin writing new Mass music to match the beauty of the old," said Father O'Malley.

Father O'Malley said he favors increased participation in the Mass by the laity, for which the changes are designed.

"As a priest I can see the wisdom," the priest said, "but as a musician I am saddened."

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Dora and Don show that our greatest "poverty" in America is in lack of practical judgment. It would reduce divorces if all applicants for a marriage license were required to cite a diploma from a Business College before they could wed! Don and Dora rate a "D" in Money Management!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE U-494: Dora and Don recently got married.

But within a few months they were worried, irritable and seeking advice.

For Don's weekly pay check came to $125 per week, which is pretty good for northern city wages.

But their monthly installments hit $444.00 before they ever

started to pay for food, gasoline and other supposedly necessary items.

But they were largely at fault for they had rushed into an inflated living standard that they could not possibly justify.

For example, they had decided to take a swanky honeymoon trip on the "Go now-Pay later" plan.

So they owed $46 per month on that expensive honeymoon excursion.

Apartment	$125
Car payment	76
Refrigerator	12
Furniture	28
Washer-dryer	15
Loan Association	78
Oriental rugs	54
Rings	10
Honeymoon	46
Total	$444

The item for "Rings" consisted of Don's monthly payments on the engagement ring and wedding band he had purchased for his bride.

"Nothing down and pay later" had suckered them into similar unwarranted deals.

It would be wise if every married couple had earned a diploma from a good Business College! Then they'd understand the rudiments of bookkeeping.

For example, with only two people in the household, this couple couldn't afford to buy a washer-dryer unit.

Dora could have done most of the washing by hand till they got on their feet or at least have patronized a laundromat where for 25 cents a week she could have washed the heavy items, like sheets.

And that $46 per month honeymoon was stupid!

He should likewise have bought a cheap jalopy or used the bus.

For the sign of a smart young couple is its ability to live within its income!

The higher I. Q. you have the less you should be able to live on!

For then you will buy used furniture and a jalopy and not burden yourself with flashy non-essentials.

If you are near a bus line, even an auto is a luxury at the cents per mile to operate, counting depreciation, insurance, gas and oil, etc.

So send for my "Budget Booklet," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope plus 20c and learn how to live within your income.

Viet Buddhists Don't Know What They Want

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

In the bewilderment generated by the Buddhists and the generals in South Viet Nam, the most baffling question is: What do the Buddhists want? The Buddhists themselves do not seem to know.

The new military coup in Saigon hardly can be interpreted as a step toward the stability the United States has sought in its efforts to keep South Viet Nam out of Communist hands.

Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, the durable young string puller, simply reasserted military rule. In effect, it was there all the time in spite of a facade of civilian government under the now deposed premier, Tran Van Huong.

Buddhists cheered Khanh's new coup, but it is difficult to see what they hope to gain from it. They demonstrated just as violently last summer against Khanh as they did against Huong.

Some U.S. policy makers profess to see something encouraging in the latest development: that perhaps it will lead to some sort of viable civil rule. But Americans periodically expressed encouragement in the past, only to have their hopes smashed by new upheavals. There have been seven major ones since November, 1963, when President Ngo Dinh Diem was overthrown.

Indeed, there can be new frustration for Americans. The upshot may be that Washington will have to choose between Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor and Gen. Khanh, who evidently cannot abide the U.S. envoy. Since the Buddhists enthusiastically share Khanh's distaste for Taylor, his usefulness is in doubt.

There can be no solution to Saigon's violent instability until somebody finds out what the Buddhists want. They have been the key.

But do they know what they want? First, it was civilian rule. They got a form of it and turned against it. Then it was representative government. But they cheered when the military took over again this week.

Two years ago Buddhist unrest had religious overtones. They pictured themselves as oppressed by Diem, a Catholic. Since then, religion and politics have come together.

Evidently some influential Buddhist leaders have the idea that in some way they will be able to deal with the Communist threat because they are Asians and the Americans are not. The Communists have made the most of this notion.

The confusion has been a windfall to the Viet Cong. But now there probably are elements among the Buddhists hell-bent to keep the boat rocking. The Buddhist rank and file must by now be heavily infiltrated by Viet Cong agents.

Two Local Girls to Enter State Miss Pageant Event

Two seniors from local high schools will travel to Englewood to begin competition tonight in the Colorado Junior Miss Pageant.

The girls are Miss Gidget Farrell, Air Academy High, who is sponsored in the state pageant by the Colorado Springs Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Miss Sharon Pearson, Widefield High, who is sponsored by the Fountain Valley Jaycee Chapter.

The girls will attend a dinner and reception this evening for Junior Miss winners from cities around the state. The formal pageant will begin at 8 p.m. Saturday at Cherry Hills High School following a day of rehearsals and interviews with the judges.

Miss Farrell, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Donald M. Burke, Quarters 4401 - F, Academy, was named Colorado Springs' Junior Miss last week in a pageant held by the Colorado Springs Jaycees at Alexander Film. She was among 14 contestants from five local high schools who appeared in the pageant.

Miss Pearson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Pearson of 216 Esther Drive, Security, was chosen Tuesday evening by the Fountain Valley Jaycees as their representative in the state pageant.

The state pageant winner will wear the crown of Colorado's Junior Miss and will travel to Mobile, Alabama, in March to appear in the America's Junior Miss Pageant during the Azelea Trail Festival there.

Sponsored by Jaycee chapters throughout the country, local and state pageants such as those in Colorado are conducted to name one Junior Miss from each state.

Primarily a scholarship program which provides $150,000 annually in college scholarships, the pageant seeks to honor the nation's outstanding high school senior girls. Each girl is judged on a combined scoring based on the following attributes: scholastic standing, physical fitness, poise, appearance, personality and ability in the creative and performing arts.

Commissioners Re-Appoint 20 Employes

El Paso County's Commissioners re-appointed 20 persons to 20 jobs Thursday and left one position unfilled which does not now exist, but could if a uniform city - county building code is adopted.

Commissioner Charles Bickley said the new position, that of building inspector, may be filled following the action of a joint city - county board being formed to consider and "iron out" a single workable building code.

John Bradley, re - appointed Thursday as assistant building inspector, formerly held the title of building inspector. Salary of a new building inspector would pay whatever the market demanded, Bickley said.

El Paso County and city officials will appoint proportionate representatives to the board to work out the separate and uniform code. Bickley said either funds will be left for a building inspector or for the operation of the new position if the code can be set up and adopted.

The re - appointments made by the commissioners Thursday is routine action taken every two years when the county board reorganizes. In addition to the re - appointment of Bradley, others neamed to county positions were:

Edwin Strand, deputy county attorney for planning and zoning; Ernest O. Tullis, deputy county attorney, El Paso County Welfare Board; Vard V. Gray, director of welfare; Robert Dandrea, superintendent of the El Paso County Farm; Sandrea Dandrea, matron, El Paso County Farm; Guy M. Beals Jr., director of data processing; Ernest J. Ball, superintendent of buildings and grounds; H. F. Isham, planning director; Ethel Fyffe, secretary, building department; Sharon Boles, secretary, El Paso County Planning Department;

George W. Wright Jr., El Paso County Veterans' Service Officer; E. Carolyn Wolf, secretary, El Paso County Veterans' Service Officer; Jane Hassett, receptionist; Ruth O'Brien, PBX operator; Ellen Schlenter, El Paso County nurse; Emma Tait, secretary, extension agents; Everett Rowlett, stock room clerk; John T. Proffitt, elevator operator, and Alfred E. Hull, elevator operator.

Penrose Board Re-Elected At Annual Meet

Three members of the advisory board of Penrose Hospital were re-elected to three-year terms at the board's annual meeting, Monday. They are Robert LaGrange, Russell Law and Harry Mallon.

In an annual report to the board, Sister Mary Assunta, the administrator, stated that 14,437 patients were admitted to the hospital in 1964. This is an increase of 1,162 over the previous year. Births for the year totaled 1,300 — up 129 over 1963. Included were 12 sets of twins. 33,384 out-patient visits were also recorded.

Penrose Hospital has a current staff of 793 employes, with a total annual payroll of approximately three million dollars. Twenty seven Sisters of Charity also serve in supervisory positions and 200 physicians have medical staff privileges.

Fourteen doctors and 112 students are presently enrolled in the hospital's educational programs for residents and interns, professional nurses, medical technologists, x-ray technicians and practical nurses.

Sister Assunta announced to the board that the U.S. Public Health Service is currently conducting a two - week environmental survey — to find better ways of promoting a safer hospital environment through improved techniques and controls.

Penrose was one of four hospitals in the United States selected by the public health people for this study. George Mallison of Savannah, Georgia is heading the survey team, assisted by officials from the state and local health departments.

'Mr. 50,000' Greeted Here by Miss Teenage

Fellow passengers blinked in unbelief Wednesday as a young Army recruit from Chicago stepped from an airliner on arrival at Colorado Springs and was greeted by a pretty girl who handed him a bouquet of roses.

A delegation of Army officers and top-ranking non-commissioned officers stood by to greet the new soldier, Robert A. Nuti of Lombard, Ill. — or, as he has been known since Monday, "Mr. 50,000."

Private Nuti is the 50,000th volunteer recruited for duty at missile sites of the Army Air Defense Command (ARADCOM), which has its national headquarters here.

As pert Miss Diane Lynn Cox, "Miss Teenage America of 1962," welcomed Private Nuti, two fellow passengers who had walked by the welcoming delegation and then stood to watch the ceremony, shook their heads. One was heard to say, "That isn't the way they greeted me when I joined the Army!"

"They didn't treat me like that either!" his companion stated.

Shortly afterward, "Mr. 50,000" was whisked away from the airport in an Army sedan to the Mayfair Hotel in downtown Colorado Springs, where he will be quartered for three days of red-carpet activities in the area.

The highlight will come Thursday morning with a meeting during which Private Nuti will receive his first red-and-gold ARADCOM missile shoulder patches — usually tossed to recruits in a supply line — from Lt. Gen. Charles B. Duff, commanding general of the nationwide command.

Gen. Duff will also give him and the recruiter who accompanied Nuti all the way from Chicago, S. Sgt. Ronald C. Rexroat, plaques which will serve as mementos of the occasion.

While in Colorado Springs, Private Nuti will be toasted by several military commanders, civic leaders, and sergeants. The president of the Chamber of Commerce, John Sawyer, will give Private Nuti and Recruiter Rexroat each a deed to one square foot of land to famed 14,110-foot Pikes Peak.

A scenic tour of the area will include the Air Force Academy, the Garden of the Gods, Cheyenne Mountain Zoo, Seven Falls, and the Broadmoor community.

He will visit Maj. Gen. Autrey J. Maroun, commanding general of Fort Carson, and will appear on several radio and television interview programs.

Manitou Makes Offer to Buy Unused Building

Manitou Springs councilmen Thursday made two offers to the Broadmoor interests to buy an unused building for a city equipment center.

Alternate proposals were approved to buy the building at 515 Manitou Ave. They were:

—A cash offer of $9,000.

—Time payment plan of $5,000 down and $2,500 a year for the next two years at six per cent interest. This would be done without binding the next elected council to continue payments.

The city attorney was instructed to make the offer to the Broadmoor.

Mayor Lester Longaker said that $9,000 was available from existing city funds without curtailing planned programs, including the cemetery and water system improvement projects. "There would be no water bond money going toward this building," the mayor emphasized.

Councilmen feel the new building has a more centralized location than the present equipment center and is larger.

In other business at the special council meeting, which began at 1 p.m., councilmen:

—Discussed three applications to "pick the dump" for salable items. The applications were not formal or requested by the city. Councilmen also talked about hiring a dump keeper who might receive some of his pay in pickings.

—Discussed a liquor license transfer, an ash pit on Bluff Avenue and renewed a garbage contract.

Councilman William Cochran said the dump's presence was holding up development in east Manitou.

Eugene McCleary Enters Race for Re-Election

A petition was taken out Thursday to place incumbent City Councilman T. Eugene McCleary's name on the ballot for re-election in April.

The petition was taken out by School District 11 President Wilbur Marshall. McCleary was on the school board 12 years and at one time its president.

McCleary was elected to a two - year council seat in the April 1963 election. He smashed opponent Robert W. Johnson with 4,934 votes to Johnson's 2,778. He owns Motor Parts & Supply Co.

Election petitions have to be turned in not sooner than March 7 or later than March 17, according to the city clerk's office. Most petitions will be taken out during this 10 - day period if this year follows the pattern of past election years.

"It's awfull early to be taking out petitions," a city official commented.

The Gazette Telegraph reported last Sunday that petitions had been taken out for incumbent Councilman James K. Johnson, who was appointed tot he council, and City Planning Commission Chairman Andrew Marshall.

Two other councilmen would have to run in the April election to retain their seats. They are: Harry Hoth, mayor, and Carl Decker.

Widefield Band Will Present Program

The Widefield High School Band will present "'A Time in Tones" at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, in the school gymnasium.

Admissions are 25 cents for junior high students and under, and 50 cents for all other music lovers.

Selections will include "Garde Suite" by Walters; "Procession of the Nobles" by Rimsky-Korsakow, and "Lemon Merengue" by Stuart.

Judge Says Proof Burden Should Be on Those Who Plead Insanity

A person who pleads innocent by reason of insanity should be required to assume the burden of proof, Judge Mitchel Johns, chairman of the governor's committee to study the state's insanity laws, said here Thursday night.

Judge Johns was speaking at a dinner meeting of the Colorado Springs Chapter of the International Footprinters Association, a group composed two-thirds of law enforcement men and one-third of businessmen.

Judge Johns, who has headed the 18-man governor's committee since April, discussed the recommendations the committee has made to the governor and what he hopes the legislature might do in revising present laws.

"A person may be ill and he may be bad," Judge Johns told the nearly 150 persons in the audience, "but if the illness caused the badness, he is not considered accountable for his action.

"A crime, as defined by law, is the joint union of act and intent. When a person is arrested, he is schooled in his rights and after he has had a chance to retain counsel, he must submit a plea. In the courtroom, the prosecutor must then prove, beyond a reasonable doubt that the crime was committed by that defendant.

"But a person who pleads innocent by reason of insanity says that he should not be held accountable for his actions. Then the prosecutor must not only prove the person committed the crime, but he must prove the person was accountable.

"The first thing our committee did was to examine the present test for insanity as described by law.

"Under present laws, after a plea of insanity, the defendant is taken to one of the state hospitals for examination and observation not to exceed 30 days. The psychiatrist or psychiatrists report their findings to the judge.

"They can decide he was insane only at the time of the offense. In that case the court must direct the jury to find the defendant insane. If two psychiatrists disagree, the jury must consider the sanity plea and make its own decision. If the jury finds him sane, the defendant goes to trial on the charges. If they find him insane, he is sent to a state hospital until his release.

"We studied the definitions various states use to decide a man's sanity and finally realized that Colorado's is more definitive than any of the other tests and gives the jury some standards to go by. If the defendant did not know right from wrong, he is found insane.

"In this case, the jury hears the testimony of medical experts and considers the moral aspects of a man's relationship to his society. Then the jury must decide the defendant's legal, not his medical, accountability.

"Of course, occasionally you run across one like the Daniel Lee French case. French was referred to in the newspapers as the 'Midnight Rapist.' His plea was innocent by reason of insanity and he was sent to one of the hospitals where he refused to be observed or examined. He was sent there three different times and finally the judge decided to strike the insanity plea and try him on the straight charge.

"The case went to the State Supreme Court which held that he did not have to submit to examination or observation because it was an infringement on his Constitutional rights. Think of the position of the prosecuting attorney in this case. He had no evidence to prove the defendant was not insane while the defendant's case was made up entirely of evidence of his insanity.

Considering this type of problem, the committee recommended that it be made incumbent upon the defense to prove the defendant's sanity. There are 22 states which use this method now. In my opinion it's just plain fair. If the defendant is indigent, the committee also recommends that the court appoint a qualified psychiatrist to examine him.

"Another matter we considered was bonding persons who have pleaded insanity. The Colorado Constitution provides that a defendant be bondable unless it is a capital offense case. But if a person pleads insanity in any kind of case, the committee recommended that he not be bondable until after an examination. I thought the proposal was sound. If a man is a threat to his fellowman, we should deprive him of his freedom until the danger is verified one way or the other. But Monday the State Supreme Court said that you cannot deprive a man of his bond. That, of course, is the decision we will follow.

"We also studied a test for release of a defendant found insane and committed to one of the state hospitals. Many persons considered well but dangerous are released from these hospitals. But they are not free from such abnormal mental conditions as to make them dangerous to society. The recommendation of the committee was that these persons should be released only when they are no longer a threat to themselves or to their society."

Questions from the audience prompted Judge Johns to admit he had "no reflections on what will happen to the committee's recommendations when they get to the legislature in the form of a bill sometime next week.

"I don't know anything about this legislature," Judge Johns said, "there are so many new members, it would be hard to predict what will happen."

The judge also commented on a question concerning how qualified a jury is to decide a man's sanity.

"God deliver us from the experts," Judge Johns said. "A jury has the balance of the community. After hearing the testimony from the experts, a jury is the best qualified to decide."

Five Rare Coins Left on Gallery Counter Missing

A sack containing five rare coins valued at a total of $41 was taken from the counter of a local art gallery Thursday, police reported.

John M. Jenkins, 805 N. Foote Ave., took five rare coins into the Novis Art Gallery, 218 N. Tejon St., at 11:30 a.m. Thursday to have them framed. He left them with Mrs. Sidney Novis, who said she in turn left them on the counter while she was waiting on other customers. Mrs. Novis said the coins were in a paper sack.

Police said three of the coins were gold Sovereigns, while the other two were silver Shillings.

Stuttering Computer Aids Earning Ph.D.

Maj. Blaine R. Butler Jr., a research associate, received his Ph.D. this week at the winter commencement of Purdue University.

The major was one of four men receiving the first doctorates awarded by any university in bio - engineering for reporting new knowledge gained through the combination of electronics and biology.

From a study of psychological and other biological experiments demonstrating how stuttering is made worse or improved, Maj Butler postulated a simplified model of the human speech system on a computer.

He found that measures which increase or reduce human stuttering, when simulated by electronic impulses, produced comparable behavior on the computer.

Prof. Paul E. Stanley, head of Purdue's School of Aeronautics, Astronautics, and Engineering Sciences — who supervised the stuttering study — feels Maj. Butler's computer model may be followed by others that will help psychologists, physicians, and others acquire new understanding of various aspects of human speech and other systems, and to devise new means of preventing and treating human dysfunctions.

Crissey Fowler Low Bidder on County Work

Crissey Fowler Lumber Co. is apparent low bidder on 1,950 pieces of lumber to be purchased by El Paso County for construction work. The lumber will be used to replenish present stock and bids, opened by the county commissioners, were on the basis of per thousand board feet. Separate bids included size and delivery of the lumber.

Commissioners Re-Appoint 20 Employes

El Paso County's Commissioners re-appointed 20 persons to 20 jobs Thursday and left one position unfilled which does not now exist, but could if a uniform city - county building code is adopted.

Manitou Makes Offer to Buy Unused Building

Manitou Springs councilmen Thursday made two offers to the Broadmoor interests to buy an unused building for a city equipment center.

Alternate proposals were approved to buy the building at 515 Manitou Ave. They were:

—A cash offer of $9,000.

—Time payment plan of $5,000 down and $2,500 a year for the next two years at six per cent interest. This would be done without binding the next elected council to continue payments.

The city attorney was instructed to make the offer to the Broadmoor.

Mayor Lester Longaker said that $9,000 was available from existing city funds without curtailing planned programs, including the cemetery and water system improvement projects. "There would be no water bond money going toward this building," the mayor emphasized.

Councilmen feel the new building has a more centralized location than the present equipment center and is larger.

In other business at the special council meeting, which began at 1 p.m., councilmen:

—Discussed three applications to "pick the dump" for salable items. The applications were not formal or requested by the city. Councilmen also talked about hiring a dump keeper who might receive some of his pay in pickings.

—Discussed a liquor license transfer, an ash pit on Bluff Avenue and renewed a garbage contract.

Councilman William Cochran said the dump's presence was holding up development in east Manitou.

'Mr. 50,000' Greeted Here by Miss Teenage

Fellow passengers blinked in unbelief Wednesday as a young Army recruit from Chicago stepped from an airliner on arrival at Colorado Springs and was greeted by a pretty girl who handed him a bouquet of roses.

A delegation of Army officers and top-ranking non-commissioned officers stood by to greet the new soldier, Robert A. Nuti of Lombard, Ill. — or, as he has been known since Monday, "Mr. 50,000."

Private Nuti is the 50,000th volunteer recruited for duty at missile sites of the Army Air Defense Command (ARADCOM), which has its national headquarters here.

As pert Miss Diane Lynn Cox, "Miss Teenage America of 1962," welcomed Private Nuti, two fellow passengers who had walked by the welcoming delegation and then stood to watch the ceremony, shook their heads. One was heard to say, "That isn't the way they greeted me when I joined the Army!"

"They didn't treat me like that either!" his companion stated.

Shortly afterward, "Mr. 50,000" was whisked away from the airport in an Army sedan to the Mayfair Hotel in downtown Colorado Springs, where he will be quartered for three days of red-carpet activities in the area.

The highlight will come Thursday morning with a meeting during which Private Nuti will receive his first red-and-gold ARADCOM missile shoulder patches — usually tossed to recruits in a supply line — from Lt. Gen. Charles B. Duff, commanding general of the nationwide command.

Gen. Duff will also give him and the recruiter who accompanied Nuti all the way from Chicago, S. Sgt. Ronald C. Rexroat, plaques which will serve as mementos of the occasion.

While in Colorado Springs, Private Nuti will be toasted by several military commanders, civic leaders, and sergeants. The president of the Chamber of Commerce, John Sawyer, will give Private Nuti and Recruiter Rexroat each a deed to one square foot of land to famed 14,110-foot Pikes Peak.

A scenic tour of the area will include the Air Force Academy, the Garden of the Gods, Cheyenne Mountain Zoo, Seven Falls, and the Broadmoor community.

He will visit Maj. Gen. Autrey J. Maroun, commanding general of Fort Carson, and will appear on several radio and television interview programs.

Election petitions have to be turned in not sooner than March 7 or later than March 17, according to the city clerk's office. Most petitions will be taken out during this 10 - day period if this year follows the pattern of past election years.

"It's awfull early to be taking out petitions," a city official commented.

The Gazette Telegraph reported last Sunday that petitions had been taken out for incumbent Councilman James K. Johnson, who was appointed tot he council, and City Planning Commission Chairman Andrew Marshall.

Judge Says Proof Burden Should Be on Those Who Plead Insanity

A person who pleads innocent by reason of insanity should be required to assume the burden of proof, Judge Mitchel Johns, chairman of the governor's committee to study the state's insanity laws, said here Thursday night.

Judge Johns was speaking at a dinner meeting of the Colorado Springs Chapter of the International Footprinters Association, a group composed two-thirds of law enforcement men and one-third of businessmen.

Judge Johns, who has headed the 18-man governor's committee since April, discussed the recommendations the committee has made to the governor and what he hopes the legislature might do in revising present laws.

"A person may be ill and he may be bad," Judge Johns told the nearly 150 persons in the audience, "but if the illness caused the badness, he is not considered accountable for his action.

"A crime, as defined by law, is the joint union of act and intent. When a person is arrested, he is schooled in his rights and after he has had a chance to retain counsel, he must submit a plea. In the courtroom, the prosecutor must then prove, beyond a reasonable doubt that the crime was committed by that defendant.

"But a person who pleads innocent by reason of insanity says that he should not be held accountable for his actions. Then the prosecutor must not only prove the person committed the crime, but he must prove the person was accountable.

"The first thing our committee did was to examine the present test for insanity as described by law.

"Under present laws, after a plea of insanity, the defendant is taken to one of the state hospitals for examination and observation not to exceed 30 days. The psychiatrist or psychiatrists report their findings to the judge.

"They can decide he was insane only at the time of the offense. In that case the court must direct the jury to find the defendant insane. If two psychiatrists disagree, the jury must consider the sanity plea and make its own decision. If the jury finds him sane, the defendant goes to trial on the charges. If they find him insane, he is sent to a state hospital until his release.

"We studied the definitions various states use to decide a man's sanity and finally realized that Colorado's is more definitive than any of the other tests and gives the jury some standards to go by. If the defendant did not know right from wrong, he is found insane.

"In this case, the jury hears the testimony of medical experts and considers the moral aspects of a man's relationship to his society. Then the jury must decide the defendant's legal, not his medical, accountability.

"Of course, occasionally you run across one like the Daniel Lee French case. French was referred to in the newspapers as the 'Midnight Rapist.' His plea was innocent by reason of insanity and he was sent to one of the hospitals where he refused to be observed or examined. He was sent there three different times and finally the judge decided to strike the insanity plea and try him on the straight charge.

"The case went to the State Supreme Court which held that he did not have to submit to examination or observation because it was an infringement on his Constitutional rights. Think of the position of the prosecuting attorney in this case. He had no evidence to prove the defendant was not insane while the defendant's case was made up entirely of evidence of his insanity.

Considering this type of problem, the committee recommended that it be made incumbent upon the defense to prove the defendant's sanity. There are 22 states which use this method now. In my opinion it's just plain fair. If the defendant is indigent, the committee also recommends that the court appoint a qualified psychiatrist to examine him.

"Another matter we considered was bonding persons who have pleaded insanity. The Colorado Constitution provides that a defendant be bondable unless it is a capital offense case. But if a person pleads insanity in any kind of case, the committee recommended that he not be bondable until after an examination. I thought the proposal was sound. If a man is a threat to his fellowman, we should deprive him of his freedom until the danger is verified one way or the other. But Monday the State Supreme Court said that you cannot deprive a man of his bond. That, of course, is the decision we will follow.

"We also studied a test for release of a defendant found insane and committed to one of the state hospitals. Many persons considered well but dangerous are released from these hospitals. But they are not free from such abnormal mental conditions as to make them dangerous to society. The recommendation of the committee was that these persons should be released only when they are no longer a threat to themselves or to their society."

Questions from the audience prompted Judge Johns to admit he had "no reflections on what will happen to the committee's recommendations when they get to the legislature in the form of a bill sometime next week.

"I don't know anything about this legislature," Judge Johns said, "there are so many new members, it would be hard to predict what will happen."

The judge also commented on a question concerning how qualified a jury is to decide a man's sanity.

"God deliver us from the experts," Judge Johns said. "A jury has the balance of the community. After hearing the testimony from the experts, a jury is the best qualified to decide."

Stuttering Computer Aids Earning Ph.D.

Maj. Blaine R. Butler Jr., a research associate, received his Ph.D. this week at the winter commencement of Purdue University.

The major was one of four men receiving the first doctorates awarded by any university in bio - engineering for reporting new knowledge gained through the combination of electronics and biology.

From a study of psychological and other biological experiments demonstrating how stuttering is made worse or improved, Maj Butler postulated a simplified model of the human speech system on a computer.

He found that measures which increase or reduce human stuttering, when simulated by electronic impulses, produced comparable behavior on the computer.

Prof. Paul E. Stanley, head of Purdue's School of Aeronautics, Astronautics, and Engineering Sciences — who supervised the stuttering study — feels Maj. Butler's computer model may be followed by others that will help psychologists, physicians, and others acquire new understanding of various aspects of human speech and other systems, and to devise new means of preventing and treating human dysfunctions.

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP) — Trading was heavy as the stock market advanced to new highs early this afternoon following its clearing of the 900 closing level Thursday in the Dow Jones industrial average.

Blue chips again took market leadership as confidence rose from a continuing wave of glowing corporate reports on profits and dividends.

President Johnson's prediction of rising prosperity was supported by statistics showing gains in machine tool orders, construction contracts and living costs.

Gains of fractions to 1 or 2 points among key stocks pushed the popular averages further into record ground, even though profit taking nipped some prices and a wide assortment of leading issues showed little or no change.

Signs of growing public participation were reported following the penetration of the Dow 900 area despite its advance billing as a "psychological barrier" to further advance.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .9 at 337.6 with industrials up 1.9, rails up .3 and utilities off .1.

Westinghouse Electric tacked on more than a point to its 2-point jump of Thursday. Eastman Kodak and Anaconda also rose more than a point.

Big Three motors recovered to some extent.

Union Carbide and Texaco gained nearly a point each. Up fractionally were Allied Chemical, General Electric, Goodrich, Sears, Roebuck, United Aircraft, Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, Royal Dutch, Liggett & Myers, American Tobacco and MGM.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 2.73 at 903.68.

Prices were generally higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds declined.

African Group to Study Congo Issue

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The Organization of African Unity's Congo Conciliation Commission will send a committee to study the situation in the Congo and circumstances relating to it in neighboring Burundi and the Congo Brazzaville.

Commission Chairman Jomo Kenyatta, Kenya's president, told delegates in an open preliminary session that the committee should report back to the commission expeditiously.

Kenyatta said that since the commission met Dec. 1, there had been no material improvement in the Congo situation due to the continued presence of white mercenaries, the behavior of the Congolese central government in Leopoldville and refusal of rebels to heed a cease-fire request.

The territory of the Colorado Springs General Office comprises the entire southern half of the state and includes 31 agents.

Ingels Named National Institute State Broker

Hubert E. Ingels, a member of the Colorado Springs Board of Realtors, Inc., has been appointed State Chairman for Colorado the Headquarters office of the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers in Chicago, announced today.

The Institute — composed of 16,000 Realtors — is the largest affiliate of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and has as its main objective the education of its members to serve the public better.

One of Ingels most important duties will be to stimulate panel discussions on brokerage problems at real estate board meetings and during the state conventions. Through such discussions, Realtors are kept constantly up-to-date on new and proven methods in the way of realty advertising, financing and taxation. They are thus better able to serve the public in home buying and other realty investments.

Aetna Receives Top Premium Of $22 Million

Studebaker Corporation today announced it had delivered to the Aetna Life Insurance Co. of Hartford, Conn. the largest single insurance premium in the 112-year history of Aetna — nearly $22 million.

The premium is in payment of a group annuity contract to provide lifetime retirement incomes for approximately 3500 former Studebaker employees.

The amount, one of the largest ever paid in the insurance industry, was paid to Aetna Life from accounts held in trust by two New York banks.

The pensions for the approximately 3,500 employees being covered under the newly instituted Aetna Life plan, are being paid for with Studebaker contributions, accumulated over the lifetime of the pension agreement between Studebaker and the UAW AFL-CIO.

The psnione plan was first put into effect as part of a Studebaker-UAW agreement in 1950.

Under the Aetna Life plan, now in effect for the group of approximately 3,500 Studebaker people, retirement benefits are guaranteed for life.

Taxpayers Send Too Much Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has a message for taxpayers: Stop sending so much money.

The Internal Revenue Service says than 70 per cent of the mathematical errors discovered by electronic computers result from taxpayers making an overpayment through use of the wrong tax table.

The service said married taxpayers filling joint returns and single taxpayers have mistakenly used the tables designed only for married couples filing separate returns.

There was a tone of slight annoyance in the IRS statement: "Internal Revenue will certainly refund overpayments but urges all taxpayers to read instructions carefully so they will avoid using the wrong tax table."

TO MARRY

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Harve Presnell, who recently starred in the motion picture "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," announced plans in Tucson Thursday night to marry Veeva Brown, daughter of songwriter Stuart Hamblen.

No date has been set for the wedding. Both have been married once previously.

Chrysler Will Use New Car Exhaust Control

The Cleaner Air Package which Chrysler Corporation will install on all 1966 passenger cars and light trucks manufactured for sale in California is a simple, effective method fo exhaust control.

Chrysler development of the CAP — the first exhaust control system developed by a U.S car maker to be approved by the California Motor Vehicle Pollution Control Board — stems from a basic conviction that the place to burn the undesirables that contribute to air pollution is in the engine and not at some other location.

Charles M. Heinen, assistant chief engiener for chemical engineering development on Chrysler Corporation's engineering staff and the man who led the engineering team which developed the CAP, summed up its advantages:

"The principal advantages of CAP are that it effectively reduces exhaust emissions, is relatively inexpensive, is not complex, requires practically no additional maintenance beyond normal recommendations, and does not adversely affect the engine's economy or performance.

Heinen said the essential components of the factory-installed CAP are a modified carburetor, a slightly altered distributor, and a sensing valve which controls the spark adjusument during deceleration.

With CAP, the fuel-air mixture is burned more completely in the combustion chambers, and unburned chemical concentrations in the exhausts are reduced, Heinen said.

Taxpayers Can Deduct Auto Fees In Some States

Taxpayers can still deduct portions of auto fees in some states even though the Revenue Act of 1964 mostly abolished their deduction, except as a business expense or expense in the production of income, says Commerce Clearing House, national reporting authority on tax and business law.

In some states, auto fees include personal property tax on the vehicle. To qualify for income tax deduction, such registration fees must meet the requirements of a personal, property tax which is defined as an "ad valorem tax imposed on an annual basis in respect of personal property," according to the new tax law.

A motor vehicle tax based on weight, model year, and horsepower is not an "ad valorem" tax, CCH says. But if an auto license fee is based on other criteria, it could be a personal property tax, and, to that extent, would be deductible.

The Internal Revenue Service has set out three tests which must be met for a tax to qualify as a personal property tax: (1) the tax must be ad valorem — based on the value of the property; (2) the tax must be imposed on an annual basis, even if collected more or less frequently; and (3) the tax must be imposed on personal property.

Thus, auto license fees imposed by Arizona, California, Colorado, Iowa, Maine, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Nevada, Oklahoma, Washington and Wyoming are deductible, in whole or in part, as personal property taxes, CCH says.

By way of illustration, a state imposes a motor vehicle registration tax of 2 per cent of the value of the vehicle plus 30 cents per hundredweight. The taxpayer owns a car having a value of $2,000 and weighing 3,100 pounds. He pays an annual registration fee of $49.30. Of this amount, $40 (2 per cent of $2,000) would be deductible as a personal property tax. The remaining $9.30, based on the vehicle's weight, would not be deductible.

Taxpayers in states affected by this situation should check with their local IRS District directors to determine which part of the license fees is based on value and thus is deductible for federal tax purposes, CCH said.

DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Marcia Mae Jones, 39, former member of the "Our Gang" screen comedy troupe, was granted a divorce Thursday in Los Angeles from television writer Bill Davenport, also 39. They were married in 1955.

She testified he telephoned her once and said: "I love you and you love me, but I want a divorce and goodby."

She said he came home three months later.

Redbook Tells Of Stock and Bond Difference

INTELLIGENT INVESTING
By MORTON YARMON
Distributed by
NEA Special Services

By law, a corporation is defined as an artificial person chartered to do certain things.

In practice, a corporation is a group of real persons who get together with two thoughts in mind: to share business risks, and to find the money for expansion projects that cost too much for the resources of any single one of them.

The difference between stocks and bonds is rooted in the two basic ways in which the modern corporation can raise the money needed for expansion.

The corporation's original owners may decide to sell shares in their business—which means that whoever buys their shares will share in their profits or losses. Or they may decide to borrow money, promising to pay interest at a certain fixed rate and to repay, at a specified date, the money advanced to them.

When a company sells shares in its business, it issues stock. When it borrows money, it issues bonds.

So, when you buy a share of stock, you become a partner.

When you buy a bond, though, you become simply a creditor of the company. You do not become a part owner of the business any more than the bank becomes a part owner of your home when it lends you money through a mortgage.

Inherent in this difference is the reason why stocks are so much more popular with investors than bonds. For bonds give you a fixed rate of interest no matter what kind of profit the company makes. Also, when the bond — or loan — comes due, the company is obligated to pay back to you only the amount you originally loaned it. Because of this, the value of bonds generally fluctuates within a narrow range.

With stocks, on the other hand, the sky is the limit. If the company does well, profits can come to you in two ways: in dividends, and in the increase in the market value of the shares of the business that you own as other investors, hearing about the company's success, bid to get hold of its shares.

New Humidifier Has Top Capacity Officials Say

A new console humidifier with a built-in electronic air cleaner and 100 per cent more humidification capacity than that of any console or portable unit previously available was announced today by Hamilton Humid-Aire, Chicago.

Called the Humid-Aire Electra, the new unit can be used in houses, apartments, offices, schools, hospitals, hotels, motels, stores, showrooms, or wherever clean humidified air is desired.

The product was developed jointly by Hamilton Humid-Aire and Honeywell, Inc. It is especically recommended for the approximately 12 million U.S. houses and apartments heated by steam, hot water, or electricity, where a furnace humidifier can't be used.

Because it has a built-in electronic air cleaner, developed by Honeywell, the Electra can be used throughout the year. The air cleaner can be operated without the humidifier to remove 70 to 95 per cent of pollen, dust, smoke, and other minute foreign particles from the air passing through it.

Bill Breck Dodge To Supply 12 Police Cars

Bill Breck Dodge Inc. will supply the Colorado Springs Police Department with 12 four-door sedans and one station wagon.

City Purchasing Officer Wayne Jackson said the Dodge firm was the lowest of three bidders on the new vehicles for the department.

The new vehicles all have to meet police department specifications, especially in regard to engines.

Jackson said the police department will get delivery in 30 to 45 days. Nine trade-ins were involved in the bidding.

In Earning or Stealing, Californians Use System

By SAM CAMPBELL

The incidents referred to in the following letter are real, but the names are fictionized for the purpose of protecting the guilty.

Mr. Joe Bureaucrat,
Midwestville,
Midwest, U. S. A.

Dear Joe,

As a great admirer of yours, I should like to pass on a bit of information that may be helpful to you in your "business."

Please don't get me wrong. I still think you are tops in your field. The time you talked the school board of Podunk District 13 into floating a bond issue and then sold them two alarm clocks, a $200 set of maps, a world globe, and piano still stands out in my mind as a classic in petit larceny.

I grant you that the grand jury messed that one up a bit, but the court finally dismissed all charges. So, in spite of the bother, your little operation still beats working for a living.

However, Joe, since I've been in California for a spell, I do see spots where you can polish up your technique. Californians are more systematic in all that they undertake. The dairy farmers out here for instance don't waste acreage on pasture; they just put hay into one end of the cow and take milk out of the other. And the fruit farmers, Joe, plant their trees in rows like corn — contrasted with the way we used to do, one tree over yonder and another on the far hill.

That sounds as if I'm suggesting you should go out and earn an honest living? Relax, Joe, I wouldn't dream of offering such advice to you. What I'm talking about is principle. What I'm saying is that Californians have things down to a science — whether it's earning or stealing.

Now back to bureaucracy. That's what you're interested in. That's your modus operandi. Here's a sample of how we manage things in California.

Suppose, for instance, all the government schoolteachers in Garden Grove want to take a 12 days sick leave, Washington's and Lincoln's birthdays (which are dedicated to teaching nothing about Washington and Lincoln) etc.

The ringleaders in the deal put the proposition to buddy teachers of theirs in another district — say Oceanside, for example. They invite the Oceanside crew to come up for a visit. This takes place, then "thank you" letters are exchanged in which everyone tells what a swell time he had and how much he learned while playing hookey from his own school.

The Garden Grove teachers then take these letters to the school board and say, "Look how much the Oceanside folks learned. Why don't we all fan out over Southern California on such and such a Friday or Monday?"

To tie a ribbon on the package, they label it "enrichment." That's a nifty, eh Joe? The taxpayers have less, the pupils learn less, the teachers do less, but the program still is called ENRICHMENT. Will the school trustees fall for it? Of course, they will fall for it. There's a bit of the junketeer in all of us.

Joe, you old thief, file that one in your bag of tricks. The fine folks in your organization may just get a hankering for another long weekend in which to loaf, chin or night-club. True, the benefits in this maneuver are broadly distributed, but the total take amounts to a considerable sum.

Sam Sleek
Your California buddy

Aetna Receives Top Premium Of $22 Million

Studebaker Corporation today announced it had delivered to the Aetna Life Insurance Co. of Hartford, Conn. the largest single insurance premium in the 112 - year history of Aetna — nearly $22 million.

The premium is in payment of a group annuity contract to provide lifetime retirement incomes for approximately 3500 former Studebaker employees.

The amount, one of the largest ever paid in the insurance industry, was paid to Aetna Life from accounts held in trust by two New York banks.

The pensions for the approximately 3,500 employees being covered under the newly instituted Aetna Life plan, are being paid for with Studebaker contributions, accumulated over the lifetime of the pension agreement between Studebaker and the UAW AFL-CIO.

The pesione plan was first put into effect as part of a Studebaker - UAW agreement in 1950.

Under the Aetna Life plan, now in effect for the group of approximately 3,500 Studebaker people, retirement benefits are guaranteed for life.

Taxpayers Send Too Much Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has a message for taxpayers: Stop sending so much money.

The Internal Revenue Service says than 70 per cent of the mathematical errors discovered by electronic computers result from taxpayers making an overpayment through use of the wrong tax table.

The service said married taxpayers filling joint returns and single taxpayers have mistakenly used the tables designed only for married couples filing separate returns.

There was a tone of slight annoyance in the IRS statement: "Internal Revenue will certainly refund overpayments but urges all taxpayers to read instructions carefully so they will avoid using the wrong tax table."

No date has been set for the wedding. Both has been married once previously.

Chrysler Will Use New Car Exhaust Control

The Cleaner Air Package which Chrysler Corporation will install on all 1966 passenger cars and light trucks manufactured for sale in California is a simple, effective method fo exhaust control.

Chrysler development of the CAP — the first exhaust control system developed by a U.S car maker to be approved by the California Motor Vehicle Pollution Control Board — stems from a basic conviction that the place to burn the undesirables that contribute to air pollution is in the engine and not at some other location.

Charles M. Heinen, assistant chief engiener for chemical engineering development on Chrysler Corporation's engineering staff and the man who led the engineering team which developed the CAP, summed up its advantages:

"The principal advantages of CAP are that it effectively reduces exhaust emissions, is relatively inexpensive, is not complex, requires practically no additional maintenance beyond normal recommendations, and does not adversely affect the engine's economy or performance.

Heinen said the essential components of the factory - installed CAP are a modified carburetor, a slightly altered distributor, and a sensing valve which controls the spark adjustment during deceleration.

With CAP, the fuel - air mixture is burned more completely in the combustion chambers, and unburned chemical concentrations in the exhausts are reduced, Heinen said.

Taxpayers Can Deduct Auto Fees In Some States

Taxpayers can still deduct portions of auto fees in some states even though the Revenue Act of 1964 mostly abolished their deduction, except as a business expense or expense in the production of income, says Commerce Clearing House, national reporting authority on tax and business law.

In some states, auto fees include personal property tax on the vehicle. To qualify for income tax deduction, such registration fees must meet the requirements of a personal, property tax which is defined as an "ad valorem tax imposed on an annual basis in respect of personal property," according to the new tax law.

A motor vehicle tax based on weight, model year, and horsepower is not an "ad valorem" tax, CCH says. But if an auto license fee is based on other criteria, it could be a personal property tax, and, to that extent, would be deductible.

The Internal Revenue Service has set out three tests which must be met for a tax to qualify as a personal property tax: (1) the tax must be ad valorem — based on the value of the property; (2) the tax must be imposed on an annual basis, even if collected more or less frequently; and (3) the tax must be imposed on personal property.

Thus, auto license fees imposed by Arizona, California, Colorado, Iowa, Maine, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Nevada, Oklahoma, Washington and Wyoming are deductible, in whole or in part, as personal property taxes, CCH says.

By way of illustration, a state imposes a motor vehicle registration tax of 2 per cent of the value of the vehicle plus 30 cents per hundredweight. The taxpayer owns a car having a value of $2,000 and weighing 3,100 pounds. He pays an annual registration fee of $40.30. Of this amount, $40 (2 per cent of $2,000) would be deductible as a personal property tax. The remaining $0.30, based on the vehicle's weight, would not be deductible.

Taxpayers in states affected by this situation should check with their local IRS District directors to determine which part of the license fees is based on value and thus is deductible for federal tax purposes, CCH said.

Redbook Tells Of Stock and Bond Difference

EDITORS NOTE — This is the first of 20 stores to appear in the Gazette Telegraph related to facts appearing in the 1965 Red Book.

INTELLIGENT INVESTING
By MORTON YARMON
Distributed by
NEA Special Services

By law, a corporation is defined as an artificial person chartered to do certain things.

In practice, a corporation is a group of real persons who get together with two thoughts in mind: to share business risks, and to find the money for expansion projects that cost too much for the resources of any single one of them.

The difference between stocks and bonds is rooted in the two basic ways in which the modern corporation can raise the money needed for expansion. The corporation's original owners may decide to sell shares in their business—which means that whoever buys their shares will share in their profits or losses. Or they may decide to borrow money, promising to pay interest at a certain fixed rate and to repay, at a specified date ,the money advanced to them.

When a company sells shares in its business, it issues stock. When it borrows money, it issues bonds.

So, when you buy a share of stock, you become a partner.

When you buy a bond, though, you become simply a creditor of the company. You do not become a part owner of the business any more than the bank becomes a part owner of your home when it lends you money through a mortgage.

Inherent in this difference is the reason why stocks are so much more popular with investors than bonds. For bonds give you a fixed rate of interest no matter what kind of profit the company makes. Also, when the bond — or loan — comes due, the company is obligated to pay back to you only the amount you originally loaned it. Because of this, the value of bonds generally fluctuates within a narrow range.

With stocks, on the other hand, the sky is the limit. If the company does well, profits can come to you in two ways: in dividends, and in the increase in the market value of the shares of the business that you own as other investors, hearing about the company's success, bid to get hold of its shares.

New Humidifier Has Top Capacity Officials Say

A new console humidifier with a built-in electronic air cleaner and 100 per cent more humidification capacity than that of any console or portable unit previously available was announced today by Hamilton Humid-Aire, Chicago.

Called the Humid-Aire Electra, the new unit can be used in houses, apartments, offices, schools, hospitals, hotels, motels, stores, showrooms, or wherever clean humidified air is desired.

The product was developed jointly by Hamilton Humid-Aire and Honeywell, Inc. It is especically recommended for the approximately 12 million U.S. houses and apartments heated by steam, hot water, or electricity, where a furnace humidifier can't be used.

Because it has a built-in electronic air cleaner, developed by Honeywell, the Electra can be used throughout the year. The air cleaner can be operated without the humidifier to remove 70 to 95 per cent of pollen, dust, smoke, and other minute foreign particles from the air passing through it.

Bill Breck Dodge To Supply 12 Police Cars

Bill Breck Dodge Inc. will supply the Colorado Springs Police Department with 12 four-door sedans and one station wagon.

City Purchasing Officer Wayne Jackson said the Dodge firm was the lowest of three bidders on the new vehicles for the department.

The new vehicles all have to meet police department specifications, especially in regard to engines.

Jackson said the police department will get delivery in 30 to 45 days. Nine trade-ins were involved in the bidding.

In Earning or Stealing, Californians Use System

By SAM CAMPBELL

The incidents referred to in the following letter are real, but the names are fictionized for the purpose of protecting the guilty.

Mr. Joe Bureaucrat,
Midwestville,
Midwest, U. S. A.

Dear Joe,

Please don't get me wrong. I still think you are tops in your field. The time you talked the school board of Podunk District 13 into floating a bond issue and then sold them two alarm clocks, a $200 set of maps, a world globe, and piano still stands out in my mind as a classic in petit larceny.

I grant you that the grand jury messed that one up a bit, but the court finally dismissed all charges. So, in spite of the bother, your little operation still beats working for a living.

However, Joe, since I've been in California for a spell, I do see spots where you can polish up your technique. Californians are more systematic in all that they undertake. The dairy farmers out here for instance don't waste acreage on pasture; they just put hay into one end of the cow and take milk out of the other. And the fruit farmers, Joe, plant their trees in rows like corn — contrasted with the way we used to do, one tree over yonder and another on the far hill.

That sounds as if I'm suggesting you should go out and earn an honest living? Relax, Joe, I wouldn't dream of offering such advice to you. What I'm talking about is principle. What I'm saying is that Californians have things down to a science — whether it's earning or stealing.

Now back to bureaucracy. That's what you're interested in. That's your modus operandi. Here's a sample of how we manage things in California.

Suppose, for instance, all the government schoolteachers in Garden Grove want to take a 12 days sick leave, Washington's and Lincoln's birthdays (which are dedicated to teaching nothing about Washington and Lincoln) etc.

The ringleaders in the deal put the proposition to buddy teachers of theirs in another district — say Oceanside, for example. They invite the Oceanside crew to come up for a visit. This takes place, then "thank you" letters are exchanged in which everyone tells what a swell time he had and how much he learned while playing hookey from his own school.

The Garden Grove teachers then take these letters to the school board and say, "Look how much the Oceanside folks learned. Why don't we all fan out over Southern California on such and such a Friday or Monday?"

To tie a ribbon on the package, they label it "enrichment." That's a nifty, eh Joe? The taxpayers have less, the pupils learn less, the teachers do less, but the program still is called ENRICHMENT. Will the school trustees fall for it? Of course, they will fall for it. There's a bit of the junketeer in all of us.

Joe, you old thief, file that one in your bag of tricks. The fine folks in your organization may just get a hankering for another long weekend in which to loaf, chin or night-club. True, the benefits in this maneuver are broadly distributed, but the total take amounts to a considerable sum.

Your California buddy

Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Obligations Incurred By Voting

We are engaged in discussing various facets of some questions raised recently by Howard Selden in his letter to the editor yesterday.

He asks: "When an eligible voter registers and signs the registration form has he not acknowledged the contract made on behalf of his ancestors by the State of which they were citizens?"

Let us consider the question of voting.

All of the voting that has ever taken place under the Constitution is of such a kind and nature that it not only does not pledge all of the people of the nation to be bound by the result, it does not actually pledge even the people who voted to be bound.

This is true, if we believe in the individual rights of free men. If a man is to be bound by his free act, he must not only register to vote, he must register publicly as to the way he voted. The system we employ and have always employed is a system of secrecy. Whereas we know which men were REGISTERED to vote; we do not know which of those registered and who also voted, chose one way or another.

Now the man who voted in favor of X could, if he were known, be held as supporting the policies instituted by X. But if he voted for X, and Y was elected by a plurality, has not the voter already indicated in the only way open to him, that he does not choose to be bound by Y?

It is a curious doctrine which would hold that a man who employs the approved method of indicating that he does not choose to be ruled by Y, is to be ruled by Y and even approves of Y, if Y happens to be the winner.

However, the fact that the voting was done in secret removes this onus. We do not know, nor can we discover who voted for whom. Therefore the winner, Y or X can assume that EVERYONE he knows or talks with MUST have approved of him. He does not know, nor can he discover to the contrary.

Or, look at it this way. Certainly the act of voting could bind no one but the voter who got what he voted for. But it would not bind him in support of anything beyond the term of the party for whom he voted. Let us suppose that a voter favors by ballot a Mr. X, whose term of office is four years.

If Mr. X wins power, then the voter could be construed as having approved in advance the actions of Mr. X for a four year period. Such approval on his part, however, could hardly be construed as binding upon others who voted in a contrary manner or who did not vote at all. And it certainly would not bind the voter beyond the term specified.

Since only a plurality of the total population have within the last several decades approved even of the winner in each case, it is reasonable to assert that the winners of all elections within our life times have been sanctioned only by a plurality and never by a majority if we count those who did not vote as well as those who voted in opposition. Even if it were a majority, there is nothing in nature or in the ordinary concept of morality which binds an individual against his will, in the absence of any crime.

Or we might expand the argument thusly: The fact that some persons vote should not be construed as indicating their approval of either the Constitution or the rulership of anyone seeking office under it. The voter sees that the government is taking a great deal of money from him. He discovers that this process rests (he presumes) upon balloting. He disapproves of the process. However, he discovers that if he uses the ballot and, perchance wins, he may get to share in the loot. So, rather than being the defenseless victim of the voting of others; he joins in the voting, hoping either to lessen their forays against him; or at worst, to get some of the loot by causing legislation to be enacted to his benefit.

Compare this to a condition of war. A man is drafted and thrust into the front lines. He sees that if he is to survive he will have to kill, or be killed. This may induce him to kill. But in no way does this induce his approval of killing or of the war itself.

As Mr. Selden indicated, he himself thinks of voting as a defense measure. But the fact that he seeks to defend himself in this way, in no way demonstrates his approval, either of the results of the contest, or of the fact of the contest. He might instead, begin to reason that since he has not been drafted (to vote) and the matter is still a voluntary one, in so far as he is concerned, that he might better express his antipathy by avoiding this appeal to mass and to force entirely.

Scare 'em, Control 'em

Those who seek governmental power in order to control others of their fellow men are adept at emotional appeals although they seem immune to logic. They often paint imaginary pictures of terrible conditions which would seldom, if ever, occur and, on the basis of one in a million situations, arouse emotions to the point where they gain government control over activities in which other people engage in the course of their lives.

They scare people by emotional articles about "straw men" situations, and in gaining power to control those so scared, they also gain power to control common ordinary activities of sound substantial people.

Speed Three Miles per Year

The Colorado Interstate Gas Company is to be commended on its unceasing efforts to interest the large industrial corporations in the advantages of locating branch factories and regional offices in the Rocky Mountain West.

To Interstate Gas should go a good deal of the credit for the continued growth of the area. This growth has been beneficial to all of us. The fact that it also benefits the gas company and is the main reason behind their year-long advertising campaigns extolling the region does not detract from desirability of the benefits derived for the rest of the community from such advertising.

We can do no better here than quote from a handsome brochure the gas company has issued as a starter for this year's campaign:

"One hundred and seventy-five years ago, the center of population of the continental United States was 23 miles east of Baltimore. By 1920, it had reached the vicinity of Spencer, Indiana. In the 1940s it crossed into Illinois, and it is still plodding determinedly westward at a rate of something like three miles a year. Principal reason is, of course, the spectacular population gain of the West Coast. America's major marketing areas are no longer confined to the Atlantic Seaboard; they are on both oceans. And in between, the Midwest and Rocky Mountain West areas are growing fast. For a manufacturer, this means a central location is an unbeatable advantage — other things being equal. And in the Rocky Mountain West, most other things are better than equal. Transportation facilities, for example, are excellent. The work force is better schooled than in most other areas. Natural resources abound. Research facilities, private and governmental, are surprisingly comprehensive. All the services industry needs are at hand — including natural gas at rates among the nation's lowest."

This ad appeared in the January 25 issue of The Pacific Coast edition of The Wall Street Journal.

It is such advertising as the above, along with the boosting by the local and state chambers of commerce, that are making business and industry throughout the nation "Colorado conscious."

Colorado has the room, the central location, the natural resources and the "natural" climate to allow for profitable business expansion in both the local and the national fields. And, thanks to the favorable publicity it has been receiving lately, many large and small corporations are beginning to take note of our state's advantages.

We used quotation marks around the word natural in speaking of our climate to indicate we were not thinking of the tax climate which is something else again. Our tax climate is worsening annually and, unless something is done to create a better atmosphere in this area, Colorado may soon come to look not quite so favorable to some who are presently considering factories or branches here.

We have as yet found no way of controlling the natural climate but, fortunately, we can, and certainly should, do something about our tax climate.

INAUGURAL CRITICISM

To the Editor:

This is just a healthy criticism by a healthy citizen in a healthy country:

Why did President Johnson wear an everyday suit on this an only-one-day-occasion? Not that I expected the President to wear a shining suit of armor or a gold space-suit. Although the latter might be donned by a future President for some yet unforseen occasion. But I do think I am justified in feeling that such an occasion as the swearing-in of our President merits the wearing of something other than an everyday-suit — perhaps an accouterment to symbolize leadership.

Whilst I am penning my opinion on the inaugural subject I would like to continue on the inaugural parade. Whilst the parade did lack a good showing of the space-age we live in, it certainly did not lack a feeling of youth and freedom — both of which were expressly generated by the wonderful majorettes and the "Indian Queens" from California.

Unfortunately, the President had to leave the viewing stand a few times so I do hope that those paraders who found no smiling President as they passed the viewing stand were not too disappointed.

And I also hope that the throngs of people along the parade route applauded their approval and enjoyment of the parade.

GIANT FRAUD

To the Editor:

I would like to ask reader N. J. Carter the following question:

Would you like to be forced to support with your time and your money that which you thought was wrong, harmful, undesirable, destructive, malevolent or evil?

I do not think it possible to honestly answer "yes" to that question. In your case, Mr. Carter, an affirmative response would mean, for instance, that you would favor massive taxation to support a federal aid program for the John Birch Society, or to support nationwide TV dissemination of the freedom philosophy of the Gazette Telegraph. Therefore, I assume that your answer will be a loud "no!" In that case you and the Gazette Telegraph, ironically, are in complete agreement. But the Gazette Telegraph is consistent in that it extends its philosophy to every individual on earth. You, Mr. Carter, extend your philosophy only to include yourself and whomever else there might be who thinks exactly as you do. I stand completely with the Gazette Telegraph. I do not like being forced to support that which I think is undesirable, and I do not advocate forcing others to do what I think is desirable. But you, Mr. Carter, like all coercivists, want to force others to do what you think is "good." You want to decide for yourself what is "good" and you want to decide for me and for everyone else also. In short, you act as if you are omniscient and are striving for the omnipotence to match this omniscience.

Let's look at the "war on poverty" a moment. Mr. Carter thinks that what is involved here is "good." Does Mr. Carter think that it is "good" because the Johnson gang is going to take some property away from someone else and give it to Mr. Carter? Or does he think that it is "good" because the Johnson gang is going to confiscate some of Mr. Carter's property and give it to someone else? Or, does he think that it is "good" because the Johnson gang, rather than the Goldwater gang, is doing the looting, and if the Goldwater gang were doing the same looting, would that make it "bad?"

Just to set the record straight, the "war on poverty" is another giant fraud. "Poverty" is a lack of property. Property is created through the productive effort of individual men. The only thing that stimulates men to produce as abundantly as possible is their assurance that they can keep what they produce. If a man knows that what he is producing will be taken from him, his production will cease. Most of us now know that washing machines, TV sets and beefsteak do not fall like manna from heaven. But very few of us know that they do not fall like manna from Washington either. "The natural condition of man is extreme povergy and insecurity." (von Mises — Human Action, page 165). Another natural condition of individual man is his inclination to exploit his own productive efforts to the best of his ability — which means that he is engaged in producing as much property as he can. Government (that is, coercion) can do nothing to aid the producer of property except by "the alacity with which it gets out of the way," to quote Thoreau.

The "war on poverty" is another scheme whereby the non-producers get some of the property of the producers without the social and physical risk of walking into the bank with the mask over their face and their guns drawn. I don't expect Mr. Carter to understand that however. Mr. Carter is probably mesmerized by the euphonious title of "war on poverty." If the same program were to proceed under the title of the "Johnson Fascist Plunder Plan" or, the "Johnson Clan Plunder Plan," would you be as enthusiastic, Mr. Carter? To put the program under one of the above suggested titles would actually raise the moral level of the horror since fraud would not then be involved. But I doubt that it would raise the popularity level.

Do you feel as comfortable supporting the "Johnson Fascist Plunder Plan" as you did before the name change, Mr. Carter?

ZIP CODE

To the Editor:

With the United States put on a Zip Code System by the Postmaster General (What's his name, Granowski?), one wonders would that make the people of the United States a nation of "Zippers?" If so, the Hebrew peoples might not care to be associated with it, as the Hebrew word, "Tsippor" (translated "bird" or "fowl") is the base word or origin of the name Tsipporah or Zipporah (translated "little bird" (or "lady bird," possibly?), which was the name of the Ethiopian woman (apparently) which Moses married and which (or who) was greatly resented by Aaron and Marion (Hebrew for "Mary"), brother and sister of Moses. It is interesting to note, that if her name was "bird," and if she were of the black race (Ethiopian), then she might have been referred to as "black-bird," which description also fits the raven — a vulture, an eater of dead bodies. (For an interesting description of what happened to Marion (Mary) as a result of her resentment, read the account in the Bible.)

Now, let us compare the story of Noah and the Ark. Noah first "sent forth a raven" and then a dove, but only the dove brought him an olive leaf (still known today as representing "Peace"). Where did he get it, in a cleft of the rock where the raven could not go? Or was it simply that the dove had an affinity for the olive leaf that the raven did not have? In Genesis, the raven is said to have gone "forth to and fro." In Job we read, the Lord said unto Satan, "Whence comest thou?" Then Satan answered the Lord, and said, "From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it." (He brought no peace either.) So we see the birds as symbols, one representing Satan's spirit, Lust, the other representing the spirit of Love, which can give peace to the heart. Had Noah sent only the Raven, he would not have received the olive leaf; what prompted him to send the dove?

Are we a nation of Tsippors (birds)? If so, white, or black? Doves or ravens?

LITTERBUGGING

To the Editor:

Young lovers who like to neck along side lonely roads, dark highways during evenings at night or where ever this might take place, pull their car along side of curbs throwing trash and beer cans out the window. This kind of litter-bugging is something not so good. Also our streams, creeks, are being polluted in many kinds of ways. This is no way to keep the water clean for wild life, fishing, drinking or other many uses, such a sight to witness. Look at our freeways along side where there are many very bad attractions of wrecked car lots. This is a filthy view for out of staters to look at. Why isn't there something done to put a stop to all this kind of mess?

A Prayer Is Answered

By RUFUS L. PORTER

Many doubt the power of prayer,
And many scoff and do not care,
And many laugh and ridicule
And call a praying man a fool.

And timid souls, ashamed to pray
For fear of what the neighbors say,
Spend their lives betwixt and between
With little faith on which to lean.

And some there are, it sounds absurd,
Whose voices God has never heard
Until they meet with troubles great
And then they hope it's not too late.

But men of faith and courage too
Praise God in everything they do.
They know He's just, they know He's fair,
They know He often answers prayer.

They know He found the church a bell
In Cripple Creek and all is well.
The bell's a blessing and a boon
And all will hear it ringing soon;

Ringing loud and ringing clear
For all of Cripple Creek to hear,
And maybe when they hear it ring
More folks will come to pray and sing.

I just received a letter from my good friend the Reverend Virgil L. Kellog of Cripple Creek, and he tells a heartwarming tale of needs and wants and answered prayers.

Virgil preaches at the United Church of Cripple Creek but, due to the shutdown of the mines and mill three years ago, the church has been having a difficult time, especially in the finance department, but also in the spiritual and community interest as well.

And the minister had one pet project that he despaired of ever realizing. But he did pray and so did members of his congregation and their faith must have been strong for, lo, their prayers were answered.

This wish, so dear to the preacher's heart, was for a church bell. Old as that church is and as well attended as it was for many years (even in my own time in the camp) it had never had a bell. And my friend set his heart upon finding one.

Then along came Miss Donna Logan, formerly a reporter on the Gazette Telegraph staff, but now working in this area for a Denver newspaper, and she did a story on the United Church of Cripple Creek, mentioning its needs and especially the bell. As Virgil says, "So far nothing unusual."

But he grew up in a small Indiana town, Columbia City by name, and as a youth he played around with a couple of boys named Travelbee. But he hadn't seen them nor his home town in 30 years. But it so happened that one of his early playmates, is an insurance man in Aurora, Colorado now and he read the piece about the Cripple Creek church and mailed it back to his home town paper where it was re-printed in the Columbia City Post, from which Virgil says he made his first million peddling papers.

Now comes the clincher. A Mrs. George L. Clark, who remembered Virgil as a boy, read the piece and wrote to him. She said that a relative of hers, Roy Clark, had become a collector of bells and that upon his death she had inherited a whole basement full of them in all sizes and kinds. From here on I will quote from Virgil's letter, he says it better than I can:

"She also went on to say that she liked the story about the church — and that she had an excellent church bell in the collection — and that we could have it. So — who says that God does not work in strange and wondrous ways? It has been more than 30 years since I knew any of these people, yet by the strange turn of events, the church at Cripple Creek will soon have a bell. One from my old home town in Indiana!

"Further, just to confuse those who do not believe, this Monday last, while I was wondering how to raise the money to ship the bell out here and build a mount for it, I received a check in the mail from three eastern churches that I had never heard of, but who knew our need.

"So, the bell is on its way and — hopefully — some of these Sundays soon, the early risers and the late drinkers (we have plenty of both here) will notice a new sound in old Cripple Creek, the ringing of the bell calling folks to the United Church.

"So, that is my story. Some will scoff, some will even laugh, but perhaps some will also think! Man can do little. But God can, and does, do much."

Poverty Level

From National Association of Manufacturers Publication

When the federal government asserts its right to tax your income its claim has first priority. It may tax you for the purpose of sending an ice show to Africa at a time when you need the money for an operation. The fact that you obviously have need for your money — and should have a better claim on it than Congolese ice-skating fans — will avail you nothing in your conference with the Internal Revenue Service.

Fewer Americans would have trouble meeting their medical bills if our government had not spent and wasted so much of their earnings through the years. That's something to remember now that the administration is urging that the government take on more responsibility for our health.

The bills for this will go to the taxpayer. He will benefit only if his health problems happen to fit neatly into the particular medical approaches Washington sets up. If you should happen not to qualify for treatment under the federal programs, the new federal taxes would still sap you to pay for the ailments of others and leave you so much less solvent to pay for your own care.

Under the administration's new plans, even persons under the $3,000-a-year "poverty level" will have the obligation to meet hospital bills for anyone over 65, no matter how wealthy. The bread-winner who is fighting a battle against crippling arthritis will see part of his earnings tapped to treat others whose ailments may be cardiovascular.

Need will be no criterion for federal help, and hardship will bring no relief from the costs. Persons of some ages and with some diseases will have claim on the resources of us all, while others in greater need and with diseases as serious will be only on the paying end.

These new health programs seem sure of enactment in this Congress. National polls show that those who most favor them are ignorant of what they contain. Once these plans are enacted, we may expect that Congress will be asked to liberalize them — at least until they provide what most people think they provide now.

Ultimately, if this start is made, we may expect the federal government to assume responsibility for all medical costs. Anyone who believes that it will cost American families less this way just doesn't know the record of the federal government.

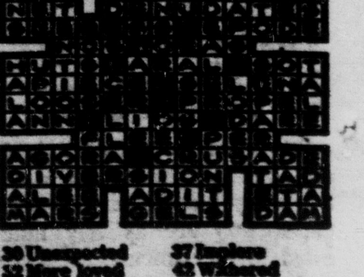
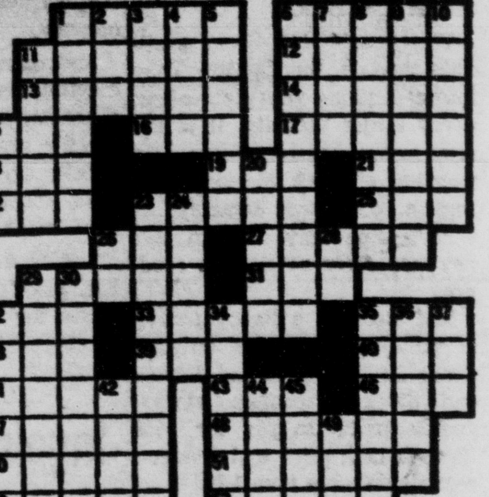
Answer to Previous Puzzle





These Days

Is Moscow Cozying Up To Red China?

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

In common with most other commentators who listen to professional Kremlinologists, this columnist has been heartened by the difficulties which the Soviets have been having with Red China. But Vladimir Petrov, a teacher of Russian studies at Yale University who reads Moscow's "Pravda" and "Izvestia" with his morning coffee, takes a disturbing minority exception to the general rejoicing over the reported Sino-Soviet troubles. Contrary to general belief in Washington, where President Johnson is hoping for a bid to visit Moscow, Petrov finds "the evidence of the Sinto-Soviet rapproachment following Khrushchev's demise overwhelming." I had asked him to check through Soviet publications for the past three months, and he comes up with a disenchanting pattern.

"Whatever the Sino-Soviet differences are," he says ,"they are subordinated to the needs of re-establishment of the united front against the U.S., which in their book takes precedence over everything else. Moreover, I am convinced that in the last three months certain far-reaching decisions have been made both in Moscow and Peiping related to the build-up of pressure against us at all the fronts where we have a good chance to lose. Only fools can ignore the gathering storm."

SPLITTERS

This is a sweeping conclusion, and it is not what any of us want to hear. Mr. Petrov justifies it because—

1. After months of vituperation, sometimes most violent, all Soviet publications have cut off unfavorable comment about Communist China. The change in tone, says Petrov, is startling.

2. Chou En-lai's visit to Moscow for the celebration of the October revolution was reported with some reserve, but Petrov sees significance in the fact that it was reported as fully as it was.

3. On December 12 "Pravda" printed an article by Comrade Sardesia of the Indian Communist party that was somewhat critical of his fellow-Communists who favored China (the so-called Indian "splitters"). A few days later "Pravda" did penance for this by printing a long report from Bombay on the proceedings of the seventh congress of the Indian Communist party. It didn't contain a single reference to Red China's intrigues or to the bad split within the Indian Communist movement.

4. After Khrushchev's departure, the Soviet papers stepped up their attacks on the U.S. position in South Vietnam. The attacks slavishly followed Mao Tse-tung's line.

5. Moscow has been hailing the leaders and rebels who are most closely associated with Peiping: Ben Bella in Algeria, the Simbas in the Congo, Sukarno in Indonesia, Castro in Cuba. This could be interpreted as competition with Red China for influence, but it is nonetheless curious that all the Peiping-blessed Red regimes began to get a larger share of promises and praise from Moscow after Khrushchev's removal.

6. Petrov notes that visiting Soviet citizens — actors, writers and so on — have stopped taking small gifts from Americans. They are keeping a "correct" distance.

INTERNAL DIFFICULTIES

All of this could, of course, be interpreted as the desire of Brezhnev and Kosygin, the two "new" men in charge of Soviet destinies, to find a space for maneuver vis-a-vis the Chinese which Khrushchev had denied himself. Some observers report the emergence of a pro-Soviet clique in Peiping, which complicates the issue. In any event, the view of this column is that the internal difficulties in the Red world from Poland and Czechoslovakian east to Siberia are so great that a firm group of western nations can face the Russians down no matter what Soviet relations with the Chinese may be. But my worry, as always, is that the West, in its pursuit of la dolce vita, will try to "build bridges" to Soviet Europe without gaining any economic or political advantage from them. There are still World War II lend-lease debts to be settled. There are still those "hate America" riots and the embassy and library vandalism to be called off. Hungary recently signed an agreement of forebearance with the Vatican. But it has nevertheless been arresting and sentencing Catholic priests for teaching religion to children without a permit. Eight prisoners who were children when they took part in the Hungarian revolution still go unpardoned, although Secretary of State Dean Rusk has intervened for at least one of them. East Germany wants machinery, which could still be delivered through a hole in the Berlin Wall.

So it goes as we talk about "bridge building." We still have advantages to press even though we may not be able to count on that [illegible]

Obligations Incurred By Voting

We are engaged in discussing various facets of some questions raised recently by Howard Selden in his letter to the editor yesterday.

He asks: "When an eligible voter registers and signs the registration form has he not acknowledged the contract made on behalf of his ancestors by the State of which they were citizens?"

Let us consider the question of voting.

All of the voting that has ever taken place under the Constitution is of such a kind and nature that it not only does not pledge all of the people of the nation to be bound by the result, it does not actually pledge even the people who voted to be bound.

This is true, if we believe in the individual rights of free men. If a man is to be bound by his free act, he must not only register to vote, he must register publicly as to the way he voted. The system we employ and have always employed is a system of secrecy. Whereas we know which men were REGISTERED to vote; we do not know which of those registered and who also voted, chose one way or another.

Now the man who voted in favor of X could, if he were known, be held as supporting the policies instituted by X. But if he voted for X, and Y was elected by a plurality, has not the voter already indicated in the only way open to him, that he does not choose to be bound by Y?

It is a curious doctrine which would hold that a man who employs the approved method of indicating that he does not choose to be ruled by Y, is to be ruled by Y and even approves of Y, if Y happens to be the winner.

However, the fact that the voting was done in secret removes this onus. We do not know, nor can we discover who voted for whom. Therefore the winner, Y or X can assume that EVERYONE he knows or talks with MUST have approved of him. He does not know, nor can he discover to the contrary.

Or, look at it this way. Certainly the act of voting could bind no one but the voter who got what he voted for. But it would not bind him in support of anything beyond the term of the party for whom he voted. Let us suppose that a voter favors by ballot a Mr. X, whose term of office is four years.

If Mr. X wins power, then the voter could be construed as having approved in advance the actions of Mr. X for a four year period. Such approval on his part, however, could hardly be construed as binding upon others who voted in a contrary manner or who did not vote at all. And it certainly would not bind the voter beyond the term specified.

Since only a plurality of the total population have within the last several decades approved even of the winner in each case, it is reasonable to assert that the winners of all elections within our life times have been sanctioned only by a plurality and never by a majority if we count those who did not vote as well as those who voted in opposition. Even if it were a majority, there is nothing in nature or in the ordinary concept of morality which binds an individual against his will, in the absence of any crime.

Or we might expand the argument thusly: The fact that some persons vote should not be construed as indicating their approval of either the Constitution or the rulership of anyone seeking office under it. The voter sees that the government is taking a great deal of money from him. He discovers that this process rests (he presumes) upon balloting. He disapproves of the process. However, he discovers that if he uses the ballot and, perchance wins, he may get to share in the loot. So, rather than being the defenseless victim of the voting of others; he joins in the voting, hoping either to lessen their forays against him; or at worst, to get some of the loot by causing legislation to be enacted to his benefit.

Compare this to a condition of war. A man is drafted and thrust into the front lines. He sees that if he is to survive he will have to kill, or be killed. This may induce him to kill. But in no way does this induce his approval of killing or of the war itself.

As Mr. Selden indicated, he himself thinks of voting as a defense measure. But the fact that he seeks to defend himself in this way, in no way demonstrates his approval, either of the results of the contest, or of the fact of the contest. He might instead, begin to reason that since he has not been drafted (to vote) and the matter is still a voluntary one, in so far as he is concerned, that he might better express his antipathy by avoiding this appeal to mass and to force entirely.

Scare 'em, Control 'em

Those who seek governmental power in order to control others of their fellow men are adept at emotional appeals although they seem immune to logic. They often paint imaginary pictures of terrible conditions which would seldom, if ever, occur and, on the basis of one in a million situations, arouse emotions to the point where they gain government control over activities in which other people engage in the course of their lives.

They scare people by emotional articles about "straw men" situations, and in gaining power to control those so scared, they also gain power to control common ordinary activities of sound substantial people.

Speed Three Miles per Year

The Colorado Interstate Gas Company is to be commended on its unceasing efforts to interest the large industrial corporations in the advantages of locating branch factories and regional offices in the Rocky Mountain West.

To Interstate Gas should go a good deal of the credit for the continued growth of the area. This growth has been beneficial to all of us. The fact that it also benefits the gas company and is the main reason behind their year-long advertising campaigns extolling the region does not detract from desirability of the benefits derived for the rest of the community from such advertising.

We can do no better here than quote from a handsome brochure the gas company has issued as a starter for this year's campaign:

"One hundred and seventy-five years ago, the center of population of the continental United States was 23 miles east of Baltimore. By 1920, it had reached the vicinity of Spencer, Indiana. In the 1940s it crossed into Illinois, and it is still plodding determinedly westward at a rate of something like three miles a year. Principal reason is, of course, the spectacular population gain of the West Coast. America's major marketing areas are no longer confined to the Atlantic Seaboard; they are on both oceans. And in between, the Midwest and Rocky Mountain West areas are growing fast. For a manufacturer, this means a central location is an unbeatable advantage — other things being equal. And in the Rocky Mountain West, most other things are better than equal. Transportation facilities, for example, are excellent. The work force is better schooled than in most other areas. Natural resources abound. Research facilities, private and governmental, are surprisingly comprehensive. All the services industry needs are at hand — including natural gas at rates among the nation's lowest."

This ad appeared in the January 25 issue of The Pacific Coast edition of The Wall Street Journal.

It is such advertising as the above, along with the boosting by the local and state chambers of commerce, that are making business and industry throughout the nation "Colorado conscious."

Colorado has the room, the central location, the natural resources and the "natural" climate to allow for profitable business expansion in both the local and the national fields. And, thanks to the favorable publicity it has been receiving lately, many large and small corporations are beginning to take note of our state's advantages.

We used quotation marks around the word natural in speaking of our climate to indicate we were not thinking of the tax climate which is something else again. Our tax climate is worsening annually and, unless something is done to create a better atmosphere in this area, Colorado may soon come to look not quite so favorable to some who are presently considering factories or branches here.

We have as yet found no way of controlling the natural climate but, fortunately, we can, and certainly should, do something about our tax climate.

INAUGURAL CRITICISM

To the Editor:

This is just a healthy criticism by a healthy citizen in a healthy country:

Why did President Johnson wear an everyday suit on this an only-one-day-occasion? Not that I expected the President to wear a shining suit of armor or a gold space-suit. Although the latter might be donned by a future President for some yet unforseen occasion. But I do think I am justified in feeling that such an occasion as the swearing-in of our President merits the wearing of something other than an everyday-suit — perhaps an accouterment to symbolize leadership.

Whilst I am penning my opinion on the inaugural subject I would like to continue on the inaugural parade. Whilst the parade did lack a good showing of the space-age we live in, it certainly did not lack a feeling of youth and freedom — both of which were expressly generated by the wonderful majorettes and the "Indian Queens" from California.

Unfortunately, the President had to leave the viewing stand a few times so I do hope that those paraders who found no smiling President as they passed the viewing stand were not too disappointed.

And I also hope that the throngs of people along the parade route applauded their approval and enjoyment of the parade.

GIANT FRAUD

To the Editor:

I would like to ask reader N. J. Carter the following question:

Would you like to be forced to support with your time and your money that which you thought was wrong, harmful, undesirable, destructive, malevolent or evil?

I do not think it possible to honestly answer "yes" to that question. In your case, Mr. Carter, an affirmative response would mean, for instance, that you would favor massive taxation to support a federal aid program for the John Birch Society, or to support nationwide TV dissemination of the freedom philosophy of the Gazette Telegraph. Therefore, I assume that your answer will be a loud "no!" In that case you and the Gazette Telegraph, ironically, are in complete agreement. But the Gazette Telegraph is consistent in that it extends its philosophy to every individual on earth. You, Mr. Carter, extend your philosophy only to include yourself and whomever else there might be who thinks exactly as you do. I stand completely with the Gazette Telegraph. I do not like being forced to support that which I think is undesirable, and I do not advocate forcing others to do what I think is desirable. But you, Mr. Carter, like all coercivists, want to force others to do what you think is "good." You want to decide for yourself what is "good" and you want to decide for me and for everyone else also. In short, you act as if you are omniscient and are striving for the omnipotence to match this omniscience.

Let's look at the "war on poverty" a moment. Mr. Carter thinks that what is involved here is "good." Does Mr. Carter think that it is "good" because the Johnson gang is going to take some property away from someone else and give it to Mr. Carter? Or does he think that it is "good" because the Johnson gang is going to confiscate some of Mr. Carter's property and give it to someone else? Or, does he think that it is "good" because the Johnson gang, rather than the Goldwater gang, is doing the looting, and if the Goldwater gang were doing the same looting, would that make it "bad?"

Just to set the record straight, the "war on poverty" is another giant fraud. "Poverty" is a lack of property. Property is created through the productive effort of individual men. The only thing that stimulates men to produce as abundantly as possible is their assurance that they can keep what they produce. If a man knows that what he is producing will be taken from him, his production will cease. Most of us now know that washing machines, TV sets and beefsteak do not fall like manna from heaven. But very few of us know that they do not fall like manna from Washington either. "The natural condition of man is extreme poverty and insecurity." (von Mises — Human Action, page 165). Another natural condition of individual man is his inclination to exploit his own productive efforts to the best of his ability — which means that he is engaged in producing as much property as he can. Government (that is, coercion) can do nothing to aid the producer of property except by "the alacity with which it gets out of the way," to quote Thoreau.

The "war on poverty" is another scheme whereby the non-producers get some of the property of the producers without the social and physical risk of walking into the bank with the mask over their face and their guns drawn. I don't expect Mr. Carter to understand that however. Mr. Carter is probably mesmerized by the euphonious title of "war on poverty." If the same program were to proceed under the title of the "Johnson Fascist Plunder Plan" or, the "Johnson Clan Plunder Plan," would you be as enthusiastic, Mr. Carter? To put the program under one of the above suggested titles would actually raise the moral level of the horror since fraud would not then be involved. But I doubt that it would raise the popularity level.

Do you feel as comfortable supporting the "Johnson Fascist Plunder Plan" as you did before the name change, Mr. Carter?

ZIP CODE

To the Editor:

With the United States put on a Zip Code System by the Postmaster General (What's his name, Granowski?), one wonders would that make the people of the United States a nation of "Zippers?" If so, the Hebrew peoples might not care to be associated with it, as the Hebrew word, "Tsippor" (translated "bird" or "fowl") is the base word or origin of the name Tsipporah or Zipporah (translated "little bird" (or "lady bird," possibly?), which was the name of the Ethiopian woman (apparently) which Moses married and which (or who) was greatly resented by Aaron and Marion (Hebrew for "Mary"), brother and sister of Moses. It is interesting to note, that if her name was "bird," and if she were of the black race (Ethiopian), then she might have been referred to as "black-bird," which description also fits the raven — a vulture, an eater of dead bodies. (For an interesting description of what happened to Marion (Mary) as a result of her resentment, read the account in the Bible.)

Now, let us compare the story of Noah and the Ark. Noah first "sent forth a raven" and then a dove, but only the dove brought him an olive leaf (still known today as representing "Peace"). Where did he get it, in a cleft of the rock where the raven could not go? Or was it simply that the dove had an affinity for the olive leaf that the raven did not have? In Genesis, the raven is said to have gone "forth to and fro." In Job we read, the Lord said unto Satan, "Whence comest thou?" Then Satan answered the Lord, and said, "From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it." (He brought no peace either.) So we see the birds as symbols, one representing Satan's spirit, Lust, the other representing the spirit of Love, which can give peace to the heart. Had Noah sent only the Raven, he would not have received the olive leaf; what prompted him to send the dove?

Are we a nation of Tsippors (birds)? If so, white, or black? Doves or ravens?

Virgil preaches at the United Church of Cripple Creek but, due to the shutdown of the mines and mill three years ago, the church has been having a difficult time, especially in the finance department, but also in the spiritual and community interest as well.

And the minister had one pet project that he despaired of ever realizing. But he did pray and so did members of his congregation and their faith must have been strong for, lo, their prayers were answered.

This wish, so dear to the preacher's heart, was for a church bell. Old as that church is and as well attended as it was for many years (even in my own time in the camp) it had never had a bell. And my friend set his heart upon finding one.

Then along came Miss Donna Logan, formerly a reporter on the Gazette Telegraph staff, but now working in this area for a Denver newspaper, and she did a story on the United Church of Cripple Creek, mentioning its needs and especially the bell. As Virgil says, "So far nothing unusual."

But he grew up in a small Indiana town, Columbia City by name, and as a youth he played around with a couple of boys named Travelbee. But he hadn't seen them nor his home town in 30 years. But it so happened that one of his early playmates, is an insurance man in Aurora, Colorado now and he read the piece about the Cripple Creek church and mailed it back to his home town paper where it was re-printed in the Columbia City Post, from which Virgil says he made his first million peddling papers.

Now comes the clincher. A Mrs. George L. Clark, who remembered Virgil as a boy, read the piece and wrote to him. She said that a relative of hers, Roy Clark, had become a collector of bells and that upon his death she had inherited a whole basement full of them in all sizes and kinds. From here on I will quote from Virgil's letter, he says it better than I can:

"She also went on to say that she liked the story about the church — and that she had an excellent church bell in the collection — and that we could have it. So — who says that God does not work in strange and wondrous ways? It has been more than 30 years since I knew any of these people, yet by the strange turn of events, the church at Cripple Creek will soon have a bell. One from my old home town in Indiana!

"Further, just to confuse those who do not believe, this Monday last, while I was wondering how to raise the money to ship the bell out here and build a mount for it, I received a check in the mail from three eastern churches that I had never heard of, but who knew our need.

"So, the bell is on its way and — hopefully — some of these Sundays soon, the early risers and the late drinkers (we have plenty of both here) will notice a new sound in old Cripple Creek, the ringing of the bell calling folks to the United Church.

"So, that is my story. Some will scoff, some will even laugh, but perhaps some will also think! Man can do little. But God can, and does, do much."

Poverty Level

From National Association of Manufacturers Publication

When the federal government asserts its right to tax your income its claim has first priority. It may tax you for the purpose of sending an ice show to Africa at a time when you need the money for an operation. The fact that you obviously have need for your money — and should have a better claim on it than Congolese ice-skating fans — will avail you nothing in your conference with the Internal Revenue Service.

Fewer Americans would have trouble meeting their medical bills if our government had not spent and wasted so much of their earnings through the years. That's something to remember now that the administration is urging that the government take on more responsibility for our health.

The bills for this will go to the taxpayer. He will benefit only if his health problems happen to fit neatly into the particular medical approaches Washington sets up. If you should happen not to qualify for treatment under the federal programs, the new federal taxes would still sap you to pay for the ailments of others and leave you so much less solvent to pay for your own care.

Under the administration's new plans, even persons under the $3,000-a-year "poverty level" will have the obligation to meet hospital bills for anyone over 65, no matter how wealthy. The bread-winner who is fighting a battle against crippling arthritis will see part of his earnings tapped to treat others whose ailments may be cardio-vascular.

Need will be no criterion for federal help, and hardship will bring no relief from the costs. Persons of some ages and with some diseases will have claim on the resources of us all, while others in greater need and with diseases as serious will be only on the paying end.

These new health programs seem sure of enactment in this Congress. National polls show that those who most favor them are ignorant of what they contain. Once these plans are enacted, we may expect that Congress will be asked to liberalize them — at least until they provide what most people think they provide now.

Ultimately, if this start is made, we may expect the federal government to assume responsibility for all medical costs. Anyone who believes that it will cost American families less this way just doesn't know the record of the federal government.

Is Moscow Cozying Up To Red China?

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

In common with most other commentators who listen to professional Kremlinologists, this columnist has been heartened by the difficulties which the Soviets have been having with Red China. But Vladimir Petrov, a teacher of Russian studies at Yale University who reads Moscow's "Pravda" and "Izvestia" with his morning coffee, takes a disturbing minority exception to the general rejoicing over the reported Sino-Soviet troubles. Contrary to general belief in Washington, where President Johnson is hoping for a bid to visit Moscow, Petrov finds "the evidence of the Sinto-Soviet rapproachment following Khrushchev's demise overwhelming." I had asked him to check through Soviet publications for the past three months, and he comes up with a disenchanting pattern.

"Whatever the Sino-Soviet differences are," he says ,"they are subordinated to the needs of re-establishment of the united front against the U.S., which in their book takes precedence over everything else. Moreover, I am convinced that in the last three months certain far-reaching decisions have been made both in Moscow and Peiping related to the build-up of pressure against us at all the fronts where we have a good chance to lose. Only fools can ignore the gathering storm."

SPLITTERS

This is a sweeping conclusion, and it is not what any of us want to hear. Mr. Petrov justifies it because—

1. After months of vituperation, sometimes most violent, all Soviet publications have cut off unfavorable comment about Communist China. The change in tone, says Petrov, is startling.

2. Chou En-lai's visit to Moscow for the celebration of the October revolution was reported with some reserve, but Petrov sees significance in the fact that it was reported as fully as it was.

3. On December 12 "Pravda" printed an article by Comrade Sardesia of the Indian Communist party that was somewhat critical of his fellow-Communists who favored China (the so-called Indian "splitters"). A few days later "Pravda" did penance for this by printing a long report from Bombay on the proceedings of the seventh congress of the Indian Communist party. It didn't contain a single reference to Red China's intrigues or to the bad split within the Indian Communist movement.

4. After Khrushchev's departure, the Soviet papers stepped up their attacks on the U.S. position in South Vietnam. The attacks slavishly followed Mao Tse-tung's line.

5. Moscow has been hailing the leaders and rebels who are most closely associated with Peiping: Ben Bella in Algeria, the Simbas in the Congo, Sukarno in Indonesia, Castro in Cuba. This could be interpreted as competition with Red China for influence, but it is nonetheless curious that all the Peiping-blessed Red regimes began to get a larger share of promises and praise from Moscow after Khrushchev's removal.

6. Petrov notes that visiting Soviet citizens — actors, writers and so on — have stopped taking small gifts from Americans. They are keeping a "correct" distance.

INTERNAL DIFFICULTIES

All of this could, of course, be interpreted as the desire of Brezhnev and Kosygin, the two "new" men in charge of Soviet destinies, to find a space for maneuver vis-a-vis the Chinese which Khrushchev had denied himself. Some observers report the emergence of a pro-Soviet clique in Peiping, which complicates the issue. In any event, the view of this column is that the internal difficulties in the Red world from Poland and Czechoslovakian east to Siberia are so great that a firm group of western nations can face the Russians down no matter what Soviet relations with the Chinese may be. But my worry, as always, is that the West, in its pursuit of la dolce vita, will try to "build bridges" to Soviet Europe without gaining any economic or political advantage from them. There are still World War II lend-lease debts to be settled. There are still those "hate America" riots and the embassy and library vandalism to be called off. Hungary recently signed an agreement of forebearance with the Vatican. But it has nevertheless been arresting and sentencing Catholic priests for teaching religion to children without a permit. Eight prisoners who were children when they took part in the Hungarian revolution still go unpardoned, although Secretary of State Dean Rusk has intervened for at least one of them. East Germany wants machinery, which could still be delivered through a hole in the Berlin Wall.

[illegible] as we talk about "bridge building," we still have [illegible] to press upon [illegible] [illegible] and be able to [illegible] on that [illegible] [illegible].

Taylor Is Facing Difficulties in Viet Nam War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor apparently faces increasing difficulties in carrying out U.S. policy in South Viet Nam unless he and the country's military boss, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, can settle their differences and establish some kind of workable personal relationship.

Tensions between the two appear to be growing. They took root shortly after Taylor's assignment last June as the top U.S. representative in South Viet Nam and they broke into the open late last month.

Khanh was asked at a news conferred with Taylor about confered with Taylor about Wednesday's coup and what the reaction of the former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff had been.

"Why don't you ask him?" Khanh snapped. "This is an internal problem."

News dispatches from Saigon reported a feeling in high Vietnamese quarters that with Khanh's assumption of power an impossible situation had developed and that either Khanh or Taylor would have to go.

But no one expects Khanh to yield because of his differences with the American. And the word in high quarters in Washington is that the Johnson administration continues to have full confidence in Taylor and has no intention of calling him home, even for consultation.

Those familiar with the Khanh-Taylor relationship say it started to sour when Khanh developed a suspicion — which Taylor's friends say was baseless — that the ambassador was friendlier to some other military leaders.

The major effort of the United States under policies laid down by Johnson has been to transfer power as rapidly as possible to civilian leaders.

Tran Van Huong, who was ousted as premier in Khanh's bloodless coup, was a key figure in this process. The new premier, Nguyen Xuan Oanh, is Harvard-educated, lectured at the university and is a former professor of economics at Trinidad College, Hartford, Conn.

Khanh indicated to the United States Wednesday that he intends to preserve civilian elements of the government structure and to carry out scheduled elections for a national asembly in the spring. Officials feel, however, that the unseating of Huong may mean a return to the direct exercise of political power by the military.

Washington authorities believe the coup has not seriously affect the U.S.-supported Vietnamese army's operations against Communist guerrilla forces. But there is no doubt it deals a severe blow to U.S. hopes for progress toward a civilian administration which might be capable of commanding greater suport through the guerila-infested countryside.

RED CHINA

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China claimed that the coup in Saigon Wednesday was a "victory for the people of Viet Nam."

Radio Peking, in a broadcast monitored here, said the coup is a result of the "double shocks of the military victory of the South Vietnamese people (Communist Viet Cong) and of continuing political storms."

"Under this situation, the figurehead regime of South Viet Nam has fallen in extreme confusion."

Tigers Tangle With Pioneer Six

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

The storied rivalry between Colorado College and Denver University will be renewed tonight and Saturday as the two Western Collegiate Hockey Association teams meet for the 70th time, at the Broadmoor World Arena this evening.

With the usual roadful of fans following the Pioneers from Denver, a crowd of near the 5,000 capacity may be on hand, and the same number probably will witness the return battle in Denver on Saturday. The local game starts at 8:15 p.m. and at 8 sharp in the DU Arena.

Denver's pre-season favorites to end up at the top of the WCHA standings own a current 44-25 edge over the Tigers of Coach Bob Johnson in the overall series between these two often bitter enemies of the ice rink. They are expected to extend that series lead by two more over this weekend.

It's a "must" series as far as Coach Murray Armstrong of Denver is concerned. He still thinks his Pioneers have a chance of reaching the WCHA playoffs, despite their next-to-last standing in the league, but DU will have to win at least five of their last six circuit games to finish with a winning record — generally regarded the breaking point for the playoffs.

Denver stands at 1-4-1 in the WCHA and over the whole season the Red Shirts of the Mile High City have a 10-5-1 mark. Colorado College is in last place in the league, winning but one of six games so far, but still only a half game behind Denver. Overall, CC will be looking for its seventh win in 16 games tonight.

While the Tigers are not quite as desperate for a series sweep of both games this weekend, they need at least a split to buoy hopes for post-season tournament play. CC still has road games at Michigan Tech and Michigan State and home contests with Minnesota and North Dakota left after Denver. DU only plays at Tech and home games with North Dakota after CC in the league schedule.

Another key series will be going on at the same time at Minneapolis where second place Minnesota will host league-leading North Dakota this weekend, and in a battle for the other first division slots Michigan U. will visit Michigan Tech.

In an effort to penetrate the touted Denver defense, which is headed by the Pioneers' great goalie Buddy Blom and his roughians on the blue line, CC's coach Johnson is expected to make a slight change in the line combinations for this week's games.

This will have Dave Peterson,, who last week centered the "St. Paul" line with Jeff Sauer and Steve Ebert, moving onto the usual starting line that's centered by veteran Warren Fordyce. On the other side of Fordyce will be the Tigers' leading scorer Bob Magie. Glen Blumer of International Falls, Minn., will go into Peterson's former position and Sauer will take over as center.

While the Bengals have gotten top performances out of the Fordyce line and the sophomore threesome of Jim Amidon, Bob Lindberg and John Genz, the third line has not come up to expectations this winter. It's hoped that the addition of Blumer will put more punch on this line and give the Tigers better balance throughout the game.

Armstrong probably will stick with the same lineup which he has used over the past couple weeks, although defenseman Wayne Smith's physical condition remains a question mark. Smith has been sidelined for the past two weeks with an injury, but the husky letterman is expected back for the Tigers.

The high scoring line of Lyle Bradley and wings Lou Geddes and Norm Kvern has been getting the most attention in Denver, and this trio is slated for the first faceoff. They have scored 29 goals in 16 games this season.

Jack James centering Don Cameron and Myles Gillard, and team captain Andy Herrebout with wingers Ron Naslund and Marv Henning will make up the second and third units, although Grant Warwick could skate the wing on either of these lines.

The all-important goalie position will be held down by Blom of Denver and opposite him for the Tigers will be Bill Howard. Blom definitely is one of the finest tenders in the country and he's considered a "sure thing" for the pros when eligibility runs out. Blom has averaged only 3.2 goals allowed in league play and 2.5 for the season.

On the other hand, Howard, a transfer from North Dakota who missed the first part of the season because of the switch in schools, has shown flashes of greatness — but also has had periods of sophomore-type mistakes. If Howard should put a complete game together against the Pioneers it could be anybody's contest.

TOPS IN THE NET—Denver University goalie Buddy Blom, 21-year-old junior from Hamilton, Ontario, has been rated one of the top goalies in the country, and he will be in action tonight at the Broadmoor World Arena when the Pioneers play Colorado College in the first of a two-game series this weekend.

Crux of the Affair

Much has been already said, and even more will follow in the aftermath of the tragedy which has smashed against the grey stone walls of the Air Force Academy. One thing is for certain, there are very few who haven't taken one side or another on the crux of the matter — the Honor Code of the service academies.

In theory it's all fine and dandy to say that these cadets should be treated like few other human beings during their stay behind the grey walls. But many have asked if the Code, and for that matter the entire structure of the school, is realistic.

Certainly parents of those cadets who have been forced to resign are asking this question — or rather telling, I should say. But are they thinking logically under the stress of all that has happened?

Surprising to some, many who have gone through the same thing and survived are the first to stand up and defend the Code, the school, and all that the military academies represent. But would they do the same if caught in the web of a situation similar to that being investigated at the AFA?

For one, Ray Malavasi, who was one of those forced to resign from the U. S. Military Academy (Army) back in 1951 during the same type scandal, resents what has happened to him and others. Malavasi, now an assistant coach of the Denver Broncos, was quoted on this subject this week.

The one thing that is nearly impossible to understand, from the outside at least, is how the Air Force Academy or its sister schoools can preach this sort of idealistic puritanism and claim that this is the basis for being a good officer when everyday they there are obvious examples of how their own commissioned officers are committing the same "sins."

It sounds so holy to demand that the cadets not "lie, cheat or steal, nor tolerate those who do," but shouldn't they uphold the same principles? On this very incident, have not the Academy officials denied a report on one day and the next admitted that they had lied? How many of these "teachers' of morality have stolen time from their employers (the nation) with a round of golf or some other personal activity when actually supposed to be on the job? Or how many members of the military service have walked off with government equipment — such as even a pencil or some little item from the supply room — for personal use?

Trivial, you say. Yes, but are we not dealing strictly with principle? Is there a degree of guilt when breaking the boundaries of a moral code?

I think those responsible for writing and upholding such a thing as an "Honor Code" should look around and determine whether it is feasible. The boys were caught — but how long have similar acts been going on, and will they continue? In short, is it really workable?

And as for the congressmen who never miss a bet on getting their noses into such an affair, pointing shame and demanding wholesale changes, are they without guilt? And isn't it strange that these solons cry out with disgrace at how lax the admissions have been to allow such "dishonest" lads to get into the school when all the while the entrance records have been open to inspection by the loud-mouthed senators and when their group gives the say-so on admission.

There is little sympathy for those in the middle of this ring of larceny who obtained the exam materials and sold same. Nor are there many tears for those who were trying to buy their way through the school with the advance test information. They asked for what they are getting.

But of the moral obligation of whether or not to "tolerate" those who do this, that is a different matter entirely. There are always a few bad apples in any pail, but that hardly means that all must be tossed away because they may have touched a worm hole.

Under the strict requirements for getting into those often cold grey walls, the cadets at the Air Force Academy are the elite of our youth. No, not all the cream of the crop for there are many who might qualify but just can't drink that cup of tea. But physically and

Double Trouble for Air Force Five As Cougars, 'Pokes Invade Academy

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

The vanishing Falcons of the Air Force Academy will be living testimony to the fact that trouble often arrives in bunches this weekend. Following on the heels of the cheating scandal, which invaded the basketball squad Wednesday, comes a pair of the West's most potent quintets with plans to increase the distress at the Academy site.

Brigham Young University, the nation's major college scoring leader, fast breaks into the Cadet Gymnasium tonight for an 8 p.m. clash that is designed to place considerable stress on the Falcons' eager defenses. And before the floor has had time to cool off from the Cougars' sizzling feet, Wyoming, featuring one of the area's chief bombadiers in Flynn Robinson, takes over for an 8 p.m. appearance Saturday.

Overall, the compact package is one of the niftiest weekend basketball attractions to be presented here in some time. BYU, 11-4 for the season and ranked 19th nationally, is averaging a staggering 95.8 points per outing — and the Falcons will have to do some fancy work to stem that tide. The Cougars' last trip to the hardwood resulted in a 98-67 embarrassment for Utah, a team that had entered that fray with a 12-3 mark and a 90 point average of its own.

Wyoming's surface credentials are not quite as impressive, but there's nothing lax about the Cowboys' offensive efforts either. After a so-so record of 5-5 as late as Jan. 8, the Pokes suddenly surged and have added to the win column by five without suffering another setback. Latest contributions to the streak were in the form of a 105-92 ravishing of Denver last Friday and a 77-68 conquest of Colorado State University the following night. The AFA has come out on the wrong end of skirmishes with both of those opponents.

Still, the Falcons have a few things going for them too, not the least of which is the fact that these games are in friendly surroundings. The Air Force has been tough to nudge into the loss column while at home and the latest evidence of that came last Saturday when they chopped towering Oklahoma City down to size with a razor-sharp fast break.

There is also the fact that the Cadets have had striking success in their previous struggles with BYU. In the two past conflicts between the schools, the Falcons won both in major upsets on the Provo, Utah floor. The Air Force also holds a slim 7-6 edge in its series with Wyoming but the Cowboys are working on a string of three straight at present. The last Falcon win came by a 78-65 count in 1962 when Robinson unloaded his first bombs on the Cadet Gym.

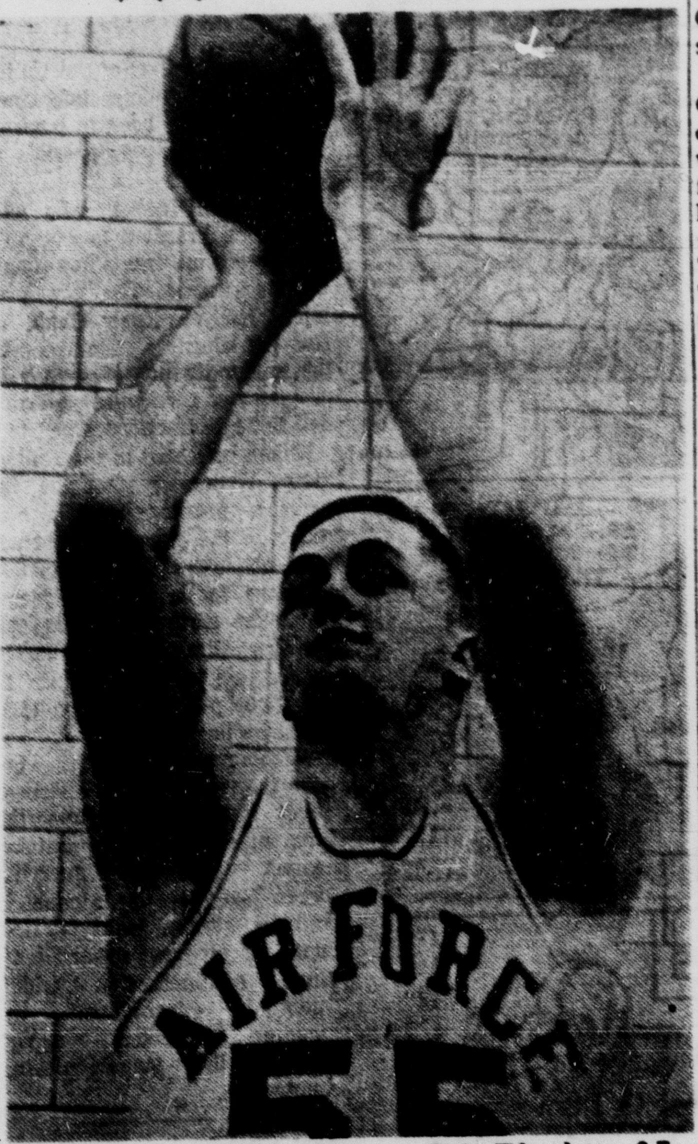
The loss of Scott Etnyre and Jerry Yankee this week, presumably through the cheating scandal, works a hardship on Coach Bob Spear. Yankee has already been absent for four games through illness but with the departure of Etnyre the team loses its other experienced guard and the "quarterback" of its offense.

To compensate, Spear plans to move fast-coming sophomore, Fred Budinger to the backcourt with Pete Hugdahl. Budinger, a 6-4 sharpshooter, has been attached to the front line in past outings while Hugdahl is another soph who was moved in when Yankee was forced to the sidelines. Walt Edgerly, a 6-7 sophomore from Littleton, is scheduled to replace Budinger up front where he will join regulars Sam Peshut and Ed Sullivan. Those two have the audacity to be juniors, therefore breaking into the domination by the third-classmen.

Spear loosed his Falcons from their usual reins last weekend and allowed them to simply run Oklahoma City into the hardwood. Chances are, with the firepower present this weekend, the Air Force will return to its more familiar deliberate style.

BYU is loaded with veterans, headed by 6-8 John Fairchild, a hook-shooting center. In addition there are the graduates of last year's freshman team which averaged 109 points in compiling a 14-0 record. Among that group was 6-11 Craig Raymond, the Cougars' tallest man.

Wyoming is a little less awesome in the size department but the Cowboys are also stocked with experience and wide skills. Robinson is one of the most exciting shooters to play in this area and all he requires is daylight and one toe across the center stripe to let fly. He carries a 24.1 average while 6-6 Leon Clark is 17.2, 6-4 Dick Sherman 10.9, and 6-4 Randy Richardson 9.5. Veteran Paul Homar joins Robinson at guard.



JOINS STARTING LINEUP — Walt Edgerly, a 6-7 center from Littleton, will become the third sophomore member of the Air Force Academy's starting lineup tonight when the Falcons host Brigham Young in the first of two attractive weekend games. Edgerly moved in when guards Scott Etnyre and Jerry Yankee were dropped from the squad earlier this week, forcing Coach Bob Spear to move Fred Budinger from a forward to a backcourt post. BYU brings the nation's highest scoring quintet here and will be followed Saturday by potent Wyoming. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Harrison, Academy Clash In Top WRL Tilt Tonight

The countdown begins!

At least for the current co-leaders in the Will Rogers pennant chase, Harrison and Air Academy High.

The two WRL pace setters square off tonight in a showdown contest scheduled for the Academy High Gymnasium at 8 p.m. Tonight's Harrison-Academy High game will settle the WRL deadlock for the momnet but these two title seekers face a second-round re-match before clinching the championship. Both Academy High and Harrison are undefeated in three league games.

In other WRL action tonight, Gary Richardson's vastly improved Widefield cagers journey to Canon City. Both teams are winless in three league games, which should make for a highly - competitive battle because each team is looking for its first conference win and attempting to avoid the cellar position in WRL standings.

Widefield's Gladiators have only allowed 149 points to their three league opponents, losing all three outings by a total of six points. The Gladiators have the edge on defense, but can they contain Canon City's higher-scoring Tigers?

Norm Sullivan, in his first term at Harrison, has constructed a winning team and his tall and talented Panthers were rated pre-season favorites to capture the newly formed Triple-A WRL basketball championship. But since then, John Delventhal's small-but-potent scoring Academy High roundballers have posed a challenge to the Panthers.

The Panthers have a rugged weekend schedule, beginning with the Academy High game tonight and a re-match with last year's Pikes Peak League champion and State AA semifinalist from Cheyenne Mountain. Should the Harrison five

There is little sympathy for those in the middle of this ring of larceny who obtained the exam materials and sold same. Nor are there many tears for those who were trying to buy their way through the school with the advance test information. They asked for what they are getting.

But of the moral obligation of whether or not to "tolerate" those who do this, that is a different matter entirely. There are always a few bad apples in any pail, but that hardly means that all must be tossed away because they may have touched a worm hole.

Under the strict requirements for getting into those often cold grey walls, the cadets at the Air Force Academy are the elite of our youth. No, not all the cream of the crop for there are many who might qualify but just can't drink that cup of tea. But physically and

Running Thunderbirds Meet Slow-Down Terror Tactics

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Two types of offense — fast and slow — and one type of fan — loud — will be on display tonight as Wasson and Palmer meet in the 11th renewal of their basketball series.

Wasson holds a 6-4 edge in the series dating back to 1959 when Wasson High School first opened its doors. Palmer has the last win in the series, a 51-41 decision in 1964 which broke a five-game losing steak for the Terrors.

Palmer Gymnasium, a basketball haven which can hold about 2,500 hardcourt addicts is a certainty to be jammed to capacity as early as the junior varsity game scheduled to begin at 6:15 p.m. And those same fans will know how to do only one thing — scream — when their teams battle in a game which has more significance than the cross-town competition.

Both teams stand 2-2 in South Central League play. Palmer with its former starting forwards out of the lineup for the rest of the year generally is counted out of the SCL race. But Wasson coach Dick Westbay considers his team very much in the running and the Thunderbirds need a victory tonight to hold firmly onto that hope.

"Palmer doesn't have any pressure on it as far as the league is concerned" Westbay appraises. "So they will be scrambling to beat us."

Those boisterous fans might see the two opposites in basketball offense. Wasson has gone in for the aggressive fast-break-and-press style of play, a maneuver designed to throw opponents into a similar swift pattern and get them to commit errors.

Palmer usually has stayed with the ball control game going only rarely to a fast break. The Terrors also employ an effective delay offense to spread the defense wide for easy layups.

"We hope to get teams running with us" Westbay says. "If we can force them into playing our game we have the advantage.

"Of course with Palmer's slow-down game they may force us to play their way." Guess we'll just have to wait and see."

Height and rebounding may be a factor in tonight's game. Palmer has one of the league's top front court sophomores in 6-5 Ed Fitzgerald. Coach Roger O'Neil is supplementing Fitzgerald with 6-1 junior John Knudsen and 6-1 sophomore Ron Travis.

Wasson, depending on Westbay's as-yet-unnamed fifth starter, will average at last 6-3 for its top two baseliners.

Set to start is 6-3 Charlie Steel. One forward post will be manned by either 6-3 Randy Stanley or 6-4 Dave VanDerWege. Van Der Wege, should he get the nod, would be starting his first game for the Thunderbird varsity after spending time last year as a junior on the B team.

Stanley, a junior, has been strong on the boards, and undoubtedly will see early action if he actually does not start.

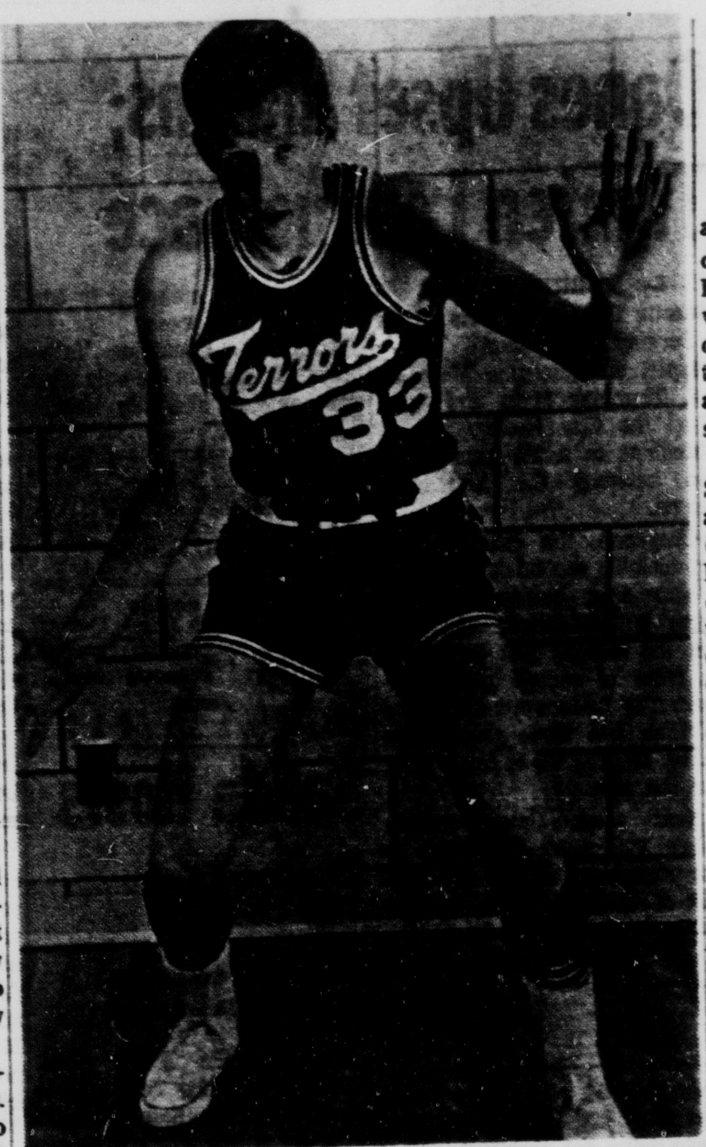
The rest of the T-Bird lineup will have Jim Smith (5-9), Mike Martin (5-9) and Rich Pettigrew (5-10).

Palmer's remaining guard slots will be filled by Tom Espinoza (5-8) and Charles McKenzie (5-8).

Another factor to be considered is that of experience. Depending on the final lineup, Wasson will start three or four seniors. Palmer has three sophomores in the first five plus a junior and a senior. The Terrors' No. 6 man is a sophomore and the rest of the lineup is a conglomeration of sophs and juniors, none of whom have seen much game time.

On the other hand, only three of Wasson's team are members of the junior class. The rest are seniors.

SWIFT STEPPER—Jim Smith, senior guard for the Wasson Thunderbirds, is a key figure in both the team's fast break and its pressing defense. Smith, who was an all-state quarterback in football, was an All City basketball selection last winter. He will be in the starting lineup tonight when the T-Birds and Palmer square off in the first of their two annual hardwood contests.
(Gazette Telegraph Photo)



REBOUNDER — John Knudsen, Palmer's junior forward, will be counted on for rebounding and inside shooting work against Wasson tonight at Palmer Gymnasium. Knudsen moved up to a starting role last week at Trinidad, scoring 10 points and making 11 rebounds before fouling out in the second period.

Pirates Host St. Francis Tonight

St. Mary's Pirates tangle with an established Denver Parochial League contender St. Francis — a team which has won its share of past DPL honors and has proven a threat to the present loop leaders — in a two - game home weekend stand beginning tonight.

The Buccaneers play host to St. Francis tonight at 8 p.m.., and the current DPL co-leaders (they share the lead with Mullen) entertain lowly Mt. Carmel, a team which has yet to record a conference win in eight outings, Sunday in an afternoon contest. Game time for Sunday's encounter is set for 2:30 p.m. at the Pirates Gymnasium which kicks off the DPL second round.

In addition to getting past St. Francis tonight, Dan Wright's chargers are scheduled for a showdown with the torrid-scoring Mullen title seekers and defending co-champion Regis early next month. The Bucs clash with Regis, a team they defeated earlier this season, in northern territory on Feb. 7 and the following Friday the local Parokes are the guest of Mullen.

These key games with Regis and Mullen will decide the DPL championship (assuming all three teams continue winning).

But the Pirates have to get past St. Francis tonight and post wins over Mt. Carmel (Sunday), and Cathedral (Feb. 5). After the Regis and Mullen games, the St. Mary's aggregation rounds out its DPL slate with Holy Family (Feb. 14), Machebeuf (Feb. 19), Annunciation (Feb. 21), St. Joseph's (Feb. 26), and St. Francis (Feb. 28).

Coming into tonight's outing with St. Francis, the Pirates have compiled a 7-1 won-loss record in league competition. The Bucs will be looking for their 13th victory in 15 games, losing those two decisions to Will Rogers League co-leaders from Harrison and Mullen, 66-62.

Last weekend the Pirates picked up two victories over Annunciation and St. Joseph's. Behind the shooting of Tom McCarthy, who poured in 24 points despite the fact that the high-scoring backcourt general broke his hand prior to last Friday's game, and Joe Jezek's clutch-shooting at the charity lanes, the Pirates rallied to pull out a squeaker - win over Annunciation, 67-65. The Bucs recovered to bombard visiting St. Joseph's, 71-40, last Sunday.

Wirght indicated that he would start Darryl Grantz in place of McCarthy with Jerry Knauf starting at the other guard slot. John Van Horn and Sam Zavatti will start at forward while the Pirates ace rebounder, Tom Socha, will man the pivot slot. But Wright stated that McCarthy would see considerable action this weekend.

Ken Venturi To Quit Tour

LOS ANGELES (AP) — National Open champion Ken Venturi of San Francisco will be off the golf circuit for about six weeks his physician reports.

Venturi has been troubled recently by circulatory problems in his hands — especially in the fingers of his right hand.

Dr. Robert Woods disclosed Thursday that the golfer underwent surgery a day earlier to confirm a diagnosis of inflammation of the arteries. The operation performed in Good Samaritan Hospital, involved 15 stitches in Venturi's back and another dozen in his legs.

Venturi, who has been bothered by the ailment for nearly a month told a sports writer

"I took a large step backwards when I played in the cold at Pebble Beach. I'm not going to play again until Dr. Woods tells me to."

Cowboys Could Give IBA First Big Eight Title

Hank Iba of Oklahoma State has won one Olympic title, two NCAA crowns, 11 Missouri Valley championships and almost every honor in basketball coaching "except the one I want most—a Big Eight championship."

The 60-year-old Iron Duke of Stillwater might not have to wait long for his first Big Eight crown. His club is off to a 5-0 start in the race, the latest a 59-55 triple-overtime conquest of Colorado Thursday at Stillwater.

Iba is one of two active college coaches with more than 700 coaching victories and one of four in history to reach this mark. The latest victory was his 712th and this is his 36th season.

Adolph Rupp of Kentucky got No. 714 Monday night against Georgia. Iba's club is rolling with seven straight victories in a 12-4 season and he could move past Rupp, now 9-7, by the end of this season.

F. C. (Phog) Allen, who coached Rupp at Kansas, is the all-time leader with 771 victories in 39 seasons at Kansas and seven at Warrensburg, Mo. State. Allen retired at KU in 1965. Ed Diddle of Western Kentucky retired with 759.

This is Iba's seventh season in the Big Eight. Only once has he finished above the break-even level—8-5 for third place in 1961.

The OSU victory moved Missouri into second place at 3-1, dropped Colorado to 2-2, for a tie with Kansas State, 2-2 and Kansas, 3-3.

Missouri, the last team to beat OSU, faces Iba's club Saturday night in Stillwater. Missouri beat the Cowboys 53-48 in the tournament on the night Iba was honored and given a standing ovation for leading the U.S. team to another Olympic basketball crown.

K-State meets Iowa State, 3-4, at Ames in an afternoon television contest Saturday and Colorado continues its trip, facing Oklahoma, 1-3, at Norman.

The victory over Colorado was an important one for Iba's club because a year ago OSU also took a 4-0 record into its game with the Buffaloes in Stillwater. The Buffs won that one 65-59.

The Cowboys won in typical Iba fashion, with a pair of layups by Fred Moulder and Paul Labrue out of their famed delay pattern. Little Larry Hawk was the feeder each time. Colorado fought to tie it 26-26 at the half, 49-49 after regulation time, 51-51 after one overtime and 53-53 after two extra periods. Gary Hassmann's 14 points led OSU. Pat Frink had 21 and Chuck Gardner 16 for the Buffs.

Warriors' Defense Stops Cincy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco Warrior Coach Alex Hannum applied a time-tested theory — the best offense is defense — Thursday night to break his team's consecutive losing streak at 17 with a 105-90 victory over the Cincinnati Royals.

The Warriors, who had set a National Basketball Association record with their 17 straight losses, made winning look easy. Denver set the old loss record of 15 in 1949.

Big Nate Thurmond pushed through 30 points to trigger the Warriors to their overdue victory and lead them in rebounding and defensive maneuvers.

No other games were played Thursday night.

Hannum's tactics worked so well that Oscar Robertson, the Royals' top scorer, was unable to get a clear shot until there was only 1:26 left in the first half.

Defensive play held Robertson to only eight points from the floor and four from the free throw line.

win both games this weekend, it would put the Panthers in a strong position to clinch the WRL crown. But a loss this weekend, especially to Academy High, would make for a two-team race.

Harrison plays host to Cheyenne, a team they dumped earlier this season,, 74-57, at the Colorado Springs City Auditorium Saturday night. Game time for the Harrison-Cheyenne game is set for 8 p.m..

Delventhal's Big Blue cagers round out their two-game weekend home stand Saturday at 8 p.m. when the Academy High squad attempts to post its third win over Canon City. The Kadets stopped Canon City twice this season and another win over the Tigers will enhance the Big Blue's title bid, providing they defeat the towering Panthers in tonight's crucial contest.

Sullivan indicated that he will stay with his usual lineup, composed of 6-4 John Dalton, 6-4 Mike Obert, 6-2 Eddie Hook and 6-0 Larry Gagnon, with the exception of Harold Oldham who was sidelined from practice this week because of a sore throat. Jerry Williams, who came off the bench last weekend to make a strong showing against Canon City and Widefield, will start in Oldham's guard slot.

But Sullivan felt that Oldham would be able to see action both nights and the 6-2 senior has been the sparkplug in the Panther's offense.

For the Kadets, Delventhal will probably start his regulars with the platooners coming in to supplement the fast-moving Academy High offensive attack. Bert Spear, who leads the Kadets in scoring with nearly 20 - points per game average for 10 games, and Tony Blanchard will balance the Big Blue's scoring and rebounding.

Terrors Get First League Mat Victory

Palmer's Terrors picked up their first wrestling triumph of the South Central League season Thursday night but at the same time Pueblo East was placing one hand on the conference title.

The Terrors rallied from a 23-5 deficit by winning their last six matches at Trinidad to nudge the Miners 25-23 and climb out of the SCL cellar. Meanwhile East was edging past Pueblo Central 23-17 to extend its league record to 5-0 and clinch a tie for the crown. The Eagles have only a match with Palmer Feb. 11 remaining on the schedule and a win in that one will give them an undisputed championship.

Pueblo South remained in the running, along with Wasson. The Colts whipped Centennial 29-13 to bring their record to 3-1. Wasson, idle Thursday, has an identical mark.

Palmer's Don Nicks got a pin at 95 pounds to boost the Terrors into a 5-0 lead at Trinidad but the Miners came up with four pins and a decision in the next five matches to build a 23-5 advantage. Troy Bigelow triggered the reversal for the Tribe, posting a 5-3 decision at 138, Henry Johnson followed with a pin at 145, and Larry Williams, Mike Risk, Jessie Bragg, and Ron Smith contributed decisions as the Springs team swept from behind.

Danes Upset Indians; Tighten League Race

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Surging Fountain Valley tripped up Cheyenne Mountain 3-2, Thursday night and tightened the City Hockey League standings to a 2½ game margin between the first four teams.

Cheyenne, the current leader, took its second loss of the year after battling furiously from a 3-0 deficit. The loss put the Indians just one game in front of second place Palmer. The Indians must win two of their last three games now to be assured of at least a tie for the title.

Next week thus becomes more and more important to the standings and in the middle of it all is Wasson. The Thunderbirds, who a few years ago were the league's doormats, have the chance to wipe out Cheyenne Monday and Palmer Wednesday. A double win would put the T-Birds in a tie for second place.

CHL STANDINGS	W	L	Pct	GF	GA
Cheyenne Mountain	7	2	.778	45	14
Palmer	6	3	.667	45	20
Fountain Valley	5	4	.556	28	23
Wasson	4	4	.500	27	18
Widefield	0	9	.000	1	73

Fountain Valley got a sneak attack goal from freshman winger Tim Boddington to start its fifth win of the year. Boddington skated below the red line and edged up on Cheyenne goalie Sandy Dee from Dee's right. Before Dee could move, Boddington had planted the puck in the net with 1:09 elapsed in the first period.

Defenseman Rick Fitzgerald pulled the Danes to a 2-0 lead ing slap from near the blue line at 11:05 of the first with a blazing slap from near the blue line that must have taxed the World Arena's cooling system.

With a two-goal lead, the Danes held off Cheyenne through a scoreless second period, with Fountain Valley goalie Torney Smith making several fine saves.

Then Boddington came up with his second goal at 4:06 of what proved to be the most exciting third period of the season. Boddington received a goal-front pass from Newell Weed on the left corner and nailed a perfect placement shot past the crease.

Cheyene looked as if it might be tiring excessively when Doug Heyliger grabbed a chance for an open shot about 20 feet away and whipped the goal past Smith at 5:40.

Don Heyliger put in the second Cheyenne goal at 4:52 as he went after a rebound shot from center Jeff Thatcher. Smith had gone down saving that attempt and Heyliger stuffed the puck between Smith's legs.

Fountain Valley had at least two more excellent opportunities to pad its lead. At 2:55, captain David Low broke wide-open and headed toward Dee. Dee came out several feet to meet Low and refused to be pulled off-guard by the center's feints.

Saturday, Fountain Valley plays Widefield in the only week end game on the City Hockey League roster.

Salida Hosts Florence In Feature

If the eight Pikes Peak League teams play according to the dope book, Salida should come out of this weekend on top of the standings, with Crowley County challenging just half a game behind.

Trouble is, the PPL doesn't always go according to Hoyle and the standings could be knotted tighter than a sailor's shoelace come Sunday morning.

The dope book says Salida should extend its three-game league winning streak by beating Florence tonight on the Spartan court. But the Huskies have a team scoring average second only to Salida and have the league's top scorer in 5-9 forward Dave Zamarripa. Crowley County, with a trio of tall and good shooters in 6-2 Terry Burmood, 6-2 Fred Ramsey and 6-4 freshman Brian Doe, rate the upturned thumb over Buena Vista tonight and Leadville Saturday.

But, again,, the Chargers, who will be on the road both nights, could fall before either team, or, conceivably, both. Leadville's 1-2 league record belies its 6-3 season mark and Buena Vista has compiled a creditable 5-4 league mark above its 2-1 league record. Crowley County (2-1) has shown well in district play, but totes a 3-7 season mark.

Fountain seems almost an easy pick over Fowler tonight at Fowler, but the Grizzlies have the league's best defense this season and could pressure the taller Trojans to a 2-2 record.

Manitou Springs gets into action Saturday night and on the basis of overall records, should not beat Buena Vista on the Demon court. But the Mustangs were not supposed to beat Fowler earlier this year and edged the Grizzlies by one point.

The dope book would have it, Salida (4-0), Crowley County (4-1) and Buena Vista (3-2).

Three Drug Cases Found At Pompano

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Florida State Racing Commission said Thursday that three cases of horse drugging have been discovered at the Pompano Park Harness Track.

Two of the drugged horses ran on Jan. 8 and the third on Jan. 12, a commission official said.

Purses of the horses have been held up and an investigation is under way on the circumstances of the drugging. No action has been taken against the trainers or drivers.

Commission officials said the horses were found to have traces of the stimulant thozolinone in their systems.

"It is our feeling that these were outside jobs," said Dr. J. G. Catlett, assistant supervisor of racing. "Not a conclusion, but a feeling. We are continuing the investigation."

The horses in questio nwere Mazzie Anderson, Tarport Mart and Simple Simon. Mazzie Anderson and Simple Simon won their races and Tarport Mart finished fourth.

BETWEEN THE LINES

BY LOY HOLMAN

mentally they, as a whole, are in a class by themselves as compared to other schools

They are human, however, or were before some of the rules and regulations of military discipline were used to try and bend their personalities. For the most part, I can't go along with that "tin soldier" attitude toward the cadets . . . or at least the ones I've come to know. If they are to lead and inspire other men as officers, they must have compassion for the feelings of others and not just be parrots to the words in a manual.

So the big question for all concerned with this so-called scandal is with the practicality and usefulness of the "tolerate" phrase of the Honor Code. Army has it —Navy doesn't — and can anyone argue that the Middies are less trained for not being required to act as spies on their classmates.

After being taught by parents and everyone else who cares for nearly two decades that there is no respect for a "tattle-tale" it's awfully hard to disregard these lessons of childhood. No wonder it's tough to swallow a small phrase in the cadets' handbook that suddenly says you must "rat" on those you consider friends.

But enough of the opinion here on the Code. You can wager a bob or two that it will come under the sarp eye of many learned men before this is over. Perhaps after 10 years of operation the entire Academy system is due for an air-clearing self-examination, not only this one item but also every phase of the AFA, it curriculum, discipline, athletic program, personnel and future.

It's only natural that the varsity athletics bear the brunt on this dirty affair. The teams of any school are the showcase of the institution and often the success or failure of these teams reflects the prestige and pride of the student body.

Because these athletes are paraded before the public, they are the ones who draw the attention when anything goes wrong. Sometimes they can even give a poor image to the whole school, or there are other times when the reverse is true and the wrongs of the school are piled on a few just because they are more easily recognized. This, in a way, is what is happening at the AFA and why few besides the athletes involved will ever be known.

That is unfortunate. By far, the majority of those having their careers smashed were those who were not directly in on the cheating — but merely could not ignore that before putting on the Air Force blue it was hardly admirable to snitch on a buddy.

In the meantime, what has taken years to build is being torn down in a matter of days. It was termed a miracle that the Air Force Academy lifted itself into national prominence athletically in such a short time, and the credit goes to those exceptional leaders who blazed the trail.

Now, it will take years — no one knows how long — to rebuild. Coach Ben Martin's staff is currently in the midst of it's annual trek around the country searching football players who also fit into the upper pecentage in studies. Normally, only one in 20 prospects can qualify. You can imagine the problem of selling high school seniors on the AFA after this!

Football, of course, isn't the only sport effected. Coach Bob Spear's basketball team has lost two fine lads who still hold my highest respect —despite the fact that they would not "tattle" on others. Major sports like baseball and track are bound to feel this by springtime.

And as another side effect, the Academy has worked for years trying to influence the powers that be that a field house is needed on the campus, like nearly every other top school in the land has. This was on the brink of passing through congress. It was to include an indoor football practice area to escape the arctic blasts of the Rampart Range, a decent basketball court so that other schools would no longer refuse to play here because of "snake pit" surroundings, and it was also to include an ice rink that would eventually bring hockey to the school as a varsity sport.

What chance do you figure those plans have in the immediate future?

Youngsters Win Four Ball-Match

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — A team of veteran tournament golfers was eliminated in the opening round of the International Four-ball Tournament by youngsters Sandra Post of Ontario and Margaret Jones of Covington Ky.

The 16-year-old Miss Post and Miss Jones a college coed defeated Carolyn Cudone of West Caldwell, N.J., a former Curtis Cup player, Marge Burns of Greensboro, N.C. winner of most major U.S. amateur tournaments by a score of 2 and 1.

A 60-foot putt on the 20th hole by Nancy Roth of Hollywood, Fla. gave her and Maureen Crum of Plant City, Fla., a 1-up victory over Monica Steegmann of Germany and Maria Martinez of Mexico.

The defending champions Janey Woodworth of Hollywood and Gloria Ehret of Denbury, Conn., eliminated Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore Md., and Barbara Fitton of Hamilton Ohio, 2 and 1.

Tigers to Battle Powerful Broncos

HASTINGS, Neb. — Colorado College moves back into action on the basketball front here tonight with every prospect of seeing a long season grow even longer during a two game series with the Hastings College Broncos.

The Tigers, only 2-10 for the campaign, will be facing one of the nation's top small college teams in contests scheduled for tonight and Saturday. Hastings, a semi-finalist in the NAIA Tournament a year ago, has returned practically its entire squad and will be going into the set with CC sporting a fancy 12-2 season record. The Broncos' latest triumph was a 95-88 conquest of strong Nebraska Wesleyan Tuesday night.

Through games of last week the team's leading scorer was veteran Bennie Crawford who was averaging 23.5 points per contest. He was followed by Ed Lorentzen who was hitting at 21.1 while Mel Harris, the third member of last year's "big three" carried a 12.2 average. Those three players alone are averaging more points per contest than the entire CC team.

The Tigers will be going into the series after an eight day layoff. Their last action was last Thursday night in Denver when they absorbed an 85-51 defeat at the hands of Regis College. Two nights earielr CC had turned in its finest performance of the season in whipping Colorado Mines 49-39 but the Tigers had one of their poorer efforts against Regis.

Coach Red Eastlack said at midweek that he will use the same lineup which has been working for the Bengals in the past several outings. That has Captain Dave Herrington and Steve Schilder at guards, Pete Susemihl and Chris Grant at forwards, and Phil LeCuyer at post.

Herrington continues to be the team's top scorer with a 10.5 average but in more recent efforts it has been the rapidly improving play of Susemihl and LeCuyer that has buoyed Tiger hopes. Susemihl dropped 17 points in the losing cause at Regis and his rebounding has picked up along with the scoring pace. He is the team leader on the backboards with 82 rebounds and has boosted his scoring average to 8.1. LeCuyer, who joined the team over the Christmas holidays, is beginning to regain some of the form that made him an all-stat prepster at Greeley High three years ago. He is already the number two rebounder and has boosted his point average to 7.4.

The Tigers departed Colorado Springs at noon Thursday via bus for the trip to Nebraska. They will return Sunday.

Following the weekend series CC has only a two day break before returning to the City Auditorium floor next Tuesday for a second shot at Regis.

Danes Upset Indians; Tighten League Race

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Surging Fountain Valley tripped up Cheyenne Mountain 3-2, Thursday night and tightened the City Hockey League standings to a 2½ game margin between the first four teams.

Cheyenne, the current leader, took its second loss of the year after battling furiously from a 3-0 deficit. The loss put the Indians just one game in front of second place Palmer. The Indians must win two of their last three games now to be assured of at least a tie for the title.

Next week thus becomes more and more important to the standings and in the middle of it all is Wasson. The Thunderbirds, who a few years ago were the league's doormats, have the chance to wipe out Cheyenne Monday and Palmer Wednesday. A double win would put the T-Birds in a tie for second place.

CHL STANDINGS

	W	L	Pct	GF	GA
Cheyenne Mountain	7	2	.778	45	14
Palmer	6	3	.667	45	20
Fountain Valley	5	4	.556	28	23
Wasson	4	4	.500	27	18
Widefield	0	9	.000	1	73

Fountain Valley got a sneak attack goal from freshman winger Tim Boddington to start its fifth win of the year. Boddington skated below the red line and edged up on Cheyenne goalie Sandy Dee from Dee's right. Before Dee could move, Boddington had planted the puck in the net with 1:09 elapsed in the first period.

Defenseman Rick Fitzgerald pulled the Danes to a 2-0 lead ing slap from near the blue line at 11:05 of the first with a blazing slap from near the blue line that must have taxed the World Arena's cooling system.

With a two-goal lead, the Danes held off Cheyenne through a scoreless second period, with Fountain Valley goalie Torney Smith making several fine saves.

Then Boddington came up with his second goal at 4:06 of what proved to be the most exciting third period of the season. Boddington received a goal-front pass from Newell Weed on the left corner and nailed a perfect placement shot past the crease.

Cheyene looked as if it might be tiring excessively when Doug Heyliger grabbed a chance for an open shot about 20 feet away and whipped the goal past Smith at 5:40.

Don Heyliger put in the second Cheyenne goal at 4:52 as he went after a rebound shot from center Jeff Thatcher. Smith had gone down saving that attempt and Heyliger stuffed the puck between Smith's legs.

Cheyenne fans rose after that and began screaming for the tying goal. But the Dane defense stiffened and held off the battling Indians.

Fountain Valley had at least two more excellent opportunities to pad its lead. At 2:55, captain David Low broke wide-open and headed toward Dee. Dee came out several feet to meet Low and refused to be pulled off-guard by the center's feints.

With 1:31 left, Dee came out as Cheyenne pressed for Goal No. 3. With a wide-open net before him, Fitzgerald broke with about a minute left and fired a long shot for the right. The puck sliced about a yard and Cheyenne managed to continue its futile press.

Saturday, Fountain Valley plays Widefield in the only week end game on the City Hockey League roster.

Salida Hosts Florence In Feature

If the eight Pikes Peak League teams play according to the dope book, Salida should come out of this weekend on top of the standings, with Crowley County challenging just half a game behind.

Trouble is, the PPL doesn't always go according to Hoyle and the standings could be knotted tighter than a sailor's shoelace come Sunday morning.

The dope book says Salida should extend its three-game league winning streak by beating Florence tonight on the Spartan court. But the Huskies have a team scoring average second only to Salida and have the league's top scorer in 5-9 forward Dave Zamarripa. Crowley County, with a trio of tall and good shooters in 6-2 Terry Burmood, 6-2 Fred Ramsey and 6-4 freshman Brian Doe, rate the upturned thumb over Buena Vista tonight and Leadville Saturday.

But, again,, the Chargers, who will be on the road both nights, could fall before either team, or, conceivably, both. Leadville's 1-2 league record belies its 6-3 season mark and Buena Vista has compiled a creditable 5-4 league mark above its 2-1 league record. Crowley County (2-1) has shown well in district play, but totes a 3-7 season mark.

Fountain seems almost an easy pick over Fowler tonight at Fowler, but the Grizzlies have the league's best defense this season and could pressure the taller Trojans to a 2-2 record.

Manitou Springs gets into action Saturday night and on the basis of overall records, should not beat Buena Vista on the Demon court. But the Mustangs were not supposed to beat Fowler earlier this year and edged the Grizzlies by one point.

Considering upsets Buena Vista could lead the league with a 4-1 record, Salida and Florence trailing at 3-1. Fountain, could climb back into contention.

The dope book would have it, Salida (4-0), Crowley County (4-1) and Buena Vista (3-2).

Zamarripa and Salida's 6-7 John Lantz will battle (although probaby not against each other) for the league scoring lead. Lantz trails Zamarripa's 25.0 average with a 23.3 mark. Ramsey follows at 22.3.

Three Drug Cases Found At Pompano

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Florida State Racing Commission said Thursday that three cases of horse drugging have been discovered at the Pompano Park Harness Track.

Two of the drugged horses ran on Jan. 8 and the third on Jan. 12, a commission official said.

Purses of the horses have been held up and an investigation is under way on the circumstances of the drugging. No action has been taken against the trainers or drivers.

Commission officials said the horses were found to have traces of the stimulant thozolinone in their systems.

"It is our feeling that these were outside jobs," said Dr. J. G. Catlett, assistant supervisor of racing. "Not a conclusion, but a feeling. We are continuing the investigation."

The horses in questio nwere Mazzie Anderson, Tarport Mart and Simple Simon. Mazzie Anderson and Simple Simon won their races and Tarport Mart finished fourth.

BETWEEN THE LINES

mentally they, as a whole, are in a class by themselves as compared to other schools

They are human, however, or were before some of the rules and regulations of military discipline were used to try and bend their personalities. For the most part, I can't go along with that "tin soldier" attitude toward the cadets . . . or at least the ones I've come to know. If they are to lead and inspire other men as officers, they must have compassion for the feelings of others and not just be parrots to the words in a manual.

So the big question for all concerned with this so-called scandal is with the practicality and usefulness of the "tolerate" phrase of the Honor Code. Army has it —Navy doesn't — and can anyone argue that the Middies are less trained for not being required to act as spies on their classmates.

After being taught by parents and everyone else who cares for nearly two decades that there is no respect for a "tattle-tale" it's awfully hard to disregard these lessons of childhood. No wonder it's tough to swallow a small phrase in the cadets' handbook that suddenly says you must "rat" on those you consider friends.

But enough of the opinion here on the Code. You can wager a bob or two that it will come under the sarp eye of many learned men before this is over. Perhaps after 10 years of operation the entire Academy system is due for an air-clearing self-examination, not only this one item but also every phase of the AFA, it curriculum, discipline, athletic program, personnel and future.

It's only natural that the varsity athletics bear the brunt on this dirty affair. The teams of any school are the showcase of the institution and often the success or failure of these teams reflects the prestige and pride of the student body.

Because these athletes are paraded before the public, they are the ones who draw the attention when anything goes wrong. Sometimes they can even give a poor image to the whole school, or there are other times when the reverse is true and the wrongs of the school are piled on a few just because they are more easily recognized. This, in a way, is what is happening at the AFA and why few besides the athletes involved will ever be known.

That is unfortunate. By far, the majority of those having their careers smashed were those who were not directly in on the cheating — but merely could not ignore that before putting on the Air Force blue it was hardly admirable to snitch on a buddy.

In the meantime, what has taken years to build is being torn down in a matter of days. It was termed a miracle that the Air Force Academy lifted itself into national prominence athletically in such a short time, and the credit goes to those exceptional leaders who blazed the trail.

Now, it will take years — no one knows how long — to rebuild. Coach Ben Martin's staff is currently in the midst of it's annual trek around the country searching football players who also fit into the upper pecentage in studies. Normally, only one in 20 prospects can qualify. You can imagine the problem of selling high school seniors on the AFA after this!

Football, of course, isn't the only sport effected. Coach Bob Spear's basketball team has lost two fine lads who still hold my highest respect —despite the fact that they would not "tattle" on others. Major sports like baseball and track are bound to feel this by springtime.

And as another side effect, the Academy has worked for years trying to influence the powers that be that a field house is needed on the campus, like nearly every other top school in the land has. This was on the brink of passing through congress. It was to include an indoor football practice area to escape the arctic blasts of the Rampart Range, a decent basketball court so that other schools would no longer refuse to play here because of "snake pit" surroundings, and it was also to include an ice rink that would eventually bring hockey to the school as a varsity sport.

What chance do you figure those plans have in the immediate future?

Youngsters Win Four Ball-Match

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — A team of veteran tournament golfers was eliminated in the opening round of the International Four-ball Tournament by youngsters Sandra Post of Ontario and Margaret Jones of Covington Ky.

The 16-year-old Miss Post and Miss Jones a college coed defeated Carolyn Cudone of West Caldwell, N.J., a former Curtis Cup player, Marge Burns of Greensboro, N.C. winner of most major U.S. amateur tournaments by a score of 2 and 1.

A 60-foot putt on the 20th hole by Nancy Roth of Hollywood, Fla. gave her and Maureen Crum of Plant City, Fla., a 1-up victory over Monica Steegmann of Germany and Maria Martinez of Mexico.

The defending champions Janey Woodworth of Hollywood and Gloria Ehret of Danbury, Conn., eliminated Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore Md., and Barbara Fitton of Hamilton Ohio, 2 and 1.

Tigers to Battle Powerful Broncos

HASTINGS, Neb. — Colorado College moves back into action on the basketball front here tonight with every prospect of seeing a long season grow even longer during a two game series with the Hastings College Broncos.

The Tigers, only 2-10 for the campaign, will be facing one of the nation's top small college teams in contests scheduled for tonight and Saturday. Hastings, a semi-finalist in the NAIA Tournament a year ago, has returned practically its entire squad and will be going into the set with CC sporting a fancy 12-2 season record. The Broncos' latest triumph was a 95-88 conquest of strong Nebraska Wesleyan Tuesday night.

Through games of last week the team's leading scorer was veteran Bennie Crawford who was averaging 23.5 points per contest. He was followed by Ed Lorentzen who was hitting at 21.1 while Mel Harris, the third member of last year's "big three" carried a 12.2 average. Those three players alone are averaging more points per contest than the entire CC team.

The Tigers will be going into the series after an eight day layoff. Their last action was last Thursday night in Denver when they absorbed an 85-51 defeat at the hands of Regis College. Two nights earielr CC had turned in its finest performance of the season in whipping Colorado Mines 49-39 but the Tigers had one of their poorer efforts against Regis.

Coach Red Eastlack said at midweek that he will use the same lineup which has been working for the Bengals in the past several outings. That has Captain Dave Herrington and Steve Schilder at guards, Pete Susemihl and Chris Grant at forwards, and Phil LeCuyer at post.

Herrington continues to be the team's top scorer with a 10.5 average but in more recent efforts it has been the rapidly improving play of Susemihl and LeCuyer that has buoyed Tiger hopes. Susemihl dropped 17 points in the losing cause at Regis and his rebounding has picked up along with the scoring pace. He is the team leader on the backboards with 82 rebounds and has boosted his scoring average to 8.1. LeCuyer, who joined the team over the Christmas holidays, is beginning to regain some of the form that made him an all-stat prepster at Greeley High three years ago. He is already the number two rebounder and has boosted his point average to 7.4.

The Tigers departed Colorado Springs at noon Thursday via bus for the trip to Nebraska. They will return Sunday.

Following the weekend series CC has only a two day break before returning to the City Auditorium floor next Tuesday for a second shot at Regis.

West German Gets Downhill Victory

By HARVEY HUDSON
Associated Press Writer

MEGEVE, France (AP) — Ludwig Leitner of West Germany captured first place in the Emile Allais Cup downhill ski race today. Jean-Claude Killy of France finished second.

For Leitner, this was the second downhill victory in a row, coming on top of his triumph in the Hahnenkamm race at Kitzbuehl last week. Leitner is the only racer to win two of the classic downhills this season.

Killy's second place was the highest French finish in a downhill race this year and he took a page out of the Austrian book to do it.

After a long dispute among French team members, following a disastrous series of performances in downhill races, Killy abandoned French skis for an Austrian model. He also moved backward the braces which attach the ski to the boot, copying the Austrian practice.

Leitner rocketed down the difficult course, which covers 3,515 yards with a drop of 888 yards, in two minutes, 26.68 seconds.

Killy was timed in two minutes, 27.22 seconds.

Leitner's time was far off the course record held by Igon Zimmermann of Austria at two minutes, 24.60 seconds.

Five Share Luck Golf Meet Lead

By RON BERGMAN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three little guys shared the lead with two big fellows today in the Lucky International Open Golf Tournament. Precedent rules against the bruisers.

No hefty pro ever has captured the top prize in the previous four years of this $57,500 tournament.

The three little guys who carried three-under-par 68s into the second round are Jack McGowan of Largo, Fla.; Butch Baird of Carlton Oaks, Calif., and veteran Gardner Dickinson of Lost Tree Village, Fla. Baird at 150 pounds is the heavyweight of this group.

The comparative Goliaths are George Archer of Gilroy, Calif., and Jack Montgomery of Fort Worth, Tex. Archer is 6-foot-6 — big even for a professional golfer — and Montgomery is 6-2. Each weighs 185 pounds.

Royal Has 'Feud' Over Red-Shirt QB Sauer Linked With AFL, Jets

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Darrell Royal and the Southeastern Conference have no love for the American Football League, AFL Commissioner Joe Foss doesn't like redshirting, George Sauer Jr. has no scholarship and Darrell Royal doesn't have George Sauer Jr.

That was the linescore today in the latest installment of what appears to be an endless controversy in present-day football.

Moving from secret drafts to double signings to early signings, football has arrived at Sauer, a star pass receiver on Royal's Texas team who has relinquished his college scholarship in anticipation of a professional contract with the New York Jets of the AFL.

Royal is incensed that Sauer, son of Jets' personnel director George Sauer Sr., would pass up his final season of eligibility at Texas to turn pro. Sauer has the 1965 season left — even though his original class graduates in June — because he was redshirted as a sophomore in 1962.

A redshirt is a player who is withheld from varsity competition for one season, usually in his sophomore year, in the hope he can be of more help to his team in his fifth year of school.

Sauer declined to say Thursday night whether he will sign a pro contract but did say, "I definitely will not use my fifth year of football eligibility at Texas."

He also said he has moved from his room in the athletic dormitory and has paid his own tuition and fees for the spring semester. He will need only 10 credits after the spring term for graduation as a mathematics major.

Royal doesn't want to lose Sauer.

"We've wet nursed him through three years and toughed him up and now just when we're getting ready to capitalize on him, bam, he's gone," the coach said.

But Royal also threatened to bar all AFL personnel from Texas practice fields, dressing rooms and press boxes if the Jets sign Sauer now.

"I hate to get into a hassle over this," he added, "but a man has to stand up for what is right."

The Jets, incidentally, say they didn't go to Sauer but that he announced his interest in turning pro immediately.

If the pass catcher does go with the Jets, he by no means will be the first collegian to pass up a final year of eligibility. At least eight fellow redshirts already have signed with teams in both leagues for the 1965 season.

In the National League, New York has signed Henry Carr of Arizona State, Jerry Fishman of Maryland has gone with Baltimore, Walt Johnson of Los Angeles State has signed with Cleveland and Mike Tilleman of Montana has joined Minnesota.

Although the Southeastern Conference did not concern itself with the Sauer affair, it did vote to sever relations with the AFL because of the league's stand on early signings of college players.

The conference's sports publicity directors, acting at the request of the schools' athletic directors and coaches, passed a resolution stating they will refuse to cooperate with AFL representatives in any way.

AFL people will not be permitted in SEC facilities and will not be provided with information about pro prospects playing for SEC schools.

Conference spokesmen said the action was taken because the AFL refused to say it would stop signing collegians before their entire seasons were over. The NFL made such a change in its constitution at the request of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

An AFL official, however, pointed out Thursday night that the league didn't refuse to stop such signings but contended instead that a meeting of the two leagues with the NCAA was necessary to iron out the situation.

Earlier in the day, Commissioner Foss attacked the practice of redshirting and defended the right of a boy to earn a living as a pro football player, engineer or chemist after four years of college.

Mentioning no names, Foss said:

"I feel redshirting in itself is wrong and apparently so do many schools and conferences as they have never allowed it or have in recent years outlawed it.

". . .A boy goes to college basically to get an education. . . . There is no excuse, short of military service or illness, why a boy's eligibility shouldn't terminate with the graduation of his class."

The trend in recent years has been away from redshirting. Among the major conferences, the Big 10, the Southern Conference and the Ivy League say a player must complete three years of eligibility in four years. Such major independents as Notre Dame, itt, Penn State and Syracuse also ban the practice.

Delaney Kiphuth, Yale athletic director, called the practice "a national disgrace," "and educational aberration" and "a horrible thing."

However, Wayne Duke, executive director of the Big Eight, which allows redshirting, said the practice "through the years has been proved educationally sound."

SEC Commissioner Bernie Moore added:

"The five-year rule for the Southeastern Conference has been one heck of a fine thing. It enables lots of boys who had a bad time in school academically to take that extra year to get their degree. Experience has shown that these individuals make both good students and good athletes."

Fordham Junior Equals World's Track Record

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sam Perry, 19-year-old son of a New York janitor, had just equalled the world's indoor record for the 60-yard dash, 5.9 seconds, and was being besieged by reporters.

"It feels good," the Fordham junior said in answer to the inevitable question: "How do you feel?"

"It feels good to be the world's fastest human."

If there was any malice, any small dart aimed at Bob Hayes, it wasn't apparent. Sam said it with a straight face. Hayes, the Florida A&M flash who set the record in New York a year ago and then won the Olympic 100 meters, had proudly worn that title for two years.

Now he's turned pro and off the indoor track circuit, but still very much on young Sam's mind.

"The competition isn't as severe this year," said Perry, who missed the Olympics because of a leg injury. "That makes it tougher on me. There's no one pushing me. I have to push myself. That's tough."

It certainly didn't look tough Thursday night when Perry won the 60 before a crowd of 15,952 watching the Wanamaker-Millrose Games in Madison Square Garden.

The four finalists in the 60 had to sweat out two false starts before they got away. Perry, running against Olympic sprinters Paul Drayton and Mel Pender, and Ed Roberts, got a good start and had a clear-cut lead by 30 yards. He won it by at least a yard and with the victory nailed down the award as the meet's outstanding athlete.

Was he shooting for a 5.9, equalled only by Hayes?

"Everytime I go off the blocks I'm leaping at 5.9," he said.

So now maybe 5.8?

"I'll keep trying," he said. "But I'm concentrating on 5.9. That's what I'm going for. If it comes up 5.8, well, so much the better."

Fordham Coach Artie O'Connell was much more optimistic.

"This boy definitely hasn't reached his peak. He may not for another two years," O'Connell said. "He has the natural speed a sprinter is born with. And he has almost automatic timing, one of the sources of his success.

"No one can say how fast he can run. No one knows. But I'll definitely tell you this — 5.8 is next."

Perry, overshadowed by Hayes for two years and knocked out of the Olympics by his leg trouble, was easily the highlight of a surprisingly so-so meet that opened a three-city, three-meet indoor track weekend.

He's skipping the Telegram-Maple Leaf Games in Toronto tonight, but will be in Boston for the Boston A.A. Games Saturday.

Bill Crothers, the Toronto pharmacist who won the half-mile easily, by 10 yards in 1:51.2, is going to make all three. Crothers, unbeaten indoors this winter, said:

"I'm not going for any records now. I'm just running for fun. This was a very comfortable race. If I have to run fast enough for a record, maybe I will, but I didn't have to here."

Some of the other major winners included John Whetton of England in 4:05.4 in the mile; George Young of Phoenix in an 8:48.4 two-mile; Pamela Amoore of Australia, who equalled her own pending women's 440-yard mark of 55.6; Tommy Farrell of Jamaica, N.Y., in a 1:10.5 600, and Roger Morgan of Northeast Louisiana State in a 7.1 60-yard high hurdles.

Gary Gubner of New York, aside from Crothers the only defending champion, turned back the challenge of Olympic bronze medalist Vilmos Varju of Hungary and won the shot at 61¾; Mel Hein Jr., son of the old New York Giants' center, won the pole vault at 16 feet and Dick Ross of Southern University took the high jump of fewer misses at 6-10. Hull Blanked Against Bruins, but Hawks Win

BOSTON (AP) — Bobby Hull of the Chicago Black Hawks is no closer to his hope of a 50-goal season today than he was before Thursday night's game with the Boston Bruins.

But the Bruins, smarting from a 6-2 whipping at Boston Garden Thursday night, can't take much satisfaction in Hull's disappointment. While the hard-shooting star left winger was sending his rockets wide of the Boston nets, teammate Bill Hay came up with two goals and two assists in the second-place Black Hawks' victory.

But the big factor in the decision was 33-year-old Chicago goalie Glenn Hall.

Back from two weeks' rest while Denis DeJordy filled the Chicago nets, Hall was magnificent. He hog-tied the Bruins until midway in the third period when Teddy Green broke the horsecollar for Boston.

The second Boston goal was by Murray Oliver, who scored from 30 feet out while Chicago was two men short at 9:47 of the third period.

Bruins' goaltender Ed Johnston seemed to reap all the bad luck that Hall missed. Teammate Bob McCord was blocking his vision when Ken Wharram of Chicago started the scoring in the first period. Bill Hay skated in all alone five minutes later and made Johnson commit himself before scoring the second Chicago goal.

In the second period, Johnston stopped two shots in a flurry, then found himself unable to recover as Pierre Pilote slammed the rebound home. Hay scored his second of the night and eighth of the season by slapping a shot off Bruins' defenseman Ed Westfall's leg. The puck bounced off Johnston and into the net.

West German Gets Downhill Victory

By HARVEY HUDSON
Associated Press Writer

MEGEVE, France (AP) — Ludwig Leitner of West Germany captured first place in the Emile Allais Cup downhill ski race today. Jean-Claude Killy of France finished second.

For Leitner, this was the second downhill victory in a row, coming on top of his triumph in the Hahnenkamm race at Kitzbuehl last week. Leitner is the only racer to win two of the classic downhills this season.

Killy's second place was the highest French finish in a downhill race this year and he took a page out of the Austrian book to do it.

After a long dispute among French team members, following a disastrous series of performances in downhill races, Killy abandoned French skis for an Austrian model. He also moved backward the braces which attach the ski to the boot, copying the Austrian practice.

Leitner rocketed down the difficult course, which covers 3,515 yards with a drop of 888 yards, in two minutes, 26.68 seconds.

Killy was timed in two minutes, 27.22 seconds.

Leitner's time was far off the course record held by Igon Zimmermann of Austria at two minutes, 24.60 seconds.

Five Share Luck Golf Meet Lead

By RON BERGMAN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three little guys shared the lead with two big fellows today in the Lucky International Open Golf Tournament. Precedent rules against the bruisers.

No hefty pro ever has captured the top prize in the previous four years of this $57,500 tournament.

The three little guys who carried three-under-par 68s into the second round are Jack McGowan of Largo, Fla.; Butch Baird of Carlton Oaks, Calif., and veteran Gardner Dickinson of Lost Tree Village, Fla. Baird at 150 pounds is the heavyweight of this group.

The comparative Goliaths are George Archer of Gilroy, Calif., and Jack Montgomery of Fort Worth, Tex. Archer is 6-foot-6 — big even for a professional golfer — and Montgomery is 6-2. Each weighs 185 pounds.

Littler started today at Harding Municipal course at 72, Rodriguez at 73. The two other previous winners are absent.

Billy Casper had a 72 and Tony Lema 73 in the opening round on a day meant for professionals other than favorites.

Royal Has 'Feud' Over Red-Shirt QB Sauer Linked With AFL, Jets

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Darrell Royal and the Southeastern Conference have no love for the American Football League, AFL Commissioner Joe Foss doesn't like redshirting, George Sauer Jr. has no scholarship and Darrell Royal doesn't have George Sauer Jr.

That was the linescore today in the latest installment of what appears to be an endless controversy in present-day football.

Moving from secret drafts to double signings to early signings, football has arrived at Sauer, a star pass receiver on Royal's Texas team who has relinquished his college scholarship in anticipation of a professional contract with the New York Jets of the AFL.

Royal is incensed that Sauer, son of Jets' personnel director George Sauer Sr., would pass up his final season of eligibility at Texas to turn pro. Sauer has the 1965 season left — even though his original class graduates in June — because he was redshirted as a sophomore in 1962.

A redshirt is a player who is withheld from varsity competition for one season, usually in his sophomore year, in the hope he can be of more help to his team in his fifth year of school.

Sauer declined to say Thursday night whether he will sign a pro contract but did say, "I definitely will not use my fifth year of football eligibility at Texas."

He also said he has moved from his room in the athletic dormitory and has paid his own tuition and fees for the spring semester. He will need only 10 credits after the spring term for graduation as a mathematics major.

Royal doesn't want to lose Sauer.

"We've wet nursed him through three years and toughed him up and now just when we're getting ready to capitalize on him, bam, he's gone," the coach said.

But Royal also threatened to bar all AFL personnel from Texas practice fields, dressing rooms and press boxes if the Jets sign Sauer now.

"I hate to get into a hassle over this," he added, "but a man has to stand up for what is right."

The Jets, incidentally, say they didn't go to Sauer but that he announced his interest in turning pro immediately.

If the pass catcher does go with the Jets, he by no means will be the first collegian to pass up a final year of eligibility. At least eight fellow redshirts already have signed with teams in both leagues for the 1965 season.

In the National League, New York has signed Henry Carr of Arizona State, Jerry Fishman of Maryland has gone with Baltimore, Walt Johnson of Los Angeles State has signed with Cleveland and Mike Tilleman of Montana has joined Minnesota.

Although the Southeastern Conference did not concern itself with the Sauer affair, it did vote to sever relations with the AFL because of the league's stand on early signings of college players.

The conference's sports publicity directors, acting at the request of the schools' athletic directors and coaches, passed a resolution stating they will refuse to cooperate with AFL representatives in any way.

AFL people will not be permitted in SEC facilities and will not be provided with information about pro prospects playing for SEC schools.

Conference spokesmen said the action was taken because the AFL refused to say it would stop signing collegians before their entire seasons were over. The NFL made such a change in its constitution at the request of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

An AFL official, however, pointed out Thursday night that the league didn't refuse to stop such signings but contended instead that a meeting of the two leagues with the NCAA was necessary to iron out the situation.

Earlier in the day, Commissioner Foss attacked the practice of redshirting and defended the right of a boy to earn a living as a pro football player, engineer or chemist after four years of college.

Mentioning no names, Foss said:

"I feel redshirting in itself is wrong and apparently so do many schools and conferences as they have never allowed it or have in recent years outlawed it.

". . .A boy goes to college basically to get an education. . . . There is no excuse, short of military service or illness, why a boy's eligibility shouldn't terminate with the graduation of his class."

The trend in recent years has been away from redshirting. Among the major conferences, the Big 10, the Southern Conference and the Ivy League say a player must complete three years of eligibility in four years. Such major independents as Notre Dame, itt, Penn State and Syracuse also ban the practice.

Delaney Kiphuth, Yale athletic director, called the practice "a national disgrace," "and educational aberration" and "a horrible thing."

However, Wayne Duke, executive director of the Big Eight, which allows redshirting, said the practice "through the years has been proved educationally sound."

SEC Commissioner Bernie Moore added:

"The five-year rule for the Southeastern Conference has been one heck of a fine thing. It enables lots of boys who had a bad time in school academically to take that extra year to get their degree. Experience has shown that these individuals make both good students and good athletes."

Hull Blanked Against Bruins, but Hawks Win

BOSTON (AP) — Bobby Hull of the Chicago Black Hawks is no closer to his hope of a 50-goal season today than he was before Thursday night's game with the Boston Bruins.

But the Bruins, smarting from a 6-2 whipping at Boston Garden Thursday night, can't take much satisfaction in Hull's disappointment. While the hard-shooting star left winger was sending his rockets wide of the Boston nets, teammate Bill Hay came up with two goals and two assists in the second-place Black Hawks' victory.

But the big factor in the decision was 33-year-old Chicago goalie Glenn Hall.

Back from two weeks' rest while Denis DeJordy filled the Chicago nets, Hall was magnificent. He hog-tied the Bruins until midway in the third period when Teddy Green broke the horsecollar for Boston.

The second Boston goal was by Murray Oliver, who scored from 30 feet out while Chicago was two men short at 9:47 of the third period.

Bruins' goaltender Ed Johnston seemed to reap all the bad luck that Hall missed. Teammate Bob McCord was blocking his vision when Ken Wharram of Chicago started the scoring in the first period. Bill Hay skated in all alone five minutes later and made Johnson commit himself before scoring the second Chicago goal.

In the second period, Johnston stopped two shots in a flurry, then found himself unable to recover as Pierre Pilote slammed the rebound home. Hay scored his second of the night and eighth of the season by slapping a shot off Bruins' defenseman Ed Westfall's leg. The puck bounced off Johnston and into the net.

SAC Is Operating Jet Tanker Fleet

NAHA, Okinawa (AP) — The Strategic Air Command has begun operating KC135 jet tankers from Kadena Air Base here, to provide fueling support for all SAC aircraft in the Far East.

A U.S. Air Force official said a realignment of aerial tanker forces in the Western Pacific would include deactivation of a tanker squadron at Yokota Air Base, in Japan, next month.

The Kadena unit will consist of 15 KC135's.

Among the "human factors" affecting safe driver behavior, according to Dr. Paul Joliet, head of the U.S. Public Health Service Accident Prevention Division, are fatigue, disease, alcohol and emotions.

NATO to Face Showdown With De Gaulle

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
United Press International

PARIS (UPI) — The year 1965 may be the year of decision for the North Atlantic alliance.

It may see a showdown between French President Charles de Gaulle and the rest of the alliance over the West's nuclear defense set-up.

At the worst, 1965 could even see France pull out of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and the breakup of the defense alignment created by the free West in 1949.

NATO, an alliance of 15 independent states, each with its own national ax to grind, has moved from crisis to crisis from year to year throughout its 15 years' existence. Yet, when the chips were down, as in the Cuban crisis of 1962, it has forgotten its differences and stood solidly together.

The project was devised by the United States in an effort to give its European allies a greater share in the West's nuclear defense. In particular, it was designed to give West Germany a shared nuclear role in the hope it would discourage her from attempting to create an independent nuclear force of her own.

But the plan met with little general success among America's European allies. Only the West Germans accepted it without question.

French President Charles de Gaulle rejected it outright. The British never have been anything but lukewarm.

Finally, only eight of the 15 NATO countries took part in talks designed to see whether such a force could be set up at all. They were the United States, Italy, Belgium, Netherlands, Greece and Turkey.

The talks moved on last summer to the stage of earmarking a "guinea-pig ship," the U.S. destroyer Ricketts, to try out whether such a mixed-manned operation is practicable.

But in October a crisis over MLF erupted suddenly in NATO.

De Gaulle, and his spokesmen

He and his spokesmen dedenounced it as "militarily useless," "politically divisive" and calculated to hand Western Europe over to United States "hegemony" and "neocolonialism."

De Gaulle saw in it a threat to his own plans for a purely European nuclear deterrent controlled by a politically united Europe under his own leadership.

He warned that if West Germany went ahead with it, it would sound the death-knell of the Jan. 22, 1963, French-German alliance. He also threatened to boycott NATO or to pull France out of it altogether.

The British Labor government which fought the October 15 parliamentary general election on a pledge to scrap Britain's independent nuclear deterrent, was far from enthusiastic about MLF—even less so than the previous Conservative government.

Instead of MLF it produced a project for an "Atlantic Nuclear Force," or ANF. This would consist of a fleet of only 10 surface ships instead of the 25 planned under MLF, but to these would be added Britain's three planned Polaris submarines, her V-bomber force and planes.

During 1964 De Gaulle pulled most of his remaining naval units out from Nato command, leaving in it only two army divisions and 27 tactical air force squadrons in Germany and three submarines in the Atlantic.

The Greek-Turkish crisis over Cyprus faced NATO in 1964 with some of the most critical moments in its history. For a time both withdrew their forces from NATO command and appeared on the brink of war.

NATO joined the United Nations in using its full influence to head off war between these two member countries. Open war between them would have been disastrous, because they constitute the highly vulnerable southern flank of the 3,000-mile Iron Curtain defense line extending from the Arctic to the Caspian Sea.

As 1964 ended, the Cyprus situation appeared greatly eased. But NATO was keeping up its peace-making role without actually seeking to act as mediator.

During 1964 both Great Britain and France broke the 30-years - old Berne agreement against extending long - term credits to Communist countries. They did so despite urgent pleas from the United States and West Germany.

The United States is seeking to stem the tide in 1965, but with little apparent hope of success now the initial breaches have been made.

Last August NATO Secretary General Dirk U. Stikker of the Netherlands retired from the alliance's number-one spot and was replaced by Manlio Brosio, who at various times had been Italian ambassador in Washington, London, Moscow and Paris.

Brosio made it clear he regards his job as one of guiding and interpreting rather than making policy.

All indications were that he would have to use his diplomatic talents to the limit to hold the alliance together in 1965.

Galbraith Blasts U.S. Foreign Policy

NEW YORK (AP) — John Kenneth Galbraith, Harvard University economist and former U.S. ambassador to India, says a mood of "chronic contentment" prevails in U.S. foreign policy.

Galbraith, writing in the Atlantic Monthly, said the American people are in a mood for a change.

"Here the official instinct is to continue present policies, whether right, wrong or potentially disastrous," he wrote. "It seeks continuity in our Canadian and Mexican relationships, which work well. Equally, it accepts continuity in policies toward Southeast Asia, China, the arms race, which aren't working at all or are certain to be a source of further deep trouble."

The government bought Thomas Jefferson's library in 1815 for the Library of Congress.

Drivers Found Not Guilty In Frea.. Accident Case

The situation as described Thursday in Municipal Court was as unpredictable as anything unforeseen could be.

George Carlton, 42, Ft. Carson, was stalled in the railroad underpass on East Pikes Peak Avenue desperately trying to get the used car he was trying out started.

Morris Avery, 25 614 Mono Pl. was westbound on Pikes Peak and could not see Carlton's stalled car because of the sun's shadows that darkened the entrance.

Mrs. Barbara Laura 39 3016 Wellshire Blvd. was driving behind Avery to his right and therefore could not see Carlton's car either.

Carlton's son was in the back seat motioning other drivers to go around. Carlton could not get his family to safety, partly because of the heavy traffic on the icy roadway, and because his wife is crippled by polio.

He saw Avery's car headed towards him and he and his family braced for the impact. Avery's car struck then recoiled to the right striking Mrs. Laura's car.

"While it is the duty of a driver to anticipate the unexpected," Judge Allan Asher said "a time comes when the unexpected happens too swiftly."

He found Carlton not guilty of parking in a prohibited place; Avery not guilty of careless driving, and Mrs. Laura not guilty of following too close. Mrs. Laura was represented by Attorney Howard Morrison.

Judge Asher also dismissed a careless driving charge against Kathryn Smith 26 728 E. Pikes Peak Ave., and a similar charge against John Brennan, 28, 2210 W. Kiowa St.

Brennan had earlier been convicted in a state court on a charge of driving under the influence arising out of the same incident. He was found guilty of damage to city property and a $200 fine was imposed.

William Hendenskog, 49, 2812 Tremont St., was fined $15 on a guilty finding of double parking. Joseph Hunt, 26, 2631 W. Pikes Peak Ave., was fined $10 on a guilty finding of disobeying a traffic signal.

Judge Asher imposed a $15 fine on Tranguilino Franco, 19, 2125½ Hagerman St., on his guilty plea to making an improper turn, and imposed a $25 fine on Shirley DeSautels, 43, 1101 Morning Star Dr., on her guilty plea to a charge of failure to exercise due care.

Clara Bell Sitler, 41, 2427 W. Uintah St., pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct, breach of peace and drunkenness, all charges lodged against her by Wilburt Stephen, of the same address. Mrs. Sitler said she was Stephen's housekeeper.

When Judge Asher asked her why she threw a rock at Stephen's window early Thursday morning Mrs. Sitler said she didn't, that she threw the rock at Stephen, missed him and it hit the window.

She said they had been drinking and he had slapped her "out the door."

"Did he throw the rock back at you?" the judge asked.

Mrs. Sitler said no, that by that time "the cops arrived."

Judge Asher found her guilty of breach of peace and being drunk and levied fines of $25 on each. He suspended $25 on condition she is not back in court on similar charges.

There were 85 persons under 18 and over 65 in July, 1964, for every 100 persons in the working ages of 18 to 64, a Census Bureau analysis shows. In 1950 the ratio was only 64.4

U.S. Rubber Workers Accept Wage Cut

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — U.S. Rubber Co. union workers have accepted by a 329-275 vote a union-sponsored proposal to take a 25-cent hourly wage cut — if the company will keep its plant here for at least five years.

The vote Thursday was a reversal of an October one when the workers turned down by a 2 to 1 vote a proposal for a straight-time pay cut of 30 cents hourly and an 11-cent cut in other benefits.

At that time the company announced it would close its Providence plant, with a loss of about 900 jobs.

Company officials have said they will convey the new offer by the United Rubber Workers Union local to top management, but said they could not guarantee it would be accepted.

Gypsy Arrested With Million in Bonds

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Miami Beach police found hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of negotiable stocks and bonds in the hotel room of a 29-year-old gypsy arrested after he tried to cash a check.

The man, who signed a statement admitting the stocks were stolen from a New York office, identified himself as Stephen Tene, the FBI said. He gave his tribal name as Bimbo.

The stolen stocks were worth $650,000 when they were taken from the office of S. Cy Gluck Dec. 24, agents said. Police Lt. Albert Biblo estimated their value at $1 million.

Police said a brown attache case he carried also contained marijuana. He was booked on a narcotics charge and the FBI said it would charge him with interstate transportation of stolen securities.

Gypsy Arrested With Million in Bonds

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Miami Beach police found hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of negotiable stocks and bonds in the hotel room of a 29-year-old gypsy arrested after he tried to cash a check.

The man, who signed a statement admitting the stocks were stolen from a New York office, identified himself as Stephen Tene, the FBI said. He gave his tribal name as Bimbo.

Police said a brown attache case he carried also contained marijuana. He was booked on a narcotics charge and the FBI said it would charge him with interstate transportation of stolen securities.

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON — In most of the obituary material on Sir Winston Churchill there have been references to his famous Iron Curtain speech on March 5, 1946, at Fulton ,Mo..

There is little argument that the phrases he then used to warn of the Communist peril over Europe have been worth repeating. But the significance of that address has never been properly assessed, and it has somewhat been lost sight of because of a natural penchant to find only in it some fine examples of Churchill's oratorical genius.

It needs to be emphasized that but for what Churchill said at Fulton it is likely that two months later the U.S. Senate would not have approved a $3.7 billion loan to Britain to help put the United Kingdom back on its economic feet.

The Senate vote on that highly controversial issue was 46 to 34. Churchill long ago deserved major credit for that Truman Administration accomplishment, but he never received it.

When Churchill at Fulton proposed an Anglo - American military alliance against Communism, he was speaking as a private citizen. He had been ousted as prime minister eight months before, the Labor Government under Clement Attlee taking over.

And because the Senate believed that Attlee and his party were playing footsie with Moscow, the chances of the loan agreement going through were less than even. But Churchill's resounding phrases turned the tide, for he argued in essence that Britain, given the $3.7 billion, would build itself up economically and militarily against the grave potential threat of Soviet Russia.

MARSHALL PLAN MIGHT HAVE BEEN DEFEATED

In the significant Senate vote that followed 17 Republicans and 29 Democrats voted for the big postwar loan. Voting against were 18 Republicans, one Progressive (LaFollette) and 15 Democrats.

In hindsight it certainly appears that if the loan agreement had been defeated, the Marshall Plan which followed would similarly never have been approved by Congress and perhaps not even submited.

It now turns out that it was only by sheer chance that Churchill made that speech which had such great impact on American foreign aid policy. Franc L. McCluer, then president of the Westminster College at Fulton, has now told the Associated Press, in an interview released after Churchill's death, just how the invitation to Churchill to speak was made.

In the fall of 1945 McCluer decided to ask Churchill, who was planning an American "vacation," to speak in March and asked President Truman, a fellow Missourian, to endorse the invitation.

"I didn't have any hope that Churchill would accept," McCluer says, "until I saw that Truman had written on the bottom of my letter. He said in effect, "This is a great small college."

CHURCHILL DELIVERED IT IN THE GYM

But it is doubtful that Truman would have made that pitch at that time except for the fact that President McCluer's effort to get White House assistance was made through Harry Vaughan. The latter was not only Truman's military aide and crony (they had served together in World War I), but Vaughan also was an alumnus of the small Missouri college (student body numbering 350 in 1946).

And, ever willing to do Harry Vaughan a favor, Truman also informed Churchill that he would accompany the former prime minister to Fulton, which he did, the two traveling by special train from Washington.

Churchill's famous speech (he was introduced by Truman) was delivered in the gymnasium of the college, seating capacity only 2,600. And unfortunately, because Churchill was annoyed by powerful floodlights, the electric current was turned off for a while, so the high points of the address were never preserved completely on soundtrack or film.

As Churchill was never a humbug, he would in life, we are sure, have relished this little sidelight about his Fulton appearance, although to the best of our knowledge it has never been told before.

Before the British leader's speech he and Truman were guests at a tea and buffet in President McCluer's home. The residence was only a stone's throw from the gymnasium, and all the faculty and wives of the strait - laced denominational college had been invited to meet the distinguished visitor.

IT WASN'T THE VISITORS CUP OF TEA

Tea, it turned out, was not Churchill's wanted cup. He was 71 at the time and wanted a more substantial bracer.

Churchill whispered his predicament to the late Charles Campbell, the British information representative in Washington who was accompanying him on his trip. Campbell ran out of breath to the basement press headquarters under the gymnasium, wheedled a pint of bourbon from Western Union representative Carroll Linkins and dashed back to the teaparty.

Churchill succeeded in extricating himself from the receiving line, saying he wanted to wash up before his speech. Campbell was already in the bathroom, and a few minutes later Churchill, in fine fettle, began his dramatic Iron Curtain speech. This is no reflection on the great leader. Churchill himself has said, "I have taken more out of alcohol than it has taken out of me."

Churchill had a similarly honest estimate about whether he smoked too much. If he had smoked less he said, "I might have been bad - tempered at the wrong times."

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON — In most of the obituary material on Sir Winston Churchill there have been references to his famous Iron Curtain speech on March 5, 1946, at Fulton ,Mo..

There is little argument that the phrases he then used to warn of the Communist peril over Europe have been worth repeating. But the significance of that address has never been properly assessed, and it has somewhat been lost sight of because of a natural penchant to find only in it some fine examples of Churchill's oratorical genius.

It needs to be emphasized that but for what Churchill said at Fulton it is likely that two months later the U.S. Senate would not have approved a $3.7 billion loan to Britain to help put the United Kingdom back on its economic feet.

The Senate vote on that highly controversial issue was 46 to 34. Churchill long ago deserved major credit for that Truman Administration accomplishment, but he never received it.

When Churchill at Fulton proposed an Anglo - American military alliance against Communism, he was speaking as a private citizen. He had been ousted as prime minister eight months before, the Labor Government under Clement Attlee taking over.

And because the Senate believed that Attlee and his party were playing footsie with Moscow, the chances of the loan agreement going through were less than even. But Churchill's resounding phrases turned the tide, for he argued in essence that Britain, given the $3.7 billion, would build itself up economically and militarily against the grave potential threat of Soviet Russia.

MARSHALL PLAN MIGHT HAVE BEEN DEFEATED

In the significant Senate vote that followed 17 Republicans and 29 Democrats voted for the big postwar loan. Voting against were 18 Republicans, one Progressive (LaFollette) and 15 Democrats.

In hindsight it certainly appears that if the loan agreement had been defeated, the Marshall Plan which followed would similarly never have been approved by Congress and perhaps not even submited.

It now turns out that it was only by sheer chance that Churchill made that speech which had such great impact on American foreign aid policy. Franc L. McCluer, then president of the Westminster College at Fulton, has now told the Associated Press, in an interview released after Churchill's death, just how the invitation to Churchill to speak was made.

In the fall of 1945 McCluer decided to ask Churchill, who was planning an American "vacation," to speak in March and asked President Truman, a fellow Missourian, to endorse the invitation.

"I didn't have any hope that Churchill would accept," McCluer says, "until I saw that Truman had written on the bottom of my letter. He said in effect, "This is a great small college."

CHURCHILL DELIVERED IT IN THE GYM

But it is doubtful that Truman would have made that pitch at that time except for the fact that President McCluer's effort to get White House assistance was made through Harry Vaughan. The latter was not only Truman's military aide and crony (they had served together in World War I), but Vaughan also was an alumnus of the small Missouri college (student body numbering 350 in 1946).

And, ever willing to do Harry Vaughan a favor, Truman also informed Churchill that he would accompany the former prime minister to Fulton, which he did, the two traveling by special train from Washington.

Churchill's famous speech (he was introduced by Truman) was delivered in the gymnasium of the college, seating capacity only 2,600. And unfortunately, because Churchill was annoyed by powerful floodlights, the electric current was turned off for a while, so the high points of the address were never preserved completely on soundtrack or film.

As Churchill was never a humbug, he would in life, we are sure, have relished this little sidelight about his Fulton appearance, although to the best of our knowledge it has never been told before.

Before the British leader's speech he and Truman were guests at a tea and buffet in President McCluer's home. The residence was only a stone's throw from the gymnasium, and all the faculty and wives of the strait - laced denominational college had been invited to meet the distinguished visitor.

IT WASN'T THE VISITORS CUP OF TEA

Tea, it turned out, was not Churchill's wanted cup. He was 71 at the time and wanted a more substantial bracer.

Churchill whispered his predicament to the late Charles Campbell, the British information representative in Washington who was accompanying him on his trip. Campbell ran out of breath to the basement press headquarters under the gymnasium, wheedled a pint of bourbon from Western Union representative Carroll Linkins and dashed back to the teaparty.

Churchill succeeded in extricating himself from the receiving line, saying he wanted to wash up before his speech. Campbell was already in the bathroom, and a few minutes later Churchill, in fine fettle, began his dramatic Iron Curtain speech. This is no reflection on the great leader. Churchill himself has said, "I have taken more out of alcohol than it has taken out of me."

Churchill had a similarly honest estimate about whether he smoked too much. If he had smoked less he said, "I might have been bad - tempered at the wrong times."
